QUESTION: Can Astrology explain the problem we are having with drugs? It seems that we have lost our collective minds. Signed MES.

ANSWER: The problem of drugs is only one of the things which are happening to us now. Not only nationally but internationally.

If you remember, back in Feb. 5, 1962, there was a conjunction in the sky of several planets in the sign of Aquarius. I was in Calif. at the time and there were groups going into the mountains thinking that the world had come to an end. What good it would have done, being in the mountains, I don't know, but many people went there nevertheless. This conjunction in Aquarius, along with the fact that the planet Neptune was, and still is, in the sign of Scorpio explains a great deal. First, when there is a conjunction of any strength in any sign, the qualities of the sign are strongly impressed upon our lives. Since the conjunction was in the changeable and revolutionary sign of Aquarius it was inevitable that there be change and that the change be of a dramatic nature, since Uranus does nothing half-way.

Now with the planet Neptune in the sign of Scorpio it was certain that we would see some weird attitudes develop towards sex. Neptune tends to confuse or cloud over the things which it contacts.

It is known that Neptune governs drugs. Placed in the sign of Scorpio, the sign of sex and reproduction, it can easily be seen that the two configurations are responsible for the whole sex and psychedelic revolution. In case you might think this is just blind-sight, let me make a prediction or two.

Within the next year the planet Neptune will move into the sign of Sagittarius, where it will remain for some time. The sign of Sagittarius is known to rule; science, religion, foreign travel and metaphysical or esoteric philosophies. On the basis of this you can look for the following things to take place over the next two years. Science will find a way to produce some form of living creature. This, plus many other things, will cause a complete crisis in religion, bringing about the completely new and weird approaches to religion. There will be a tremendous increase of interest in Black Magic. This already has begun, since Neptune moved into Sagittarius briefly, earlier this year. There will occur human sacrifices in this country as a result of this new interest in the black arts. Weird and unexplainable things will happen in relation to foreign travel, especially in relationship to travel over water. There will possibly be things like ships and planes disappearing. Not all will be bad, however. There will arise a powerful force in the world for good. This force will be religious. Not in the sense that we think of religion today, however.

I have stated before elsewhere that there will be, within the next few years, between three and five million displaced young people living in grey or "hippy" type camps around the country. These camps will be veritable drug and escape centers, and if I described the condition in which they will live you would not believe me! Now, one more prediction, if I may. Between 1989 and 1990 all the planets in the solar system except Jupiter and Pluto, will be in the sign of Capricorn. To complicate this, Jupiter will be in opposition to these planets and Pluto will be in the sign of Scorpio. This can mean only one thing. Capricorn is known to rule lack and times of extreme trial. With this much energy in the sign of Capricorn and with the planet Jupiter (expansion) in opposition to them it means hunger -- world hunger. With Pluto, a very powerful malefic, in the sign of Scorpio, there is sure to be a population of staggering proportions and efforts will be made to enforce mass sterilization. We will see a mass of deformed babies as a result of drugs and radiation in the air, which have reached dangerous stages. Pluto governs all these things. QUESTION: I was born in Regensburg, Germany and am very homesick. Will I have a chance to return home next year?

ANSWER: It is interesting to note that the ruler of the seventh house, the marriage partner is located in the ninth house of your horoscope. The ninth house indicates things dealing with foreign countries, therefore it is logical that you have married someone of a foreign birth. Since you are from Germany, one of foreign birth would be an American.

As far as being able to go back to your native country, it is almost certain that you will do so. There will be some delay however, since the ruler of the ninth house (foreign travel) is temporarily receiving an adverse aspect from the planet Venus. Venus rules money and therefore it is likely that you will find finances standing in your way. This should pass in about eighteen months or so and at that time Jupiter in the ninth (foreign travel) will receive a very strong benefic aspect from Mars. Mars is the planet of intense energy and it is almost certain that you will have the opportunity to go at that time. Bon Voyage.

QUESTION: Recently I met a man who says that he loves me. I am divorced and must raise my son by myself. It is comforting to know that someone cares, but I am afraid that this young man has been in trouble with the police. What should I do? Unsigned.

ANSWER: Run, don't walk, but run in the opposite direction as fast as you can. This young man is deeply upset emotionally and is not to be trusted. He is in trouble with the police, almost certainly and I would guess in the near future may be incarcerated.

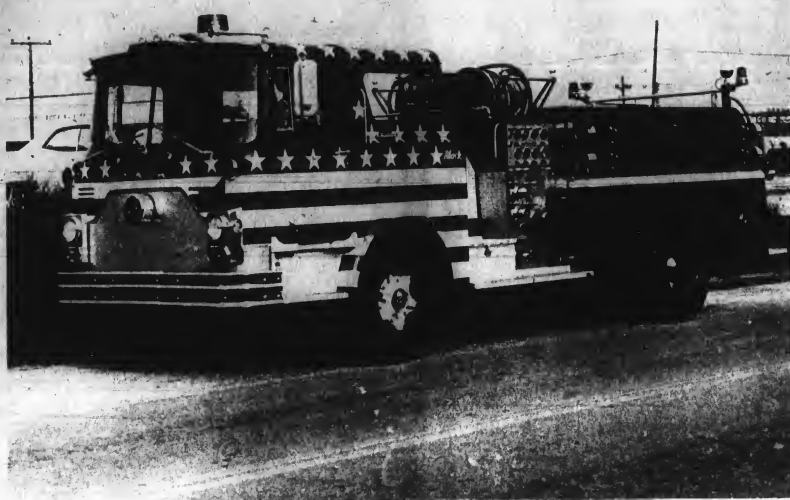

As for him loving you, you must not believe a thing that he tells you. I doubt if he is capable of telling the truth. I am sure that this young man has some serious emotional problems. His Venus (the affectional nature) is conjunct the planet Pluto, and Pluto is a malefic with a very compulsive nature. It is known to influence the sex drive. These two planets are in very bad relationship to the violent and aggressive planet Mars, which I might add is also directly related to the sex force. Pluto is also strongly suspected to be involved with deviation.

The Moon (emotions) opposes the planet Mercury (the Mind) and since the Moon is in the sensual sign of Pisces, it is a strong indication that the emotions hold sway over the mind. What else can be said? I feel certain that this man is capable of losing control of his emotions, and with the aspect between Venus, Pluto and Mars, I think that he is potentially dangerous. You do not need this.

QUESTION: Please tell me where the planets were at the time of my birth and some information concerning each. Signed Debbie.

ANSWER: The Sun was in the sign of Scorpio. Scorpio is the sign of deep feelings and intense loyalty. Flexibility

It's An Eye-Catcher

City officials are considering the purchase of this new fire truck for use by the Virginia Beach Borough fire department. With the exception of its appearance the truck is standard make and equipped like most trucks being used by other departments in the resort city. The truck is painted red, white and blue in a design similar to the American flag. Indications are that public opinion regarding the appearance of the truck could be of importance in the City's decision regarding purchase of the unit.

New Street Plan For Linkhorn Park Delayed Two Weeks

A plan to renumber and rename certain streets in the Linkhorn Park section of Virginia Beach to conform with postal requirements has been delayed for about two weeks, pending the final approval of the Post Office, a planning department official said Wednesday. William F. Caten, the department's Coordinator of Street Names and House Numbers, said postal authorities have asked that several refinements be made in the plan he presented to City Council Tuesday. Caten said the request will delay planning department implementation of the first step to create a uniform grid system of house numbering in the beach borough.

Caten's plan, unveiled Tuesday, calls for renumbering of streets in Linkhorn Park and the remaining Bay Drive to York Lane and Pinewood Drive between Cavalier Drive and Bay Colony Drive to North Dogwood Road.

Refinements asked by the postal authorities include extending Dogwood Road to include 32nd Street to Pacific Avenue and extension of Linkhorn Drive to include 38th Street to the oceanfront.

Caten said he realized the request was necessary, because many people unfamiliar with the Linkhorn Park area can't find the two main roads, Linkhorn and Dogwood, leading into the area.

"What we're doing now is correcting the mistakes that were made when the areas were originally set up 45 years ago by a city manager," he said.

"The problem now is that the postal people won't be able to deliver the mail if the numbers continue the way they are as we grow," Caten said. "What we're trying to do is provide the people with a means for more efficient services."

Eventually, the entire beach borough will have to be renumbered through the use of a uniform grid system as opposed to the present system, which is a modification of the rural route system, he said, to align it with the rest of the city.

Caten said that the next project his office will undertake is the conversion of the Sandbridge area from a rural route system of numbering to a carrier system.

After that's completed, Caten said the next place to be converted will be the Beach Borough.

That process, he said, will take "two years to get everything squared away. What we'll do is take it a step at a time, starting with the north end of the beach and working from 88th Street south to Rudee Inlet.

In a letter to residents of Linkhorn Park that will be delivered along with notification of a new street name or number, Caten explained that mail services will continue under both addresses for a period of two years before the conversion to the new numbers or names is actually completed.

Housing Will Be Surveyed

The City's Health Department will launch a survey in the Beach Borough in the next few days to check on sanitary and multi-resident conditions in the resort community.

Housing Sanitarian John W. Crafton announced the survey Wednesday afternoon and said it was being conducted at the request of a number of private citizens as well as City Council.

Although the City Health Department usually notifies through the mail residents of an area to be surveyed, the Department chose this time to make the official notification through the news media.

The survey will cover every structure and piece of property in the borough. It will start at the Civic Center and fan out in all directions, to Rudee Inlet at the South and to 42nd Street at the north end and westward to Park Avenue, cutting in behind Virginia Beach Junior High School.

It will take about six weeks to complete the initial survey of the 125-block area, Crafton said, and it will be sometime this winter before final results will be known.

Surveyors will make a physical survey of the external conditions of a building and, if there is any question as to whether it complies with the City's Minimum Housing Code, they will check the inside.

This action is authorized by State Law.

The survey will be restricted to the Beach Borough only. However, similar surveys are continually conducted by the City Health Department upon request.

The main points in the survey apparently are the number of inhabitants per building and the sanitary conditions in each.

The City's Minimum Housing Code specifies that a habitable house must have 150 square feet of floor space for the first occupant and 100 additional square feet for each other occupant, based on total habitable room.

Every dwelling must have two or more rooms if occupants are to sleep there. The first occupant must have a minimum of 70 square feet of floor space in the sleeping area. If there is more than one occupant, each must have at least 50 square feet of floor space.

Celling requirements specify that at least one half the floor area must have a 7 foot ceiling to be considered a habitable room. Less than 5 feet

City Display In Canadian Exhibit

For the 15th consecutive year Virginia Beach will be represented at the annual Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, the final travel show of the season.

Robert E. Whitley, assistant executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, will represent both the chamber and the City of Virginia Beach at the fair.

The chamber will sponsor a display booth in the Travel and Transportation Building, along with Norfolk and Hampton, which will stress the theme "Coastal Virginia."

In addition to being on duty in the display booth at the CNE, Whitley will make calls on key travel agencies and travel editors while in Toronto.

During the 1969 fair some 3,300,000 viewed the exhibits in the 20 days it was open. This year's fair will be held August 20 through September 7.

The chamber has also participated in travel or flower shows in Cleveland, Washington, Philadelphia and New York City.

This phase of the chamber's program is the work of the Travel and Tourism Committee headed by Mrs. George Leary.

Youth To Rally For Boys Club

All young people in Virginia Beach have been invited to attend a rally tonight at 7 o'clock at First Colonial High School in support of the proposed Boys Club.

Joshua P. Vaughn, campaign coordinator for the Optimist Club of Virginia Beach, sponsors the Boys Club fund drive, said "The City of Virginia Beach and the merchants are solidly behind us in this much-needed community center."

"But," he added, "We need the backing of all our young people to help in the next phase of the campaign."

Plans include the selling of 100,000 boxes of candy on August 22 and 23 and 10,000 magazine subscriptions on August 28 and 29.

Vaughn pointed out that this is also an opportunity for the participating church or organization to raise money.

At the close of the campaign a party will be held for all those who participated, and everyone will have a name inscribed on a plaque to stand in the new Boys Club of Virginia Beach, Vaughn said.

Peter Nero At Dome Aug. 15

In an attempt to keep cultural entertainment at Virginia Beach for the current season, as originally scheduled, WCPK Radio will present Peter Nero at the Virginia Beach Civic Center for one concert on Aug. 15 at 8:30 p.m.

Peter Nero, born in New York 33 years ago, began his musical career when he was seven years old on a richly upright piano. Seven years later, he was awarded a scholarship to the Juilliard School of Music where he studied piano and composition.

Regular appearances with symphony orchestras were part of his musical upbringing; and at 19, he went on a national tour with Paul Whiteman, appearing in concert halls and on television.

During this period, Peter listened to Art Tatum and other jazz greats, and he developed a love for the jazz medium. He found jazz a marvelous opportunity for creativity and for almost five years, concentrated on jazz. Peter then developed his own approach to music, which he describes as an attempt to blend jazz elements with a classical style. Unfortunately, this new approach did not meet with immediate commercial success and Peter was so discouraged that he took a job selling pianos. However, Peter returned to playing piano at a small night club on New York's West Side called Jilly's and there began his association with his personal manager, Stan Gregson. He was signed by RCA-Victor and his first album, "Piano Forte," was an immediate sell-out.

Following the success of his initial album were sell-out national tours, night club engagements, and extensive television appearances, followed by even more successful albums--15 to date--such as "New Piano in Town," "For The Nero-Minded," and "PN In Person," etc. His latest album, "On Tour," is selling fast. Upcoming is a new album, "Peter Nero Plays The Tjanna Brass."

In addition to his piano artistry, Peter is an excellent arranger (he arranges all the music that he plays) as well as a composer--most of his albums include at least one of his compositions.

He has received several award nominations for the score he wrote for the film "Sunday in New York." Also, his piano artistry has earned Peter five nominations and two coveted "Grammy" awards from the National Association of Recording Arts and Sciences. One "Grammy" was for the "Best Artist," and the second was for "The Best Performance by an Instrumentalist with Orchestra." He was picked as the "Most Programmed Instrumentalist" by disc jockeys all over the country in a poll conducted by Cash Box Magazine.

Attending to Peter's international fame is his record-breaking sales and personal appearances in such countries as England, France, Holland, Hong Kong, The Union of South Africa, and dozens of other far-away places.

Peter Nero has appeared on the top variety television shows, including the Ed Sullivan Show, the Tonight Show, and the Today Show, as well as network specials.

Concerts Scheduled

The Virginia Beach Civic Center is currently sponsoring a "Family Concerts By-The-Sea" series which is held every Wednesday at 8 p.m.

On Wednesday, Aug. 12 the Country and Western group, the Carolina Charlie Quintet and The Rudy Wesley Show will perform. The Kenny Harmon Quartet, the Classics and the Pat Curtis Octet will give a Jazz-Rock show on Aug. 19. The Ernie Gray Sextet and the George Carly Orchestra will perform a Jazz-Popular show on Aug. 26.

The music for this Family Concerts By-The-Sea series is provided by a grant from the Music Performance Trust Funds, Kenneth Raine, trustee. The MPTF is a public service organization created and financed by the recording industries under agreements with the American Federation of Musicians. This grant was obtained with the cooperation of the Norfolk Musicians Association, Local 125, American Federation of Musicians.

There is no admission charge to any of the concerts.

is not one of the assets of the Scorpio.

Venus: Located in the sign of Libra. This is the sign of beauty and the pursuit of balance. Much is spent on dress and appearance.

Mercury: Located in Sagittarius. Giving a free-wheeling outlook to life. Not to be stuck with any ideas, but in search of new theories to explain things.

Mars: Located in Virgo. A powerful sense of order and purity is to be expressed in the life.

Moon: Located in Virgo also. Further intensifies this and often brings about an interest in food fads.

Jupiter: Located in Gemini. Ability to communicate well. Love of travel, and interest in intellectual pursuits.

Saturn: Located in Scorpio. Intensifies the loyalties and often produces a stubborn streak. Lack of flexibility.

Uranus: Located in Cancer. Often produces nervous stomach. It can intensify the sensitivity of the Scorpio.

Neptune: Located in Libra. Produces some unusual taste in dress, art and surroundings. Produces an unusual variety of taste.

Pluto: Located in Leo. Brings a strong sense of the dramatic to the personality. Intensifies the fixity of will which is usually sufficient with the Scorpio.

You have a very good horoscope, and I would recommend that you consider the study of a metaphysical subject.

This will include lectures on Friday evening, August 14th, Saturday afternoon and evening, August 15th and Sunday afternoon August 16th, all open to the public.

Robert Krajenke, author of several books, will talk on Friday at 8 p.m. on the subject, "Stand Like Stars."

Ann (Mrs. Robert) Clapp, a frequent lecturer for the A.R.E., will talk on Saturday at 2:30 p.m. on "From Past to Present." Violet (Mrs. Jackson) Shelley, an A.R.E. editor, will talk on Saturday at 8 p.m. on "Reincarnation: Unescapable."

On Sunday at 3 p.m. Mary Ann Woodward, author of books for the A.R.E., also a member of the Board of Trustees, will talk on "Karma and Grace."

Anti-Pollution Group to Meet

Neighborhoods Against Pollution (NAP) will meet at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 11, at the Kempsville Branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library.

Citizens concerned about combating environmental pollution in the Tidewater area are invited to attend.

A regular business meeting to plan the Fall project is scheduled.

'Woodstock'-a film for and of today's generation

In August of 1969 in the small up-state community of Bethel, New York, some 500,000 young people gathered for what was billed as the Woodstock Music and Art Fair, a festival originally planned to attract about 50,000. The deluge of young people who flocked to the event created what is now known as the Woodstock Nation and provided the impetus for "Woodstock," a documentary film of the three-day rock festival.

Whether director Michael Wadleigh's venture would have been successful had the crowd been considerably diminished will never be known, for much of the impact of the film is centered around the audience's reaction to the music, and necessarily, the reaction of the various groups to the crowd.

Through the use of various cinematic editing devices Wadleigh is able to convey the sheer emotion of being at Woodstock and for the viewer produces a total experience in terms of sound and sights, an experience, unfortunately, that will never be matched again for young people.

For while the West Coast moviemakers realize the financial potential of a film of this nature, it is a one-shot affair. What makes Woodstock so unique is the fact that it's the first of its kind, for it is easily understood that if a film were made of every rock festival of this nature, it would only be a question of whom would go broke first: the audience or the film companies involved in the production.

Only through the good offices of Warner Bros. were Wadleigh and producer Bob Maurer able to put together the needed capital to film the event; in today's tough film markets, why Warner's even decided to fund the project is beyond us.

Nonetheless, the residual effect is that acts such as Crosby, Stills and Nash, John Sebastian, Santana, and Joan Baez, all of whom possess a great amount of musical finesse, have once again been catapulted to prominence.

Whether Wadleigh purposefully edited to create the idea that there were no conflicts and to show that when the need is there, people respond, the fact remains that that's what makes the film the masterpiece that it is.

Two Cadets At Camp

Two Virginia Beach Air Force Cadets attended a U.S. Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps (AFROTC) field training encampment at Dover AFB, Delaware.

They were Gary S. Boyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Boyle of King Christian Road, and Bernard E. Greer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard E. Greer Sr. of Jack Frost Road.

The encampment is designed to familiarize cadets with the life and activities on bases so they can examine career opportunities in which they might wish to serve as officers.

Cadet Boyle is a member of the AFROTC unit at the University of Notre Dame. He is a 1968 graduate of Norfolk Catholic High School where he was a member of the National Honor Society.

Cadet Greer is a member of the AFROTC unit at the University of Georgia. He is a 1968 graduate of Bayside High School and was also a member of the National Honor Society.

16 Schools In Tourney

Girls from 16 of 24 elementary playgrounds participated in the recently held City Wide T-Soccer Tournament sponsored by the Department of Parks and Recreation.

The central title was won by Lynnhaven, northern by Pembroke, southern by Arrowhead and Eastern by Seaback. Arrowhead went on to the finals to beat Lynnhaven by a score of 11 to 8 for the City Wide Championship title.

At the same time, boys from 19 of 24 elementary playgrounds participated in the City Wide 2-Pitch Soccer Tournament sponsored by the Department of Parks and Recreation.

Arrowhead copped the southern title, Bayside the northern, Tranwood the eastern, and Windsor Oaks the central.

Tranwood defeated Bayside in the finals by a score of 4 to 1 for the Championship title.

Sgt. Mims Gets Medal

S/Sgt. Cleophus R. Mims of Virginia Beach, has received the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal at Little Rock AFB, Ark.

Sergeant Mims, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.E. Rhodes, S. Birdneck Rd., distinguished himself by meritorious service as a communications supervisor at Sewart AFB, Tenn.

He is now at Little Rock with a unit of the Air Force Communications Service which provides global communications and air traffic control for the USAF.

The sergeant, a 1956 graduate of Princess Anne High School, has completed a tour of duty in Vietnam.

THE VOICE OF VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA

Rose Hall Opens Branch

Rose Hall, one of Virginia Beach's most unique fashion stores, today opens a branch store in Military Circle, the first of what the managers expect to be several expansions throughout Tidewater.

The same period decor and atmosphere will prevail in the new facility and the stock will provide the latest apparel for women, teen-agers and children.

Rose Hall was opened 15 years ago in a modest 17th century home on Virginia Beach Boulevard by its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Colon A. Studds.

Recorders show that the basement of the building was used as a Federal prison during the Civil War.

After the owners restored the home they decided to open a small and very personal, dress shop. The business grew during the next 13 years at such a rate that two wings were added and the small intimate dress shop blossomed into a full service, but still retaining its personal interest. Rose Hall has now passed on to its second generation of owners. When Mr. and Mrs. Studds retired a few years ago, the store was turned over to their daughter and son-in-law, Mary and Ron Komoroski.

The younger generation of management introduced various lines of clothes for today's young people and expanded the store's clientele.

The sister store at Military Circle will be managed by Joe B. Overfelt, a native of former Princess Anne County. He attended Old Dominion University and joined Rose Hall after working as a sales representative for Gant Shirts and Exps-Fitzgerald Paper Company.

Hospital Officials Explain Conflicts With Blue Cross

City Council was told Tuesday that economics was the reason the General Hospital of Virginia Beach elected to become a non-participating hospital in the Blue Cross-Blue Shield hospitalization insurance plan.

"Blue Cross is not helping the spiraling cost of hospital administration," board member Willard Ashburn Sr. told the informal session. "We can't retire the hospital's obligations on the Blue Cross formula."

Ashburn said that even though a patient may think his insurance company pays the full bill, if he carries a Blue Cross policy it will be discounted according to a complex formula devised by the company.

The fact that Blue Cross was discounting patient billings to 82 1/2 per cent payment thus far in 1970 led the hospital to select non-participating status, he said.

Ashburn said that although he was not positive, he understood that Norfolk General Hospital received about 99 per cent payment on its patient billings to Blue Cross.

What increases the payment rate for Norfolk General is the nursing school, the teaching program and other activities the Virginia Beach hospital cannot carry on.

"We've asked Blue Cross to take into consideration what we're faced with but we haven't heard anything," he said.

Ashburn said the hospital has enjoyed good relations with Blue Cross and that is wasn't the hospital's desire to become a non-participating hospital.

"But we can't retire the bank debt to the local banks unless the hospital gains a higher payment rate from the company," he said.

He said that the hospital will have 247 beds when the new addition is completed in spring of 1971, but that there already exists a need for further expansion with 76 additional beds. "The expansion now is costing $3,610,000, and we were only able to expand because the First and Merchants National Bank and the Virginia National Bank jointly loaned us $2.5 million," he said.

Blue Cross has been asked to see if they could change the formula to include the cost of increasing hospital facilities, he said, but the hospital still hasn't received an answer.

"How can you continue to operate a hospital with a loss of 15 to 18 percent of the patient billings?" Ashburn asked. Ashburn said the city could help the hospital by negotiating a contract with Blue Cross for city employees which would specify 100 per cent payment of the bill.

City Manager Roger M. Scott said that the city was discussing its contracts with Blue Cross, but that several city employees have already lost their hospitalization benefits since the hospital set Aug. 1 as its termination date for participation with Blue Cross.

Several councilmen voiced concern over the fact that other companies pay full billings and private patients are subsidizing Blue Cross patients whose bills are not fully paid.

James Edwards Is Specialist

James Edwards of Virginia Beach has been promoted from senior field claim representative to claim specialist in the Virginia Beach office of the State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co.

A native of North Carolina, he attended high school in Severn, N.C. and received his B.S. degree at Wake Forest University.

Marine Pfc. David A. G. Beshahen Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David G.A. Beshahen Sr. of Hermitage Road, is serving with the Seventh Engineer Battalion, First Marine Division, in Vietnam.

SEEK INDUSTRY -- John B. Baines (left) and Clinton W. Shanks begin review of a newly composed file of some 1500 business and industrial prospects for possible location in the City of Virginia Beach. Baines and Shanks are chairman and vice chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's "Committee of 100", which is comprised of local business men who plan on personal contacts with firms in 30 states in hopes of attracting them to establish operations here. The most promising of the prospects will be referred to the City's Department of Economic Development.

Johnson Appointed

City Manager Roger M. Scott Tuesday announced that Ennis O. Johnson, 31, has been selected as the city's acting highway engineer, replacing Arthur Christian, who has accepted an executive position with the Terry Corporation.

Johnson, who was the city surveyor, served with the state highway department for a year before joining the city in 1963. Prior to that time, he served with the Army Corps of Engineers for over three years.

He graduated from Norview High School in 1957, and has attended the College of William and Mary and the Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Johnson lives with his wife, the former Phyllis Weeds, and their 11-year-old daughter, in the 1100 block of Glenside Drive.

Directory Delivered

Albin R. Mailhes, executive vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce has announced that the new, 1970 edition of the Virginia Beach City Directory has just been released and is now being delivered to subscribers.

The Directory, Mailhes said, contains a wealth of factual information that is almost indispensable to business and professional people. It provides a record of every adult resident and business concern in Virginia Beach. This information, explained Mailhes, is valuable in verifying information, contacting customers, locating sources of supply, improving collections and planning delivery routes.

The Directory is unique in that it is actually several directories in one volume. The introduction explains in detail the sections of the book and is followed by an illustrated, statistical and historical story of Virginia Beach.

The Buyer's Guide and Classified Business Directory is followed by the Alphabetical Directory containing 59,744 listings of business concerns and private citizens. Next is the Street and Avenue Guide including telephone numbers, home owner symbols and Zip Codes followed by the Numerical Telephone Directory. This section lists telephone subscribers by numerical progression, which helps to identify an anonymous caller when only the telephone number is given.

The Directory, published by Hill Directory Company of Richmond, is a record of Virginia Beach and its growth and progress, Mailhes said.

Contributions Lag

Businessmen of Virginia Beach Borough are being urged to send their donations to the Beach Borough fire department as soon as possible.

Department Chief E. B. Bayne says the department is running about $1,200 short of anticipated returns from the unit's annual fund raising campaign. Bayne indicates that material concerning the campaign was distributed during July, and that no response has been received as yet from many of them.

Although the Beach Borough Fire Department is classified as the city's only "paid" department, the department also contains a large number of volunteers--men who devote their free time to responding to fire alarms in the borough at all hours of the day and night.

The annual fund raising drive is the primary means these men have of raising money to purchase their uniforms and equipment necessary in their protection of borough residents in times of emergencies.

In the event that someone may wish to make a contribution to the department and have not as yet been contacted they may obtain further information on the procedure to follow regarding donations by contacting the department at 428-2363.

The girl in the picture is named Chris. For over a year, she was on amphetamines, powerful drugs known as "speed." This is how she describes it:

"I think 'speed' is a lot worse than heroin. Kids have got to know about it, because they can fall so easily into taking it through the diet pill hassle, or needing something to help them study. You know, that's crazy. Because the combination of amphetamines and no sleep just blows your memory completely. There are whole sections of my life which I just can't remember. It got to be just 'do a little more, do a little more,' until that was all there was. And the 'crashing'... sometimes the 'crashing' is just really awful!"

"For me to stop taking it, I had to feel that people were caring. And they were. I was really lucky. I was very close to two people that were really into amphetamines very deeply, and I loved them a lot. But as far as they were concerned, the only thing that they had was the 'meth,' and that was their life. And they're both dead now."

"Dexies," "bennies," "meth" are all called "speed" these days. And people who know "speed" know "speed" kills!

Youth Should Rally

Young people today stay 'under fire', so to speak, by the over-30 group for reasons ranging from the length of their hair, to their total lack of responsibility, to just plain laziness.

There are a few bad apples in every barrel, in all age groups, but there are thousands of fine young people in Virginia Beach who quietly work behind the scenes for their community. These youngsters seldom receive recognition. Only the 'bad apples' are recognized and youth as a whole is dropped into the same barrel with them.

A few weeks ago a group of young people gathered together to paint bricks for the Virginia Beach Little Theatre. Their intention was to raise money for the proposed theatre building. They may not swell the building fund to tremendous proportions but they tried, and they worked hard for something they believe the city should have.

Another young group formed the Virginia Beach Bicycle Association and last Saturday sponsored the first bicycle rallies. Their reason for being was to bring young people with a common interest together and "give them something to do". Here again, the first efforts may not have produced startling results, but it was a start and the intention is surely worthwhile.

The Virginia Surfing Association, comprised mostly of the '30ish and under' group, has worked diligently this summer, even as a new organization, to upgrade the surfing conditions for the young people. They have stressed cleanliness on the beaches, safety in the sport, and, in general, have demanded that the young surfers be responsible for their actions.

There are young people working behind the scenes all over the city...candy-strippers in the hospital, Youth Corps volunteers, nursing home aids, Volunteer Services workers, many who help other in various ways. Teen-agers have been seen, and publicly commended for, taking their time and effort to pick up debris on the beach and neatly stacking it for pickup.

Tonight the Optimist Club will sponsor a rally at First Colonial High School in an effort to get the young people involved in supporting the Boys Club. This proposed facility will be a community center for the youth, a place of their own which will offer a variety of activities.

This rally will be open to all the young people in the city. It is hoped that they will turn out in support of the Boys Club. It is one visible way they can show the 'over 30' citizens that the youth of today is responsible, they are concerned, and they do get involved. When they turn a helping hand for a worthy cause, it won't matter about their hair length or whether or not they wear a suit or jeans. Their efforts will be appreciated.

Clinic Without Support

Scarcely a week goes by during the summer months that Virginia Beach does not suffer the loss of life from water sports. It is the saddest of all tragedies because it could usually be prevented if the victims, or even standers-by had received proper water safety instruction.

Last Saturday a group of safety-minded residents offered such instruction, free of charge, to all persons who engage or are interested in water sports. Less than 100 people showed up during the day-long clinic. Only four boat owners took advantage of the offer.

When a group of citizens make a concerted effort to benefit their community they deserve support and recognition of their efforts. When this effort could save a life, they deserve more support.

It is unfortunate that the citizens of Virginia Beach are so secure in their knowledge of water safety that they deemed it unnecessary to participate in the Safe Boating Clinic. Such confidence causes death, whether by drowning while swimming or water skiing or through boating mishaps.

Virginia Beach is blessed with one of the finest beaches in this country and some of the finest waterways on the East Coast. But water, in all its beauty, can be treacherous and Man is at its mercy unless he approaches it with respect. Youngsters, so often the victims of this treachery, do not have a clear understanding of what is expected of them, of what can be expected of water. These young citizens, of all people, should have been at the Narrows Saturday. But they weren't.

This clinic was sponsored by the Police Department, U.S. Coast Guard and its Auxiliary, the Beach Borough Rescue Squad, the local Power Squadron, American Red Cross and Inland Fish and Wildlife Reserve.

It was a commendable undertaking. They did a fine job. But it won't comfort them, or the family of a victim, the next time the city suffers another drowning.

At Lake Wright

'Fantisticks' Name of Play; Fantastic Is Its Production

The Lake Wright Dinner Theatre has brought a bit of fresh, relaxing and thoroughly enjoyable entertainment to the local scene with its presentation of the Broadway musical "The Fantasticks".

The play is an exceptional piece of work to begin with...a musical with no sets, little costuming and a less-than-usual plot. It is the simplicity of it that makes it memorable. When done as a full blown stage production, as attempted several seasons ago on television, it is flat and dull and uninspired.

The new staging at the Lake Wright, however, is most conducive to this type play and it was the intimacy of the small stage and audience presence that brought the play, and the cast, to life.

At times during the play the cast moves among the audience, singing from off stage, even joining in duets across the room. It not only adds to the intimacy of the production, it demands control from the singers and musicians to the point of professionalism. And, with only minor exceptions, they meet this challenge...despite the fact that only two actually have trained voices.

The music from "The Fantasticks" is difficult and complicated and, other than "Try To Remember", is not overly familiar to the general audience. But it weaves the plot of the play and the cast handles the numbers quite well.

The play is divided into two acts; the first follows the untarnished love of two young people in the romantic moonlight, the second tests this love in the realities of life under a glaring sun. One almost wishes the play could end at intermission, without subjecting the young lovers to the cruelties of life. But then, the play would not complete its message of "love conquers all".

Lynne Nelson and Dennis Stephens are very touching as the young lovers. Lynne has a beautiful voice and this role, more than any other she has done, allows her the range she is so capable of. Stephens is less accomplished but his voice is pleasant and his sincere approach to the role more than makes up for what vocal weakness he might have.

Mac McManus, as El Gallo, the bandit-narrator, has one of his most challenging roles to date but he comes through with flying colors. He does not portray El Gallo in the character's usual dashing, debonaire manner but rather as a man sometimes soft, sometimes cruel, always strong. It is a good portrayal. Much of the tenderness of the play, surprisingly enough, rests with the fathers of the two lovers, David Long, the girl's father, and John Chester, the boy's, do an exceptional job, both in singing and acting. Chester takes the vocal lead among the men in the cast but Long holds his own in their numbers together. Their musical discussion of the generation gap is especially enjoyable.

Some side-splitting fun hits the stage when Rola Nuckles, as an aging Shakespearean actor, and B. Dent, as his quick-witted Indian friend emerge from a box -- literally -- to add to the plot. Here again, the interpretation of the roles are a bit different, but Nuckles and Dent make it sheer fun all the way.

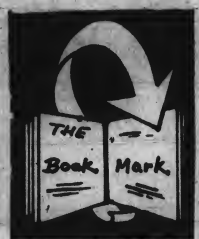

Director Tim Jones has, in fact, allowed, perhaps encouraged, a few liberties with the parts and in so doing has given the play a flair local audiences will enjoy.

The one role that must be seen to truly be appreciated is that of the mute who, through her own graceful actions, becomes the sets, the props and actually weaves the plot into being. This responsibility falls on the slight shoulders of Margaret Lumford, a wisp of a girl of great talent. Her contribution enhances every portrayal, every scene, of the play.

With a production as fine as this there are, of course, many hard working talents behind the scenes...the musical direction of Althea Waites, the choreography of Port Porter, the lighting by Deborah Nesd...and many others.

To them, to the cast, to all of the Lake Wright staff goes a word of sincere praise; "you've done a good job, 'The Fantasticks' is a winner."

MAX JAMISON, by Wilfrid Sheed, New York, Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 1970.

Max Jamison, super-critic of Broadway productions for a national newsweekly and reviewer of films for a literary magazine, is the non-hero of Wilfrid Sheed's new novel.

"Jamison has this rigid quality, sometimes known as integrity, sometimes known simply as 'this rigid quality,' and thereby hangs the tale. Like an actor never out of character, Max carries the responsibility of his profession into every facet of his life. He is critical of his wife, her lover, his children, and the coterie of professional colleagues. He is equally critical of his own talents as a husband, father, writer and lover. This relentless criticism causes even the super-critic a breakdown. Happily, the malaise crystallizes his real needs, and the denouement is surprising. Wilfrid Sheed has written the novel with a quality he attributes to Max -- 'he...believes that value. He believes that something said amusingly has more force than something said plainly.' The entire novel is peppered with asstringent wit.

MEN AND CHILDREN FIRST

Once upon a time the men outnumbered the women and all men were taught to give special consideration to the weaker sex--the lovely ladies.

Things are changing now. Scientists are taking another look at the 'weaker sex' and they are thinking this applies to men rather than women.

In fact, a medical research scientist in Sacramento, Calif., Dr. Carl E. Burkland, recently predicted the United States may become a matriarchy -- a nation dominated by elderly women.

Dr. Burkland says: "This is the era of the vanishing male and this can only mean social, economical and emotional problems in the years ahead."

All this just might come about, according to the good Doctor, unless some way is found to bolster male resistance to disease, accidents and suicide.

Things don't look so good for us men. We might go the way of the buffalo and wind up in the happy hunting ground.

The doctor didn't go into too much detail about how long all this will take. It must not be in the immediate future or our glorious leaders in that model city of brotherly love (Washington) would be holding hearings on the matter.

What a thing that would be--a Senate hearing on how to save the males. The TV ratings would no doubt be the highest on record. It would be interesting to know which of our nation's leaders would be for saving the males and which would be for letting them go--wherever men go.

For years it has been said that a politician can be against anything but motherhood and for everything but sin and still get elected. What would happen to a politician who was against men? What kind of legislation would congress come up with? How would the government finance a program to save men? What would they call the new program?

They have all sorts of agencies now. A new one to save the vanishing male would be much of a shocker. How does this sound: "THE FEDERAL MALE COMMISSION," or "WAR ON MATRIARCHY DEPARTMENT," I expect they could come up with a nice name.

Come to think about it, if the male is vanishing, who is going to pay for the efforts to save him? Men pay most of the taxes and make most of the money. Did you ever try to get money out of the Little Woman?

This might be a good chance to come up with a new tax. We have all sorts of taxes on all sorts of things. A new one would hardly be noticed. We could have a FEMALE TAX.

We could tax all the ladies for being ladies. The funds raised could be used to save the males. If we made the tax high enough, the ladies would have to go out and get a job, work long hours, have all the problems most men face today and the first thing you know, we might have things back in balance.

If the matter is as serious as Dr. Burkland would have us believe, we better do something. If the trend continues and the women become the majority we might find many changes in store.

The ladies tend to stick together, or so I have been told. They might start their own political party and take over the government. They would wind up owning most of the business in the country and take over management.

This kind of shakes me up. It makes me feel sad. Just think I might be vanishing at this very minute. I might be part of a lost sex.

One bright thought, as a member of the weaker sex, I think I should have women open doors for men, give me their seat on the bus and hold my hand when I cross a street.

If I don't vanish too fast it might not be too bad. Just one thing, I don't mind my lovely wife treating me better and helping prolong my vanishing but I hope she doesn't over do it. It might scare me into an even earlier grave.

If they call on me to testify at a congressional hearing I can solve the problem. I suggest the old Indian custom of burying the wife when the male dies. This would keep everything in balance and sure do wonders for the way women treat men.

Parents Agree On

Too Little Activity

One of the interesting things about running this Sun Survey column each week is the unusual response it generates from various age groups.

Last week's question concerned young people: "Is there enough constructive activity provided for the young people in Virginia Beach?"

It was, of course, anticipated that the young people would take the opportunity to let their feelings be known via this column. The young people, however, did not respond. Some of the questionnaires may have been checked by the youngsters but they did not indicate their age.

The 'over 30' group did respond...100 percent agreeable that there is not enough activity for the youth in this city. That should surprise a few youngsters who think their parents don't understand them.

One man, who stated on the questionnaire that his age is 46, said "surfing seems to be the one area in which something could be done that would meet the needs and be supported by youth. The recreational program is excellent but is limited by a shortage of playgrounds, ball fields and parks. Time and space is running out. Action must be taken now."

The man signed the questionnaire but since it is the policy to use only signed letters to the editor, his name cannot be used.

If local residents have seen a blur of screaming red, white and blue flashing by an intersection, they need not change their glasses or sign into the hospital. It's only a fire truck. The Beach Borough Fire department presently has out on trial a truck painted in the design and colors of the American flag. It is the only one in the country with this particular paint job.

The city is contemplating the purchase of the truck. Certainly it would be an attention-getter and a conversation piece with visitors to the city.

But red, white and blue -- especially with stars and stripes -- has become a controversial combination of colors these days when not restricted to the American flag.

Virginia Beach citizens are given a chance to voice their opinion through this week's Sun Survey. Speak now or forever hold your peace because City Council must decide by next week.

QUESTION: City Council is contemplating buying a fire truck for the Beach Borough Fire Department painted in the design and color of the American flag. Do you favor such a purchase?

Your comments and signed letters would be appreciated also.

Wood Selected For U. of Va. Program

Research projects ranging from the pressure-flow-resistance relationship in coronary arteries to an examination of factors contributing to drug-delinquency in the adolescent and young adult are keeping 34 University of Virginia School of medicine students busy this summer.

Among the group is Terry Wood of Virginia Beach. He and the other students are working on basic research projects they initiated as part of the medical school's Student Research Fellowship Program.

Their fields of interest range from biochemistry to neurosurgery to psychiatry to prevention medicine.

Some students are involved in highly technical laboratory work—such as determining the sensitivity of the carotid body cells to oxygen or the etiology of acute respiratory symptoms and drug action on rhinovirus (the common cold virus)—while others are interviewing patients to try to evaluate personality patterns in patients with lung cancer.

The program is funded by the National Institutes of Health, the Virginia Division of the American Cancer Society, private foundations and individual sponsors of faculty members sponsoring the research projects.

"The program is designed to acquaint students with research projects so that they actually have first-hand experience in conducting medical research," says Dr. Allan M. Lefer, associate professor of physiology.

"We want to train the broadest spectrum of physicians. Those who have research training can appreciate and better evaluate new developments in their field of specialty," he says.

Students are required to prepare their research findings in a form suitable for publication, and in the past, many have been published, says Dr. Lefer.

Youth To Sponsor Crusade

A youth-led evangelistic crusade sponsored by the Young People of First Colonial Baptist Church on First Colonial Road will begin Aug. 10 and continue through Aug. 16. Services will be held nightly at 7:30.

The Radiant Tidings of Charlotte, N.C. will lead the crusade. The team is composed of five college students who attend Carson - Newman College in Jefferson City, Tenn.

The Radiant Tidings have been holding crusades throughout the South during the summers of 1969 and 1970 and have been received warmly by young people and adults as well. Along with services at night at First Colonial, the team will be visiting and witnessing in the city and at the beach.

Their purpose in the Young People's outreach for Christ is "to proclaim to all people the radiant message of Christ so they can know 'the way', the truth and the life, and to share with others the joy and peace that we have experienced as Christians."

The public is invited to visit First Colonial Baptist Church and participate in the program.

School Bonds Sold

City Council, meeting in a special formal session, Tuesday approved the sale of $4.75 million in school bonds to the Virginia Beach Public School Authority at a 5.75 per cent interest rate after two previously unsuccessful attempts at sale.

The authority in turn sold the bonds to the United Virginia Bank at 5.67 per cent interest. United Virginia was the lowest of the four bidders on the bonds; the highest rate offered was 5.83 per cent.

The .08 per cent difference in rates is payment to the authority by the city for acting as a broker for the sale.

The sale of the bonds had been postponed twice before due to unfavorable bond market conditions.

In other action during the special session, Council:

- * Approved a resolution making it possible for residents in flood prone areas to receive federally assisted - flood insurance through private insurance companies under the Flood Assistance Act of 1968.

- * Approved the appointment of James Barlett as a city representative to the area-wide United Drug Abuse Commission, replacing the Rev. John Jordan, who resigned in July.

- * Approved a resolution empowering the city attorney's office to intervene in severe nuisance cases by the County and Kempsville Utility corporations before the State Corporation Commission No. 9 and 10 in Richmond.

Workshops Are 'Firsts'

The Frank W. Cox High Leadership Workshop and Orientation Workshop is being held in Pocahontas State Park Aug. 3-8 and will be held Aug. 10-15 respectively. They are sponsored by the Cox Student Cooperative Association.

The Cox Leadership Workshop is designed to teach the skills and techniques of leadership to the student leaders of Cox. The workshop was initiated in 1967 with 82 delegates and has been held every year since then. It is the only workshop of its type in the country.

This will be the first Orientation Workshop. It is strictly for 8th Graders and is designed to introduce them to the school and its system.

There are 95 delegates attending the Leadership Workshop and 45 participating in the Orientation program. The workshops are co-directed by Miss Emily Tilly, a girl's P.E. teacher and Cox Hockey Coach, and Jerry Deviney, a teacher, coach and Director of Student Activities at Cox.

George Francisco, Cox S.C.A. president, will call the delegates to order. Seventeen Cox alumni will serve as counselors in the program. This year's counselors who will be working with the delegates are: David Bradshaw, a 1970 Cox graduate planning to attend the University of Virginia; Ron Davis, a '68 graduate attending the Merchant Marine Academy; Dianne Derick, a '69 graduate attending Longworth; Terre Ittner, a '68 graduate attending East Carolina; Pat Haggerty, '69 graduate who attends the University of Virginia; Carol Hall, a '70 graduate who plans to attend Old Dominion University; Hugh Himmelman, a '69 Cox graduate attending U.Va. Lois Lumsden, '70 graduate planning to attend Virginia Commonwealth University; Tim Monahan, a '67 Cox graduate attending South Carolina; Claire Newbern, '70 graduate planning to attend O.D.U.; Alex Newton, '67 graduate who attends Duke; Bill Newton, '69 graduate who attends O.D.U.; Pat Morris, '68 graduate attending Madison; Fenton Priest, '70 graduate attending U.Va.; Pat Sanderlin, a '70 graduate planning to attend William and Mary; Bob Scholtz, '70 graduate who plans to attend Duke and Maury Williams who is a 1970 graduate planning to attend Mary Washington.

The goals and general objectives of Workshop are to promote unity and harmony among the leaders, bring about an overall improvement, help inspire responsibility, develop a philosophy of leadership and provide a high quality of leadership for selected students from all areas of student life.

The specific desired results of leadership are taught to the delegates through a series of classes. The fundamentals of Parliamentary Procedure, policies and procedures of the ICC of Cox, the school and Virginia Beach School Board are taught. Delegates are exposed to techniques including group dynamics, different types of projects and problems in carrying them out and techniques in improving present organization's efficiency and interest.

The delegates attending workshop leave Cox for Pocahontas State Park facing a challenge and return to Cox with the knowledge that others have faith in them and place responsibility in their hands.

A home modernizing plan for people who hate to give up a beautiful 5½% mortgage.

The home you bought five or ten years ago may not be the carefree, modern beauty you'd like to buy today. Maybe the kitchen doesn't have all those up-to-date conveniences. And it doesn't have a paneled family room (which you didn't need then because you didn't have a lot of family). And the laundry room is two floors away from the laundry. And there aren't enough bedrooms.

But there is one thing about your home that looks more beautiful every year. The old mortgage.

It may have cost you around 5½%. A bargain compared to today's high mortgage rates.

How to move up without moving out.

If you've decided that this just isn't the time to buy your dream home, at least you can make the most of what you've got. With a plan that creates new space within old walls. That makes adding space easier.

Modernizing with electric heat. Consider, for example, your old furnace and fuel tanks. They could be eating up a lot of valuable space that might be turned into a cheerful family room or den.

Perhaps bulky radiators or floor furnaces are taking up valuable space that could be used to make rooms larger. (Aren't uncluttered walls and floors one thing you love about today's new homes?)

Maybe you'd like to add an extra bedroom and bath. But you know your present heating system won't handle the extra load.

Electric heat. The problem solver.

Today's modern electric heating systems can solve all of these space problems. And give you cleaner, safer year-round comfort as well.

Consider all the options available with electric heat. If you want to use existing pipes and ducts, you can change your fuel-burning furnace to a space-saving electric furnace or boiler. No fuel to burn, no fuel tanks, no smoke, no air pollution.

Or you can put a "heat pump" outside to save more space. And enjoy heating and cooling for year-round comfort.

Or you can replace everything—especially bulky radiators and floor furnaces—with modern electric baseboards. And enjoy clean, uncluttered rooms that open up all kinds of decorating possibilities.

Electric baseboards also simplify adding extra rooms—and give you another feature of total electric living: room-by-room temperature control.

With every free Idea Book, a free expert.

If you've read this far, you probably have more questions than answers. Questions about cost, time, insulation, materials, wiring, and other ways to modernize electrically.

We have three ways to give you the answers.

Runaway House Manager Convicted of Violations

James W. Taylor was convicted Friday by Virginia Beach Juvenile Court Judge Kenneth N. Whitehurst, Jr., of two charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors in connection with the operation of the "Runaway House" on 22nd Street.

Judge Whitehurst fined Taylor $75 and court costs and sentenced him to 30 days in jail on one conviction, and fined him $50 and gave him a suspended 30 days jail sentence on the second conviction. Taylor's attorney Fred Quayle immediately noted an appeal of the conviction and Taylor is remaining free on bond pending the outcome of the appeal to Virginia Beach Circuit Court.

Taylor, 22, lists his occupation as counselor and according to police, is manager of the Runaway House. He was arrested by police Juvenile Division Sgt. Douglas G. McCloud and Det. Dennis C. Watson at the dwelling on July 21.

Lt. Henry Capps, head of the Juvenile Division, said Taylor was arrested because he had not adhered to regulations established for operation of the facility. The charges, according to Capps, resulted in Taylor's alleged willful concealment of two 14-year-old girls, one from Norfolk, the other from Virginia Beach, in that while the girls were given refuge in the Runaway House notification of their presence there was not made to the girls' parents or police. The facility had been permitted to operate only with the understanding that either the parents or police would be notified if a youngster sought refuge at the Runaway House. Taylor violated these regulations, Capps said.

A reliable source said that during the trial the two 14-year-old girls involved in the charges filed against Taylor were called as witnesses.

One of the girls testified that when she arrived at the Runaway House and told Taylor she was a runaway and seeking refuge she was told she would be allowed to stay there but would have to use a false name while doing so, and had one suggested to her for her use. She then testified, according to this source, that once she became settled in the House she and Taylor began discussing her problems, and she was told that she was right, her mother was wrong, and that something must be wrong with her mother. She was then given an explanation of the rules and regulations of the house, which included a cutoff and barred the use of drugs and/or alcohol.

The girl further testified, according to the source, that during her stay in the house she had the occasion to ask what "cohabit" meant, and had the word explained to her in a clear concise manner of no uncertain terms by the use of words normally termed obscene.

The girl also testified that she asked what she should do if the police were to come to the Runaway House asking for her and said she was informed the police would be told she was not there.

The 14-year-old testified that she was told she could stay at the Runaway House as long as she wanted to, and that she could "go underground" at least until she was 18 years of age.

The girl testified that during the time she had stayed at the Runaway House no attempt was made to contact her parents or the police. She said however that an attempt was made to arrange an appointment between her and a minister, but that she never kept the appointment. She also testified that during her stay in the Runaway House she heard the free use of profanity in normal conversation.

During the testimony of the second 14-year-old girl involved in the charges, she stated that when she arrived at the Runaway House she was advised by Taylor that she could use a false name for identification and that she had nothing to worry about from the police because the Runaway House was protected by doctors, lawyers, ministers, and priests.

The girl also testified that she was never questioned as to the location of her home, and that no attempt was ever made to contact her parents.

Burglary, Possession Is Charged

Michael R. Shaw is facing court proceedings on the charges of burglarizing the offices of three Virginia Beach physicians and possessing a quantity of narcotics and drugs which allegedly stolen during the burglary.

Authorities said Shaw, 23, of Chinquapin Lane, allegedly broke into the offices of Dr. Carlton, Mapp and Devlin on Laskin Road last Wednesday night.

Officials said he was arrested last Thursday morning in a laundromat in the 600 block of Piney Branch Drive on the charges of possession of narcotics and possession of dangerous drugs.

At the time of his arrest Shaw reportedly had in his possession a large cardboard carton which contained a quantity of morphine, classified as a narcotic, as well as a quantity of seconal, talwin, donatel and eskarol, which are classified as dangerous drugs. Shaw also reportedly had a number of syringes, of the type used in the administering of drugs, in his possession.

Officials said that if the drugs and narcotics confiscated had been sold on the local drug market, they would have had a street sale value near $1,500.

Gil Davis of Ferebee Drive, North Alanton, caught his first citation fish last week, a 17-pound blue fish measuring 38 inches in length and 18 1/2 inches in girth. He was aboard A.C. Johnson's boat Billy-Ann-B-III when the fish was landed at the Chesapeake Light. Three-year-old Patrick Davis seems a little less enthused than his father.

Tall Fish Tales

Ricky Remington of Virginia Beach (left) is congratulated by Mayor Frank Dusch on landing this 212-pound Blue Marlin. Ricky, 13, made his catch after a 50 minute battle with the bill-fish, which measured 9 feet 4 inches in length and had a 45 inch girth, while fishing from the "Judy-B-2" in the region of "the clog" about 55 miles s.e. of Rudee Inlet. Mayor Dusch presented Ricky with a tie-clasp bearing a replica of the Virginia Beach seal in honor of his achievement. The catch also gave Ricky the honor of catching the third, and largest, Blue Marlin ever landed on a charter boat out of Rudee Inlet. The largest fish Ricky had ever caught was a 14 pound blue fish. He is having the Blue Marlin mounted.

Squadrons Return From Med

Pilots and planes of Attack Carrier Air Wing Six (CVW-6), with Fighter Squadrons Forty One and Eighty Four (VF-41 and VF-44), and Attack Squadron One Hundred Seventy Six (VA-176) returned to NAS Oceana Sunday, July 26th, after a seven-month deployment to the Mediterranean. The air wing was deployed in the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt (CVA-42), on Jan. 2, 1970.

CVW-6 commanded by Capt. Thomas S. Rogers, Jr., participated in combined exercises with the French and Spanish armed forces. Cmdr. Bill Loft, commanding officer of VF-41, hosted a colonel in the Greek Air Force for a day aboard ship. Cmdr. Jack Davis, skipper of VA-176, participated in a flight demonstration for the Italian general staff.

Betz Is Appointed

Senior Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr., has appointed Thomas F. Betz, Jr., of the law firm of Owen, Guy, Rhodes, and Betz, as judge of the Virginia Beach Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court.

Betz, who has served as associate judge of the court since Feb. 6, was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Judge Philip L. Russo who resigned from the position to accept an appointment as Judge of Circuit Court. The term was scheduled to expire Dec. 31. Betz has served as acting judge of Juvenile Court since Russo's resignation.

Judge Wahab has also appointed former Del. Kenneth N. Whitehurst, Jr., as associate judge of Juvenile Court. Whitehurst has been acting in this capacity since the resignation of Russo.

In making the appointments Judge Wahab pointed out that both Betz and Whitehurst would serve the court on a part-time basis, and that he is still striving to appoint a full-time judge for the court.

The full-time appointment reportedly had been offered to both Betz and Whitehurst. However, they were unable to accept the appointment.

Fox-Sadler Co. Wins Contract

Fox-Sadler Company of Virginia Beach has been awarded a $1,018,212 Navy contract, according to First District Representative Thomas N. Downing.

The award, made by the Navy's Facility Engineering Command, is for the construction of new bachelor quarters at the Fleet Anti-Warfare Training Center at Dam Neck.

During the 1970-71 academic year, enrollment in Virginia's community colleges is expected to reach 36,000.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh
Virginia Beach will be well represented during the next year in the Virginia State Fraternal Order of Police, Elections which were held during the organization's conventional Charlottesville, Va., last weekend resulted in the election of Sgt. D.G. McCloud as State Guard and Sgt. E.L. Jackson as member of the State F.O.P. Board of Directors. Mrs. Mildred Border, who is the immediate past president of the Ladies Auxiliary of Princess Anne F.O.P. Lodge #8, was also elected to the office of State Guard in the State F.O.P. Ladies Auxiliary.

Melinda Bramley, who has served in the position of offense clerk in the Communications Section of the City's police department, this week was promoted to the position of Dispatcher. Her former position will be filled by June Clark who entered the department this past week.

City Fire Investigator W. H. Cartwright is acquiring quite a reputation of having a "green thumb" and the ability to make things grow. Cartwright has been raising tomatoes in his garden at home with unusually good luck. Cartwright says his pride and joy is a 2 pound 4 ounce tomato, measuring 18 inches in circumference, which came out of the garden.

Several Virginia Beach photographers won top awards at the 72nd Annual Convention of the Virginia Professional Photographers' Association in Roanoke recently.

The were Mrs. Barbara

Kerlee, best hand colored photograph; and Mrs. Irene Smith, trophy for best coloring of a selected photograph.

Mrs. Smith was also given a Fellowship of Photography Degree.

John H. Smith received an Associate Fellow of Photography Degree. Smith also was elected treasurer of the VPPA.

The group selected Williamsburg as the site for their 1971 convention.

Sisters Escape Burning Home

Two young sisters managed to escape to safety as fire engulfed their Princess Anne Plaza home, in the 200 block of Stancliff Street, last Monday afternoon.

Becky Byers, 15, said she was in the den of the split-level home watching television when she reportedly heard "popping noises" coming from the garage adjacent to the den. When she opened a door leading into the garage she was faced with a wall of flames and intense heat. She slammed the door and raced from the home.

Her 14-year-old sister, Terry, was in the upper floor living room of the home at the time.

She said she heard the same noises and went downstairs to investigate in time to follow her sister from the residence.

Volunteers from the Plaza and Thalia fire departments were involved for some two hours in extinguishing the flames. An investigation is under way to determine the cause of the fire which resulted in heavy damage to the dwelling.

The girls are the daughters of the Dow F. Byers, and were alone in the house at the time.

22 months in Europe

She took chance and got job

By CAROLYN McALLEN

Although her apartment-mates wanted to come home from Switzerland to get peanut butter, Gall Ansell wanted seafood.

Gall, a dental hygienist, returned in May from 22 months in Switzerland where she worked under a unique exchange program. It seems that although there is a demand for dental hygienists in Switzerland, there are not yet any schools to train them, so American and Canadian hygienists are "imported."

Gall answered an advertisement she saw in a dental hygiene magazine. It had arrived late, so she cabled the dentist in Switzerland of her interest. She received a letter in return that there were 14 other applicants. Although she had no hopes of being selected, she mailed her credentials—then got the appointment.

Her contract was for a year, with her fare from New York to Zurich paid. The salary was set in advance and a place provided to stay. She also received three weeks vacation each year.

"Breaking all my ties here was worse than making the trip," quipped Miss Ansell. "I had six weeks to get ready. I sold my car, got rid of my apartment and went to Florida to my sister's wedding."

When she arrived in Zurich, Gall took an apartment with three other young American women. "That's another reason it was easy to adjust."

She said that housing in Switzerland is expensive. The four paid $250 for a four-bedroom apartment "furnished in early junk." But their salaries, she said, were half of what they are in the United States.

Three main languages are spoken in Switzerland—Italian, French and German—and Gall was in the German section. "I didn't speak any German when I left here," Gall admitted. "I took private lessons for 14 months. By the time I left I could carry on a pretty good conversation."

Television also helped her learn German. "It's funny to watch Bonanza in German." She added that television was received by cable with good reception. Commercial ads are shown only between programs. "You can see a whole movie without interruption."

The girls took every chance they could to travel. A highlight of their trips was a camping tour through Russia.

"I was scared most of the time I was there," said Gall. "Some of the people spoke English. They were curious to know what the U.S. is really like. The border area is heavily guarded. And the six-foot-wide mined area is really there."

"They were very strict about where you took pictures, and there were definite roads you were allowed to go on. We were pretty much on our own, but reservations (at camping areas) had to be confirmed in advance. We took food with us."

"We visited a Russian super market, though. A woman sat there with an abacus and people told her what they wanted. Then you paid her. In return you got a slip of paper which you took to a clerk and he filled order."

"We're spoiled," she added. "I couldn't buy any of their meat no matter what!"

She said that the camping areas were up to date and that most had cooking facilities and showers. However, they charged extra to take a shower.

Gall, who specializes in periodontics or treatment of the areas surrounding the teeth, said that the Americans became "sort of a family. Not only were we teaching we were learning. There were seminars for us at the dental school every couple months." She pointed out the success of the exchange program by saying that there four "imported" dental hygienists the first year and 35 when she left. She added that she thought the Swiss would have their own school in the next three or four years.

Another thing that impressed Gall was that "Europeans were so aware of what's going on here (the U.S.). When Apollo 11 went off my patients came in and congratulated me as though I were personally responsible." She added that the Swiss are opposed to the Vietnam War.

The awareness of the Europeans rubbed off on Gall too. She said she is much more up to date on current events than ever before. She added that in Switzerland they read copies of the New York Herald-Tribune, Washington Post and New York Times. "I read all about the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel being hit. And I saw that Dr. Holland (Dr. Jerome Holland, formerly president of Hampton Institute) had been appointed ambassador to Sweden. He's a former patient of mine."

Gall said that contrary to popular belief, all Swiss do not ski. Gall, however, learned while she was there. "On a clear day you could see the Alps from Zurich. Skiing was within an hour by bus or train." Although it doesn't get as hot in Switzerland, many days the temperature reached the low 80's. "Of course, in the higher altitudes it gets really cold."

Women in Switzerland are still paid less than men. And they are not allowed to vote in federal elections although they can vote on local matters in some districts.

She praised the cleanliness of Switzerland—not only the country but also the restaurants. "You always got a tremendous amount of food. We never found a restaurant in Switzerland that wasn't clean and good. There were a lot of starches, though," she added as an afterthought.

The foods were different too. They eat a lot of veal, pork and chicken in Switzerland. "A good steak would run as much as it does here, and considering our salaries were less, steak was quite expensive. Seafood was different. I didn't like it. I was dying to come home and get seafood. Some of the girls had a real craving for peanut butter and Tootsie rolls. A little jar of peanut butter cost about a dollar. One thing you learned was that you could get along without a lot of things you thought you couldn't."

"You were expected to tip everywhere in Switzerland. In most of the countries the tip was added to the bill. The Swiss waitresses wore a little pouch, and they came and stood beside the table with the pouch open," (See "Chance" p. 8)

A TOTAL OF 150 YEARS—Mr. and Mrs. Hersherberger, left, received congratulations from Mr. and Mrs. Smith, center, and Mr. and Mrs. Diggs, who had both celebrated their 50th anniversary in June.

Apple was bait for marriage

How does a young man in a strange city go about meeting a young woman who has attracted his attention?

Well, C.L. Hersherberger, Sr. placed an apple on her desk while she was out to lunch. That was 52 years ago, and Sunday the Hersherbergers celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception at Thalia United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Hersherberger said she asked everyone at the company in South Norfolk where they were both working, but no one would admit leaving the apple for her. She eventually found out, however, and they dated for two years before marrying on Aug. 4, 1920. All but two of the original wedding party attended Sunday's reception. When the Hersherbergers renewed their vows before Rev. Dickerson Taylor of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, the grandchildren and the Hersherbergers' brothers and sisters formed a ring around them. Members of the original wedding party were Mrs. Victor Branch, organist; Mrs. C.E. Berry, maid of honor, and George Hogan, ring bearer.

Miss Cynthia Hersherberger, a granddaughter, sang several numbers accompanied on the piano by her mother, Mrs. C.L. Hersherberger, Jr.

The Hersherbergers have a son, C.L. Hersherberger, Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. C.E. Edwards, nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Guests at the reception were presented miniature orchids, flown from Hawaii, a gift from a niece, Mrs. E.J. Driscoll, Jr.

Wishing the Hersherbergers well on their anniversary were two other couples who have recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversaries: Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Diggs of Virginia Beach on June 19 and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith of Fairfax on June 20.

"We're working on our second 50," quipped Mr. Diggs.

The Hersherbergers, who live on Hersheridge Road, remain active though he is retired. Mrs. Hersherberger, a former president of the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs, Inc., is active in the Little Neck Garden Club and Lynnhaven African Violet Society. Mr. Hersherberger, according to his wife, "works all day but doesn't get paid for it." He likes to work around their large yard and also makes toys for his grandchildren in his shop.

Quilting is not a lost art

Work centers around a quilting frame which is some 125 years old and still going strong.

"I wish I had all the quilts made on this frame," commented Mrs. William A. Green, whose grandmother first owned it. She added that her grandmother had planned to make a quilt for each of her grandchildren. There were five at the time of her death, but she had made seven quilts. Sure enough, there were later two more grandchildren.

The women using the frame this summer are members of the Lynnhaven United Methodist Church Women's Society for Christian Service. They picked making a quilt as their contribution to the bazaar planned Oct. 8 and 9 at the church on Little Neck Road.

"It's quite an undertaking," commented Mrs. Edward A. Dawson.

"But it's fun, people working together," added Mrs. Curtis W. Diggs, hostess for the workshop.

The pattern, called "basket of chips," came from Avon, N.C. The women began piecing together blocks back in March. The actual quilting began last week. There are 20 blocks.

"We decided to make a lightweight quilt because houses have improved heating now," explained Mrs. Green. "This one can be used year around."

Who says the machine age has taken over? They might get an argument from the W.S.C.S. members.

Market reserves spaces

Reservations for the second WOW Flea Market on Oct. 17 at the Twin Drive In Theaters are now being accepted.

Sponsored by the Women of Wesleyan, the flea market is for the benefit of Virginia Wesleyan College.

Just 375 twin autospaces, one for parking and one for display, are available. The double space is rented for $10 and all profits go to the center.

Market hours will be from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The theater will be open for renters at 8:30 a.m., and spaces must be empty by 5 p.m. Oct. 31 has been set as an alternate date in case of inclement weather.

For further information contact Mrs. J. W. Mason, Jr., co-chairman, at 855-8402.

Reservations can be made by contacting Mrs. J.B. Desny, Jr., 5203 Stately Avenue, Norfolk.

Don't do nothin' for nobody

By SUSAN AXELROD

I don't know why people always take me for the good samaritan.

I wonder, sometimes, if it's my honest face. Probably not.

Ace newsman flashes into the office and says to humble me, "When are you going to the drugstore for coffee?"

Me? Coffee? Hadn't thought of it. I've already had my Dr. Pepper for breakfast, never thought of coffee.

This must be his subtle way of asking me to get some for him, I think to myself.

So I collect the cash and head for the door. And lo, an invisible force compels me to ask the Erma Bombeck of the Sun office if she might like something. "Yes," says she. "Bar-b-que potato chips. But you'll have to lend me a dime. I didn't get my allowance today."

That's okay, lady. My beneficence makes Diamond Jim Brady look like a piece of coal.

Then I go into the editor's office, finding Mrs. Hearst swamped beneath mounds of paper work—she's doing her daily deeds with the racing forms.

"Coffee, maybe?" I says to she.

"Maybe a hamburger. Plain. No, make that with everything. No, leave out the onions. Well, I guess onions are alright. No..."

I leave her mumbling...

Next, my golden heart leads me to the radio studio.

The Mouth of the South says, "You say you're going for ice cream?"

"No," I reply. "But I'll get you a cone," sighs I.

And then down the stairs to the front office.

"Oh, please get us some donuts."

What can I say to the starving Armenians?

So with my canvas bag full of pennies, dimes and quarters thrown over my weary shoulder, I round the corner to the friendly drug store.

Alas, alack. It's closed. The roof leaked and they're mopping up the floor.

They're out of bubble gum ice cream.

Finally, after rounding up my "goods" from points unknown in surrounding areas at the cost of two blisters and a near accident, I return to the office, filled with thoughts of my service to the suffering.

But where is everyone?

"Oh," says one, "they all went out to lunch."

And people wonder why I never ask anymore.

Mrs. Frank Adkins, club president, pours a drink for her hostess, Mrs. Jack Gibson as the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club entertained their husbands with an informal social Saturday night at the Gibson's home.

CAROL LEIGH COLLISTER

In July of 1966 when she was scheduled to move to California with her parents, Capt. and Mrs. E.J. Collister, Carol Leigh Collister, then a junior in high school, wasn't too happy about the move. She was dating Michael Quinn Cardwell, a senior at Marshall High School in Vienna, Va., and he was planning to attend college in Virginia for four years.

With a heavy heart, knowing that it would be a long time before she saw Mike again and afraid that time and distance would most certainly bring about disenchantment, Carol moved to California. Two days after they moved in, she would ring her doorbell but Mike!

After graduating from high school we can suspect why Mike chose UCLA for his four years of college. He is now ready to graduate -- with honors in economics -- and will continue for his master's degree at UCLA or Columbia University.

Carol and Mike will be married in Norfolk on Aug. 22.

Although Carol will complete her last year of college after Mike graduates, this time she is taking no chances. Her last year of college will certainly be spent with Mike quite near.

DOROTHY LOUISE BRIDGES

Don't panic if your first date is a catastrophe. Look what happened to Dorothy Louise Bridges for example. She still wonders how David McMillan lived through their first date -- and why he asked her for a second.

In a spotless car, David took Dottie to drive-in movie where they shared a box of popcorn. David dug into the box for a healthy handful and was warned by Dottie not to push too hard because the bottom of the box might come loose. While he was thanking her for reminding him, she reached for a few kernels and wham! Popcorn all over the car. Next, with the movie over, they proceeded to a drive-in restaurant for food, drink and, of course, a little conversation.

David asked Dottie what she thought of the name "Claude" and she promptly answered that she thought the name was rather sissy-fied. David quietly handed her his business card which read, "Claude David McMillan, III"!!! Second faux pas of the evening...

Having been served from David's side of the car, everything was put back on the window tray, David paid the bill, and they drove away with Dottie holding on to the remains of her soft drink. It was a lovely June night, and Dottie decided she no longer needed her window -- down drink for moral support, so she pitched it out David's window. The only problem was...his window was up! Consequently, David was drenched; his window, steering wheel, door and the floor of his spic 'n span car was a sticky mess. Stopping the car, he turned to Dottie and asked, "Are you quite finished now?"

MISS BRIDGES

Dottie was sure this was the bitter end, but the next evening David called her for another date, and they have been dating for five years. Their wedding is scheduled for Aug. 22.

Incidentally, Dottie did get around to asking David why he ever called her again after such a miserable first date and his reply was: "Every time I rolled that window up or down, I thought of you, and I figured that if any girl could do so many things wrong on a first date it would be interesting to find out if it was a habit or an accident. And if it was the latter, she deserved a second chance."

Needless to say, Dottie is glad David gave her that second chance.

Enjoy salads at their peak

Salads play a major role in menus all year around these days. But in spring and summer, when the green returns to its own in nature, they reach the peak of their popularity. It is fitting, then, that salad month should be observed at this time of year. For the celebration, we offer two fresh crisp salads to add zest to your dinners now and be welcome on tables at any time of the year.

The first combines shredded cabbage and carrots with a wise choice of other vegetables. The mixture is chilled three days in a sweet and sour marinade made from a blend of corn oil, vinegar and light corn syrup. The final product is worth the three day wait. It keeps crisp and fresh in the refrigerator for several days.

The second recipe is a lettuce slaw. In it, real mayonnaise is blended with green pepper and other seasonings and the dressing is tossed with shredded crisp iceberg lettuce. The mixture is delicious mounded on thick tomato slices.

- Spring Relish Salad
1 medium head cabbage, finely shredded
2 carrots, coarsely shredded
2 medium cucumbers pared and quartered lengthwise
2 small green peppers, chopped
1 medium onion, minced
1 cup vinegar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup corn oil
1 tsp salt
1/4 tsp pepper
Western Iceberg lettuce

Lightly toss together cabbage, carrots, cucumbers, green pepper and onion in large bowl. Mix together the vinegar, corn syrup, corn oil, salt and pepper; pour over vegetables. Toss lightly until mixed. Cover tightly. Chill at least 3 days before serving, tossing salad once each day. Serve on lettuce wedges or rafts. Makes about 12 servings.

- SPRING RELISH SALAD
LETTUCE SLAW
1/3 cup real mayonnaise
1/4 cup finely chopped green pepper
1 tsp. minced onion
1 tsp. lemon juice
1/2 tsp. sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
Dash pepper
4 cups shredded western iceberg lettuce (1 medium head)
6 thick tomato slices

Combine mayonnaise, green

Spring relish salad adds zest to menus.

pepper, onion, lemon juice, sugar, salt and pepper. Just before serving, toss with shredded lettuce. Mound on thick tomato slices. Makes about 6 servings or 3-1/2 cups slaw.

Northrup-Strickler wedding

Barbara Anne Northrup became the bride of Ned Harding Strickler, Jr. in a double ring ceremony at noon, July 18 at Lynnhaven Colony United Church of Christ with the Rev. Thomas H. Britton officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Chester Northrup of San Diego, Calif.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Harding Strickler, Sr. of Newport News.

The bride, given in marriage by Capt. John N. Bolland, USN (Ret.), wore a short white lace dress over taffeta and a shoulder tip veil with a petal shaped tiara of pearls. Miss Elizabeth Louise Northrup of San Diego, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Carole Anne Walton of Virginia Beach was bridesmaid.

Kenneth Warren Strickler of Newport News was his brother's best man. Thomas David Tuite, a fraternity brother from McLean, Va., was groomsman.

Following a reception at the home of Mrs. Alice B. Walton, the couple left on a wedding trip to Williamsburg. They are now living in Norfolk.

Mrs. Strickler

Mrs. Strickler is a graduate of Old Dominion University where she received a degree in psychology. Mr. Strickler is a junior at ODU majoring in distributive education. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

said Gail. "And you paid per roll you ate. The waitress would ask how many you ate and add it to the bill."

Although her original contract was for a year, Gail enjoyed her work and opportunities to travel so much that she stayed a second year.

Although her apartment had hot water, some in the building did not. In fact, a neighbor used their shower.

Gail took an extra two weeks to come home so she could tour Rome, Paris, Amsterdam and London before returning. And when she did return she was pleasantly surprised to discover that her old job here was open.

And so Gail Ansell has returned to Virginia Beach--at least temporarily.

Decorating on budget explained

A new decorating ideas booklet offering color, fashion and value is available at decorating centers across the nation.

"How to Decorate on a Budget" contains 45 full-color illustrations of the brightest new ways to add color and excitement to the home. Decorating authority Carolyn Bishop, author of the booklet, says, "Color is the quickest and easiest way to transform an ordinary home into a sensational one. Happily, it's also one of the most economical."

The booklet, published by the Paint and Wallpaper Association of America, is the focal point of the decorating products industry's "Decorate on a Budget" campaign. It is available free of charge at thousands of decorating centers, where the latest in wall treatments, floor coverings, window shades and many other decorating products are now being featured.

The first chapter of this colorful booklet shows how the homemaker can scatter color accents throughout the house for under $25. Succeeding chapters illustrate ways to change the total mood of a room for under $50, redecorate the room entirely for under $100, and become even more adventurous for only a little more. A final chapter offers tips and tools to make the job easier.

The booklet's ideas are simple and easily translated to suit the individual homemaker's special likes and needs. Often, more creativity than cash is required, more patience than decorating talent.

Miss Cox

Cox-Conrad engagement

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Cox of Chesapeake Trail announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Sue, to Daniel Arthur Conrad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Conrad, Jr. of Woodhouse Road.

Miss Cox, a graduate of Frank W. Cox High School, will graduate from Mary Washington College in January. She is a member of Chi Beta Phi national science honorary fraternity.

Mr. Conrad is a graduate of Frederick Military Academy and is now a student at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond.

A wedding is planned Jan. 23, 1971 at Virginia Beach Methodist Church.

Mrs. White

Murray-White wedding

Judith Mc Garvey Murray became the bride of John Douglas White in a wedding ceremony at 3 p.m. July 21 in Pasquotank County, N.C.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McGarvey of Edinburgh Drive.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Runion of Mission, Kan.

The bride, a graduate of East Carolina University, teaches at Virginia Beach Junior High

Boredom Biggest Problem Aboard Light Tower

By LES LEHIGH

Six men are waging a continual battle against boredom in virtual isolation while maintaining a constant vigil over weather and sea conditions at the U.S. Coast Guard Chesapeake Light Station located in the Atlantic Ocean 14.5 miles off Virginia Beach.

The primary purpose of the six Coast Guardsmen on duty at the light station is maintenance of the tower's equipment and operating the various gear which serves mariners.

These tasks are presently being performed a crew of Coast Guardsmen comprised of P.O. 1st Class Milton Herring, of Newport News, who is officer in charge of the station; EN 1 William D. Hickman, of Wilmington, N.C.; EN 3 John Filk, of Buffalo, N.Y.; FA Ronald Wright, of Dundalk, Md.; FA Harry Tapley, of Phila., Pa.; and FN David Edson, of Vernon, Vt.

Each of the men have their own individual method of fighting his personal battle against boredom, and varies with their personal background, interests and plans for the future.

Hickman, 31, whose wife and two children reside in Portsmouth, devotes a large portion of his time to the fashioning of small, plastic, scale, models of airplanes of various descriptions. His devotion to the hobby can be attested to by the quantity of airplane models in various stages of completion on small "workbenches" which he has fashioned in his living quarters. He also devotes a good portion of his time to reading and the writing of letters to his family.

Hickman, who is a veteran of 12 years service with the Coast Guard, has been on the tower for four months. He says he volunteered for the duty because he had never served on a light tower before. He, incidentally, has the distinction of being the only member of the light tower crew who can't swim.

Filk, 20, also volunteered for duty on the light tower and has been there seven months. He is single, and says he devotes most of his spare time to reading, playing billiards, and fishing from the light tower. Filk says it is one of the best fishing spots in the Atlantic, but he is handicapped in the lack of live bait.

Wright, 21, is married and his wife Imeleta is living with his parents at his home in Maryland. He wages his fight against boredom by playing solitaire and devoting a large portion of his time to an electronics course in hopes of bettering himself in the Coast Guard. Wright has been on the tower for five months and went on direct assignment. He light-heartedly quips about the assignment by saying that his orders stated simply for him to report to the station but did not indicate how he was to reach his duty post, some 14 miles at sea.

Tapley, 20, also assigned to the tower, has been there since October of last year. He is single and devotes most of his free time to reading. However, a large portion of his time is spent in the galley. He is one of two men who share permanent "chef" duties on a rotating basis.

Herring, who is married and has one son, as well as Edson, who is single, were on leave from the tower at the time of this writing so how they fight boredom remains their secret.

The Coast Guard has outfitted the tower in such a manner as to make life as comfortable as possible for the men including private rooms and a combination dining room recreation area, equipped with lounge chairs, a television set, and billiard table. This still, however, is only a small assistance to the men in willing away the off duty hours.

Boredom is not of such concern to the men during the daytime duty hours, or while taking their turn at "watch". This keeps them busy with hourly checks of the gear on board the station and making the necessary communication checks, gathering weather information, and monitoring radio frequencies established for the use of mariners in case of emergencies. The fight against boredom sets in when they are off duty, and they agree that sometimes it becomes a real problem when they have no activities to keep them busy.

Although the men have a wide variety of books and magazines on hand, they lack the benefit of regular newspaper service and therefore depend on daily television broadcasts to keep them abreast of developments outside their own limited surroundings. The men do however receive frequent deliveries of newspapers on Sundays by an unidentified man, they refer to as "our friendly benefactor from Virginia Beach who makes deliveries by means of his cabin cruiser."

Those assigned to duty on the light station normally receive assignments of 12 months. It is possible, however, for them to extend for another six months of duty. The men operate on rotating schedules of 28 days on the tower, and 13 days on leave. This provides for a crew of four men-on-duty at the tower at all times.

Fresh supplies are taken to the tower every two weeks by a Coast Guard cutter. This also provides transportation to shore for the two men who are beginning another 28 days tour of duty. Most of the supplies are standard Coast Guard issue, with the exception of food. The men are given a subsistence allowance for their food and permitted to purchase what they desire. This provides them with a variety of food to suit their individual likes and dislikes, and is brought to the tower as men return to their duty assignments following leave periods. The men rotate turns at chef duty in preparing meals in a fully equipped galley located in the living area of the structure. Fresh water is supplied to the station on a regular schedule by a buoy tender, and is stored in 13,500 gallon tanks until used. Although the men are virtually isolated on their lonely perch they are not completely cut off from the outside world. The tower is equipped with a helicopter for transportation of men and supplies in the event sea conditions prohibit a cutter from reaching the tower. This also provides for a rapid means of evacuating the men should this become necessary for medical reasons, or in the event they might be endangered by heavy storms or hurricanes.

In medical emergencies the men may receive instructions by direct radio communications with the 5th Coast Guard District Headquarters in Portsmouth, and should a medical evacuation become necessary they can be airlifted to any of the military installations or hospitals in the Tidewater area. The light structure was placed into operation on Sept. 25, 1965 to replace Coast Guard Lightships which served as familiar navigational marks for mariners since 1930.

The tower, built at a cost of $1.5 million, measures more than 400 feet from the bottom of its pilings which extend nearly 200 feet into the ocean floor.

One of the main navigational aids provided by the tower is a flashing beam of light directed from a lighthouse beacon located 117 feet above sea level, which serves as a directional fix for mariners in charting their position at night. The light is visible for a distance of 16 miles, and is clearly visible from the Virginia Beach shoreline.

Another important navigational aid supplied to mariners by the light tower is the transmission of a radio signal which assists mariners in correcting charting their position.

The light tower also plays an important role in assisting mariners during foggy weather through the use of a giant fog-horn affixed to the tower. When weather conditions make visible sighting of the tower virtually impossible, the fog-horn is used to warn of the tower's location as a precaution against its being rammed by ships.

While performing their primary function of service to mariners the men on the tower also assist a number of other agencies outside the Coast Guard. T-1 service is provided in conducting tests of various natures at the light tower by such groups as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Army Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Weather Bureau and the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey Service.

Despite the unusual conditions under which the men live and perform, each of them has a high morale level and agree with Hickman who unhesitatingly says "it is worth it".

NEW CO FOR MAURY NJROTC--Cmdr. R.N. Andresen who retires from 26 years active Naval service, will begin in September to work with the NJROTC at Maury High School. (Official U.S. Navy Photo.)

Military Life Continues

Cmdr. Ronald N. Andresen, USN, retired last Friday after 26 years military service. He began his present tour of active duty in June 1950 after graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

The commander completed flight training at Pensacola, Fla., and was designated a naval aviator in January 1952. He flew combat operations over Korea while with Fighter Squadron 121 aboard the aircraft carrier USS Oriskany (CVA-34).

Cmdr. Andresen flew combat operations over Vietnam as Executive Officer of Fighter Squadron 96 aboard the aircraft carrier USS Ranger (CVA-61). Following a tour at the Naval Safety Center, Norfolk, Va., he became the Commanding Officer of Fleet Composite Squadron 2 at Naval Air Station Oceana in 1968.

The final duty for Cmdr. Andresen was a multi-hat job in the Naval Air Station Oceana Administrative Department where his primary duty was administration officer with various collateral assignments.

After devoting so much of his life to military service, it is very fitting that he has accepted a position at Maury

High School where he will instruct the Naval Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps.

Cmdr. Andresen and his wife, the former Nancy Foster of Palestine, Texas, will make their home in Virginia Beach. Their two sons, Kirk (16) and Mark (13) attend First Colonial High School.

Couple Sentenced

A Navy man attached to Dam Neck and his wife have been given jail sentences and fined by Circuit Court Judge George W. Vagos following their conviction of the possession of dangerous drugs.

Authorities said they arrested David F. McConnell, 20, and his wife Brenda, 18, during an investigation at the couple's apartment in the 1100 block of Pacific Avenue April 4. Both pled guilty to the charges during court proceedings.

Judge Vagos sentenced each of them to 60 days in jail and fined each of them $100 and court costs. Judge Vagos suspended Mrs. McConnell's jail sentence.

Boat Gas Aid Fund

Boaters are reminded to watch gasoline purchases this summer to be sure they qualify for a refund of the highway use tax if they want to benefit both themselves and the sport of boating, reminds Game Commission Executive Director Chester F. Phelps.

To qualify for refunds, boaters must (1) purchase their boating gasoline in minimum quantities of 5 gallons, (2) obtain a "paid" invoice or credit card ticket for each purchase, and file for refund within 12 months of the date of purchase.

Boaters who meet the above requirements can recover 5-1/2¢ for every gallon of gasoline they buy and use for boating, and 1-1/2¢ for every such gallon will be set aside in the State Boat Fund to provide more access to public waters, boat launching facilities, and other services of direct benefit to boaters.

Those who do not take the trouble to qualify for refunds will not get their personal rebate, nor will their purchases help the sport of boating.

Flag-Defiler Leaves City

A 19-year-old girl boarded a bus late Tuesday afternoon to return to her Detroit, Mich., home after spending two days in the Virginia Beach City Jail following her conviction of defiling the American flag.

Jeannette A. Gale, who listed a Virginia Beach address on Highpoint Avenue, was convicted of the charge in Municipal Court Monday morning by Judge P.B. White and fined $250 and given a 30 days jail sentence.

She was arrested Sunday evening near the intersection of Laskin Road and First Colonial Road by police officer C.L. Lowell on a charge of cursing and abusing a police officer. The charge reportedly resulted from an exchange between the girl and Lowell after he had observed her "wearing the American flag attached to the seat of her dungarees and asked her to remove it. She reportedly then said to Lowell, "Now I know why they call them pigs."

Lowell charged her with "cursing and abusing" and charged her companion Margitta G. Lutz, also from Detroit, with interfering with a police officer during the arrest of the Gale girl.

While the pair were being detained at 2nd Police Precinct headquarters, police Sgt. L.S. Taylor observed the flag still attached to the dungarees and obtained a warrant under the Virginia State Code charging her with defiling the American flag.

The flag in question was an authentic, miniature American flag, measuring 6x4 3/4 inches, bearing 50 stars on a blue field and containing 7 red stripes and 6 white stripes.

Sgt. Taylor indicated he took the action he did because he felt he had no other choice as a result of the manner in which the flag was being treated. His respect for the American flag began when he was a young child. He said, "I learned the pledge of allegiance to the flag and the Lord's Prayer at about the same time and they have been guiding factors throughout my life."

Taylor is a retired Marine Corps captain and saw combat during service in the Pacific during World War II, as well as in Korea and Vietnam. He speaks of the high regard he has for the American flag, and of the low regard he has for anyone who attempts in any way to ridicule or defile the flag.

Judge White, who apparently shared Taylor's feelings, was told by the Gale girl during her court appearance that she could not see anything wrong in what she had done. White expressed his feelings on the matter by saying, "We're not going to put up with this kind of thing in Virginia Beach."

Prior to her leaving court for the City Jail the girl told Judge White her parents were expected in Virginia Beach in a few days. Judge White said that if her parents would arrange for her to leave the city he would suspend the unserved portion of her jail sentence, which permitted her to be released from jail late Tuesday when she boarded a bus for Detroit.

During their appearance in court Judge White also fined the Gale girl $50 on the curse and abuse charge and her companion $50 for interfering with a police officer.

Sgt. Taylor says he has received many phone calls at his home from Tidewater residents praising him for the action he took and his attitude in the matter. One of the calls came from the Chief of Staff, Fleet Marine Force Atlantic Headquarters, in Norfolk, which was Taylor's last duty station prior to retirement from the Marine Corps.

Deposit $100 at F&M and get a new wife for $9.95

Old Wife

New Wife

Give your wife a new wig, and she'll look and feel like a new woman. Especially if it's one of the smashing Debonair' wigs available at F&M for the ridiculously low price of $9.95.

Now we know husbands aren't wig experts. But we should tell you that our Debonair' wigs are made of famous Kanekalon. (This may not mean much to you. But to your wife it means no upkeep. No setting. Just an occasional rinse-out and run-through of the brush. And that means a lot.)

These stretchy little wigs come in two styles...a smart London Shag, and a chic

Semi-Curl. And they come in 25 shades and colors, including the new frosted.

To get one of these fine wigs for just $9.95, all you have to do is open a savings or checking account at F&M for $100 or more. Or add $100 to your existing F&M savings account. (For a deposit of $1,000, the wig costs just $5. And for a deposit of $5,000, it's absolutely free.) And for your convenience, we've fixed it so you can charge the cost of the wig on your BankAmericard.

Juvenile Charged New League To Meet Tonight

A 17-year-old Virginia Beach juvenile is awaiting court proceedings on the charge of possession of marijuana. Police officials said the juvenile was charged last Friday morning during an investigation in the 300 block of 31st Street which resulted in the alleged discovery of his possessing a cigarette which authorities said contained marijuana.

The newly formed North Shore Civic League of Virginia Beach will hold its first meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at Gallies Episcopal Church, 40th Street and Pacific Avenue.

All interested residents of North Virginia Beach are invited to attend.

Charged with Sale

Police Vice Squad investigators say they have charged Vernon T. Crockett, Jr., with the alleged sale of narcotics to a minor. Officials said Crockett, 18, of Jeanne Street, was arrested in connection with the alleged sale of two ounces of marijuana to a 16-year-old juvenile in the region of 21st Street and Pacific Avenue.

ASTRO-ADVICE

By Raymond Williams
noted Virginia Beach

One of the things that has impressed me about nearly all the letters and requests for horoscopes I receive, through this column and from other sources as well, is the frequency with which the question "Is there any hope?" appears. If you will note, it appears in two of the three questions in today's column. It is a sad commentary on our times when people can find no answer to their problems. On two different occasions in the last two months while appearing on a television and a radio program, I have had encounters with persons strongly convinced they had the answers to all the problems people have to face. They were equally convinced that I, as an astrologer, was a charlatan. Perhaps well intended but found they had to face these experiences that there seemed to be no escape. In the years that I have tried to help people, via astrological advice, I have come to know that there are times when nothing seems to help. How do you feel about this? Have you ever been in this position? If you can find time to drop me a note, I promise I can find time to read it, carefully.

QUESTION: For the last year or so I've found myself becoming more and more confused, frustrated and restless. It has really been a heavy load. Sometimes I'm almost ready to just cut loose: go on my own, period. I don't think I can take it much longer. Is there any hope for me in the future? I am sixteen years old. Please don't print my name.

ANSWER: It is really sad to see someone so young going through such a depressing time. The fact that you are young does not minimize the pain, I am well aware of that. Astrologically, there is a very good reason why you are going through this very trying time. The planet Mercury (ruling the mind) was in the sign of Libra at birth. This indicates that you have had, until a year ago, a very balanced and rather pleasant outlook towards life. Now, however, Mercury has moved to conjunction with the planet Saturn. The nature of Saturn is such that it depresses and restricts that with which it comes in contact. It creates periods of depression and dependency which are difficult for even an adult to cope with. It is especially difficult for today's youngsters, since they have no spiritual background to guide them through these periods. In addition, they can see others of their age group who have "split" and are living carefree and happy lives, or so it seems at the time.

By all means do not "cut loose," the answer to your problems are really quite simple when you know how to deal with them. If you can not talk with your parents, and I feel sure you can't or you would not have needed to write us, please call and I will be happy to talk with you about this. In about a year, or eighteen months, at the most, you are going to be experiencing a period of tranquility and happiness that will make this all worth while. You really have a very promising horoscope, and you are going to have many of the good things of life. The period you are experiencing now can be used to learn many things about yourself that will pay off in a year or so in tremendous dividends. There will always be problems in life, and how you handle today's problems will determine how you handle those that confront you tomorrow. You are not a "mama's boy" type of person and I am sure that you can make it without doing some of the stupid things I see young people doing these days.

Call Mrs. Phillips at the Sun and she will arrange for us to talk about this. I'm sure everything will be all right.

QUESTION: I am thirty four years old, I am single, poor, bored and depressed. Is there any hope? I am very anxious to receive your reply. Signed Virgo.

ANSWER: The exact time of birth is essential for determining the rising sign and the areas of the life which will be affected. Since you could only give me an approximate birth time I feel a bit unsure about some facets of the horoscope.

One thing is certain, however, you have not always been broke. You have the Moon and the planet Mars located together in the house which rules the career and station in life. These two planets, in conjunction, indicates that there is sure to have been many changes in the station or career. You also have these two planets in the best possible relationship to the planet Jupiter. Now it is the nature of the planet Jupiter that whatever he does, he does big! On the basis of this I will be willing to bet that you have been "loaded" at least once in your young life. It would have been better if you had told me if you are a he or a she. The horoscope won't tell which, and it is necessary in order to tell just how you will respond to aspects. An example would be that the tenth house always indicates the career for a man, but can indicate the home and surroundings for a woman. The reason for this is that the woman's rise in life or station is related to the situations that the husband encounters.

It would appear that you have just gone through the end of a very exciting and active period. It was not all good, and is the reason that you are single. It is no sin to be single, or poor for that matter. I am a master at both. But for you to be bored and depressed is nearly a crime. Anyone who has the mind you have and is not putting it to work is guilty of something. I won't bother to spell out the aspect, but you know that you have an excellent mind, and if you put it to use you can have anything you want in life, and all the money you can spend. You will, in fact, before it is all said and done. One thing that you must learn before this can happen though, is self control. You have the planet Uranus in opposition to your ascendant, which makes you act very irresponsibly at times, especially where matters of the heart are concerned. This has almost surely affected the health, and you are probably a nervous wreck as a result.

There is much more I would like to go into but with an indefinite birth time it would be off quite a lot as far as the timing of events are concerned. If you will drop me a note I will attempt to rectify the chart to make sure it is accurate. I will then be able to offer you much more assistance as to when you can look for favorable times to launch new projects.

You need not be overly concerned about the future. You have a great deal of intelligence and many favorable astrological aspects. There have been trying times, I'm sure, but there will be many more pleasant and enjoyable times before you cash in your chips. Try to develop some "smarts" where your affections are concerned, I might add.

QUESTION: Your comments in last week's paper on drugs were much interested me. I'm sure I'm not the only parent in Virginia Beach who is concerned about his family. We'll have to con-

Hopi Predictions Come True in Modern World; Day of Truth Forecast

By FRANK MAGIERA

Thomas Banyayca is a man from another world. He wears a red head-band to confine his long black hair, a clip, string tie and colored beads around his neck and moccasins on his feet. He is short and heavy set. In his face, thick mounds of flesh fold into two dark glossy pools that seem set somewhere beyond you as he talks. He speaks low, in a James Joyce monotone you can hear only if you really want to.

His message is as simple and as difficult to accept in our break-neck society as he is. We are on the verge of destruction (the Purification Day, he calls it). We have done it all ourselves and we have done it to others.

Banyayca is the interpreter for the leaders of the Hopi Indians. The Hopi live in northern Arizona. They still cling firmly to a life style and religion that predates the coming of the white man. It is a life of peace, non-violence and harmony with nature. Their traditions and prophecies have been handed down through generations only by word of mouth or diagrams. They have no written language.

Banyayca was shuttled to Virginia Beach from Washington by the Association of Research and Enlightenment. He was at the "Capital with a Friends-Quaker group that delivered a peace message jointly with Japanese representatives on the 25th anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima. He spoke at the A. R. E. Thursday and at the Friends meeting house Friday.

Listening to Banyayca is a sobering experience. Adhering to Hopi traditions of non-violence, he was an unofficial conscientious objector during World War II. He was jailed several times for his resistance. On several occasions he was congratulated by Federal officials for his firm beliefs even after severe "interrogation" sessions. Most of his life has been spent observing, thinking and working to turn our society around from what he believes is a path of destruction.

The Hopi believe there is a power in everything which keeps it alive.

"We look to the world as one whole nature. We are part of it. We cannot break away from it," Banyayca said.

The Hopi prophecies hold that the Purification Day will be near when people in this land are so corrupted they turn to material things instead of those spiritual. Evil white men will try to destroy Hopi and other Indians and take their land.

Purification will come, said Banyayca, when the road in the sky has been fulfilled (use of airplanes) and when man has invented a "gourd of ashes that can fall upon the earth and boil everything within one great area where no grass will grow for many years" (nuclear weapons).

According to Banyayca, the Hopi have said the world will be shaken by three great destructions: once by men with the sign of the swastika—actually an ancient symbol in many civilizations signifying the core of life. The second destruction will come by men under a sun symbol, which represents the power and warmth of the sun. The third destruction will come from the people "with a red cape or cloak." They will be large in population and have no religion but their own. All power in the world will be placed in their hands and they will come swiftly in one day.

Finally, Banyayca said, "one will come from the West like a big storm...He will be very many people and unmerciful...he will cover the land like ants."

Banyayca said his people have also predicted tornadoes or "fires" to the Southeast and

Chief Banyayca

West (South American, Middle East, and Southeast Asia) as well as internal fires that will spread and envelope the continent with the outbreak of another fire in the North. He said the Hopi predicted assassination of high leaders, ecological imbalance and deterioration, and the misuse of power and technology by the white man.

He said his ancestors predicted houses that carry people across the land (trains), trails as well as internal fires that will spread and envelope the continent with the outbreak of another fire in the North. He said the Hopi predicted assassination of high leaders, ecological imbalance and deterioration, and the misuse of power and technology by the white man.

Nations to appeal for assistance to the Indian nations. The prophecies also told of a breakdown in power and utilities and how white men would try to remove parts of their sacred lands. Several utility companies are now mining minerals and building power plants near the Hopi lands.

Banyayca says that man must go back to spiritual values to save themselves. The fact that what he says is today a more than familiar theme all around us, is the sobering element of his dialogue. That there is a strange relationship of the traditions of an ancient Indian tribe, to the warnings scientists and conservationists the appeals of politicians and minority groups and the world situation that exists with its perspective of history, is something that cannot be easily dismissed.

Marina Approved

Commercial development of Rudee Inlet got a big boost Tuesday when the Virginia Beach Planning Commission put its stamp of approval on a proposed 361-slip marina.

The application, however, brought objections from the Seateck Community League, represented by the Rev. L. W. Chase, who said his group's main concern was with getting sewer lines extended into the area. He also pointed out that there is no access road to the marina site now.

The site, which would also have related recreational and commercial facilities including gasoline supply, is at the western end of Lake Rudee, north of Owls Creek and east of South Birdneck Road at the end of East Gregory's Lane. The application was made by the Rudee Inlet Yacht Basin, Inc., represented by Richard Guy.

Planning Director Charles C. Carrington commented that this would be "a tremendous use of the land and just the type of development the City has been looking for in Rudee Inlet." However, required water and sewer lines will create a problem. The Public Health Department will not approve septic tanks in the area. They also said that sewer lines extended under the lake would be unacceptable, leaving the extension of lines through Seateck as the only alternative. A tentative schedule to extend the lines through Seateck is for the next "two or three years."

"The Planning Department is at a loss as to what to recommend," said Carrington.

The Commission recommended approval of the application subject to water, sewer and access road settlement.

Two other applications which brought lengthy discussions were both deferred 30 days. One was that of the City to establish an historic and cultural conservation district in Kempsville and the other, also in Kempsville, was that of the Rev. John Gimenez to build a church in the Kempsville Colony area.

Glenn McClanahan led the opposition to the historical zoning by saying that it would create a hardship to property owners in the area and adding that boundary lines affected by the zoning were not clear in the application. He asked specifically that a 200-foot wide strip of vacant land not be included.

McClanahan added that fair compensation to owners of historical property should be worked out. "Since you're putting the strong controls on the property owners that you are, you must use the utmost care."

According to the Planning Department, there are only five of the original buildings in Kempsville left, and it is the desire of the City to preserve them to which there are no funds to do so. Included in the buildings is an old courthouse which served the area and a jail which is nothing but a shell.

The application was brought about by an earlier application of Robert E. Whitehead II and Susan Whitehead Byars for a change of zoning to limited commercial for their old family

City Backed By 13 In Awards Presentation

A 13-man delegation, made up of three private citizens, two city officials and eight council members, will leave August 23 for Portland, Oregon to make a pitch for Virginia Beach as an All-American City.

Six of the group will actually make the presentation: Vice Mayor, Robert Cromwell, as an elected official, City Manager Roger Scott, an appointed official; Public Information Officer Frank Creasy, who is putting together the presentation; and Lawrence A. Sandilio, Aaron Parsons and Algy Cohen, private citizens whose respective projects were primarily responsible for having the city nominated for the award.

The original entry in the competition, co-sponsored by Look Magazine and National Municipal League, spotlight three major projects in which citizen participation had benefited the city...the Seateck Clean-Up Campaign, headed by Parsons; the Hospitality House, started by Cohen; and the Citizen groups seeking economic development, Virginia Beach Development Council and Committee of 100 represented by Sandilio.

The success of these three projects was instrumental in having Virginia Beach picked for the 22 finalists in the national competition.

Only three members of council will not attend the presentation in Oregon—Mayor Frank Dusch and councilmen Murray Harrison and John McCombs.

Council decided this week to join the delegation. Mayor Dusch, who had said earlier he could not attend because of previous commitments, pointed out at the time that the expense could possibly open the city to criticism.

The cost of the trip, estimated at $6,000 to $7,000, would not require a new appropriation, Scott said. "It will be taken out of funds already budgeted for promotion," he explained.

The decision to expand the delegation was primarily based on two points. Council members would be on hand to answer questions posed by the jury of experts and would also be available to promote Virginia Beach industrially among the many officials representing the other 21 cities in the competition. "These councilmen have directed the city for several years," Scott said. "They are in a position to officially answer questions which might be asked by the jury during the questioning session following our presentation."

It was also felt that the seven extra councilmen (those not actually involved in the presentation) would be able to mingle with other official representatives, perhaps making contacts which might lead to potential industry for Virginia Beach.

"We have a very conservative council," Scott said. "This will be the first time they have ever traveled any distance as a group to represent the city."

The city is hoping to offset some of the expense through business donations. Scott said he could not release the names of the firms contacted but that "we already have some indication that part of the cost will be covered by private interests."

Virginia Beach's 13-man delegation is actually small compared to some of the other cities involved. Lumberton, N.C., with a population of 16,000 persons, has a 15-man delegation. Shelby, N.C., with 18,000 people, has 10 representatives scheduled, and Florence, S.C., has a 16-man delegation for its 24,000 population.

"It would seem that these smaller cities are in good financial shape," Mayor Dusch commented. "Of course, they probably have industry backing them or they couldn't do it."

Scott said he was more than pleased that council had decided to join them in Oregon.

"None of the council members were aware that the city had been entered in the competition until we announced publicly on July 23 that Virginia Beach had been selected as a finalist," he said. "We didn't tell anyone for fear we might be eliminated. Now, I think it will help us a great deal in Oregon to show that we have the backing of our city council."

Council's Patriotism Not Truck-Slanted

It might have been an eye catcher, but a red, white and blue fire truck with stars didn't do much for City Council's taste Monday as it turned down a Fire Department request to purchase the unit at a $4,000 savings.

Although Council agreed that there was a need for another fire fighting unit, at least two councilmen expressed displeasure with the unique color scheme for the truck's cab.

"Normally it wouldn't even come up to the council except for this truck's color," City Manager Roger M. Scott said. Fire Chief E. B. Bayne told council that they could purchase the unit for $32,000 because it was a demonstrator unit, but that the city would have to accept the unit complete with the colored cab.

He told council the cab had been painted red, white and blue to celebrate the opening of a new Mack Truck Company plant, along with several other units produced by the company, and that the city had the first option to buy the unit.

He said the truck was in fine condition and could be accepted by the city, that the only point open to question was the coloring.

Councilman Lawrence E. Marshall said, "I would be opposed to having it painted in that manner; I don't even want to see it one day painted like that."

Marshall was joined by Councilman J. Curtis Payne, who added that it appeared to be "bordering on the improper display of the (American) flag."

Scott asked the council if it was their opinion that the unit shouldn't be purchased and received a positive response.

Bimson Is New City Attorney

City Council Monday unanimously selected J. Dale Bimson to be the next city attorney of Virginia Beach.

Bimson has been assistant city attorney for four years. He succeeds Harry T. Marshall who has accepted the city attorney's post in his hometown of Charlottesville.

A native of Richmond, Bimson earned his B. S. degree from Virginia Commonwealth University in 1961 and his law degree from the University of Richmond in 1965.

He was a claims attorney for Travelers Insurance Company before joining the city law department in May 1966.

Bimson, his wife, Elizabeth (Betty), and their 13 month old son, Bradley, live in Kings Grant.

OBVIOUSLY INTRIGUED by the walking catfish on display were two youthful visitors to the open house at the marine biology laboratory at Bayside High School. The catfish is able to live and walk on land as well as in the water. It was one of the specimens selected by marine biology students while on field trips.

People's Bank Is Sporty

All employees and officers of People's Bank of Virginia Beach are wearing casual clothes to work this month, according to J. Burton Harrison, Jr., President. "We feel that sporty attire is appropriate because we are the hometown bank of a resort city," Harrison said.

He went on to report that the psychological effect on both customers and staff seems good. "Our people are more comfortable, more at ease in sporty attire," Harrison elaborated. "As a result, they generate a relaxed friendly atmosphere which our customers respond to."

People's Bank of Virginia Beach has broken with other banking traditions besides the formal dress rule. It is the only bank in Norfolk-Virginia Beach area that offers Saturday banking hours. And it introduced the really free personal checking account with no minimum balance requirements.

When Vepco gas plows up your lawn you'll never know it.

There was a time when installation of a gas line to your home left your yard messed up.

Workmen were as careful as they could be: They removed the sod, dug a ditch, installed the pipe and replaced the dirt and sod.

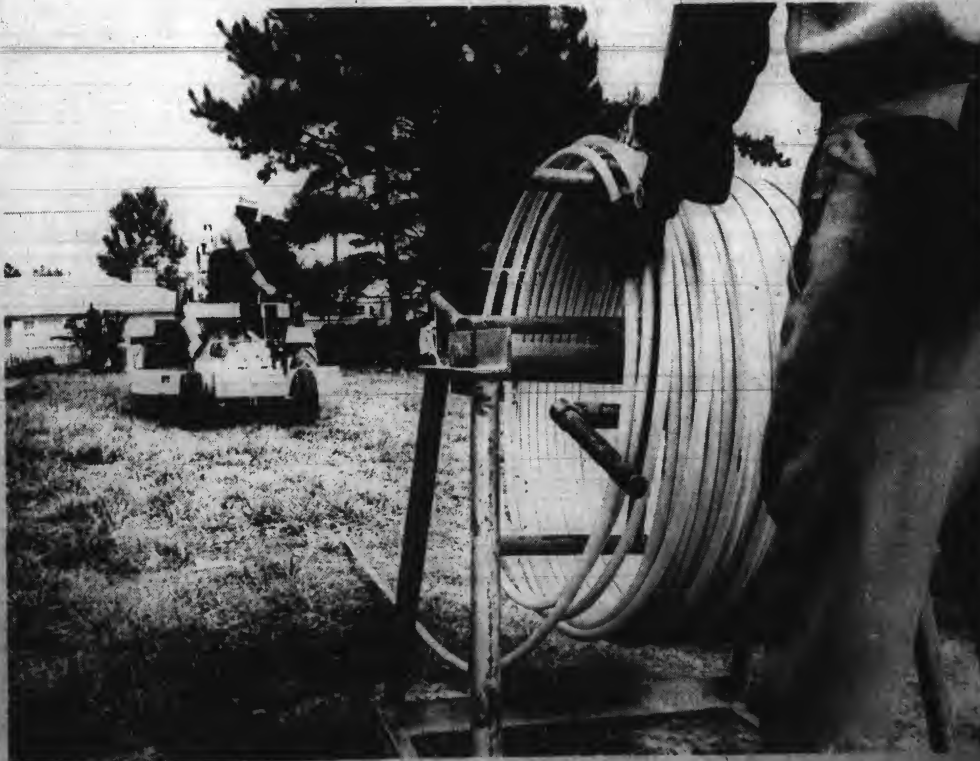

And you waited weeks and weeks for the telltale mound of earth to settle.

Then Vepco Gas came up with a unique plow. Its knife-like blade vibrates, shaking the dirt aside just long enough for a flexible pipe to be placed in the ground.

The earth folds back over the pipe, leaving no trace of where the pipe sank underground.

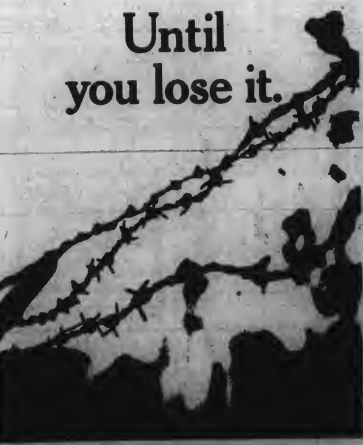

It's the kind of care Vepco Gas is used to giving its customers.

Cost Versus Merit

As all Virginia Beach residents know, this resort city is in line for selection as an All-American City, a competition sponsored by Look Magazine and the National Municipal League. It is a coveted award and if Virginia Beach is one of the 11 selected it could generate untold recognition for the city.

The resulting publicity would not only be beneficial in tourism, but it would possibly help in securing new industry for the city. Large industry seeks a community that is basically spacious, cooperative and strife-free. As an All-American City Virginia Beach would be spotlighted as just such a community.

The Big problem now is making the personal presentation before a panel of experts. This jury has the final say and much depends on what is said and shown to them next week in Oregon.

Six well-chosen persons will make this presentation. But, in addition, seven councilmen will also attend as an official delegation. Those who know about such things believe this is a wise move. There is considerable expense involved, admittedly, but the city hopes private interest will come through and share part of the costs. Or at least make available a private plan for delegations's transportation.

There is much to be gained in this venture, both for the city and for the businessmen and industrialists. It is hoped that these private interests will demonstrate their community spirit by taking some of the financial burden off the city's pocketbook. If they do not, the city alone picks up the tab on a gamble...will or will not Virginia Beach be selected as an All-American City? And it's a pretty expensive gamble.

Virginia's Turn Next, Maybe?

(This column reprinted from the July 31, 1970 issue of Richmond Times-Dispatch through special permission from the writer, Ed Grimsley.)

Any day now something like the following could occur in the travel office the state of Virginia maintains in New York City:

"Good morning," says a man who walks in with the happy expression of a vacationer on his face. "I'm interested in getting some information on good vacation spots in Virginia."

"You've come to the right place," booms the travel counselor. "But, first, let me tell you how lucky you are that you've chosen Virginia. We love tourists."

"You do?"

"Oh, yes. Our governor, Linwood Holton, is especially dedicated to tourism. During his campaign he made several speeches on how important it is to attract tourists to Virginia. Now, exactly what kind of vacation did you have in mind?"

"I was thinking of going to a beach. And I understand Virginia has some lovely beaches."

"Indeed it does. Some of the finest in the world. On the ocean, there is Virginia Beach, Sandbridge and Assateague. And on the bay we have Ocean View and Buckroe. And our governor would be delighted to know that you're interested in beaches, because to get to some of them you might drive over the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, and one reason he has been eager to promote tourism is to increase the toll collections on the bridge-tunnel. Which beach would you prefer?"

"Tell you what," says the tourist. "Since your governor is so interested in tourism he obviously knows the best places to go. I'll let his choice be my choice. Which beach does he go to?"

"Well, this year he went to Wrightsville Beach."

"And exactly where in Virginia is Wrightsville Beach?" asks the tourist, walking over to inspect a wall map of the state.

"How much did the governor pay to cross the bridge-tunnel to get to Wrightsville Beach?"

"Oh, Wrightsville Beach is not in Virginia. It's in North Carolina."

"In North Carolina? You mean your governor passed up Virginia Beach, Sandbridge, Assateague, Buckroe and Ocean View to go to a beach in North Carolina?"

"Yes," admits the counselor.

"What drove him away from the Virginia beaches? Stinging nettles? Bad undertow? Tar?"

"No, to tell you the truth, we suspect he went to Wrightsville Beach partly to work on the problem of campus unrest."

"What do you mean?"

"It so happens that Dr. Edgar F. Shannon Jr., president of the University of Virginia, was vacationing at Wrightsville Beach at the same time. We suspect he and the governor climbed to the top of a sand dune, sat down and developed a plan for dealing with unruly students this fall."

"Why couldn't they have done that at Virginia Beach?"

"Are you kidding? Virginia Beach is crawling with hippies this year, and some of them are bound to be university students. If they saw their president conferring with the governor, they'd suspect the worst and start a riot."

"Couldn't the governor placate the hippies by appointing some of them to state boards and agencies?"

Give him time. He just might do it, if there are any vacancies left after he placates other important groups of citizens."

"So you're not really concerned about his going to a North Carolina beach?"

"Not in the least. As a matter of fact, he's improving."

"In what way?"

"He's getting closer to Virginia. The last time Mr. Holton went to a beach, it was in Nassau."

Editor's Note: Grimsley's reference to Virginia Beach "crawling with hippies" is obviously the result of recent misleading newspaper articles. It is hoped that both Grimsley and Governor Holton will not believe everything they read but visit Virginia Beach to see first hand how minimal the hippie situation here really is.

Keep Flag On Pole

To the Editor:

The front page of the Virginia Beach Sun of Aug. 6 carried the enclosed picture and caption. This has got to be one of the biggest put-ons of the day.

We live in an environment of our own making. It is about time we had direction for our present and future.

First and foremost we need to build respect. Respect for our country, state, city and fellow man.

Respect for our country can best be demonstrated by honoring our flag as it was designed and by following flag etiquette as prescribed.

To me, this fire truck mocks our flag as much as the flag worn on the seat of the jeans as shown on page 12 of the same paper (picture also enclosed). The girl was sentenced to 30 days in jail for "defiling the flag" and the flag was a legitimate flag. The fire truck represents a "design similar to the flag" and we cannot be proud or respect it in that form.

To have our wonderful, dedicated firemen embarrassed and humiliated in such a false display as this truck represents is beyond my comprehension, and I cannot believe that it is, was, or ever will be considered.

Let us show our patriotism through actions and deeds as well as through proper display of the flag as befits an "All-American" city, i.e. from flagpoles.

Howard D. Kahn

P.S. If purchased, who would be the defendants in the court action for "defiling the flag"?

No Expressway Signs

To the Editor:

An impressive Chamber of Commerce Building with convenient drive-in facilities at a carefully selected setting, along the Virginia Beach Expressway is a dire need of the City of Virginia Beach.

Lets upgrade our intellect with things of beauty and discard any idea of defacing further, our surrounding landscape, with a maze of distracting signboards.

Our City's Chamber of Commerce Building appropriately designed and located along our Expressway, operating imaginatively and service-mindedly, would add an inviting air of hospitality to our fine City.

How far superior would this project be to a cluttered maze of hazardous signboards!

Letters to the editor

To The Editor:

This fire truck is a life saving, property saving, piece of equipment. It would be used by men who risk their lives all through the year as a part of their jobs.

Our flag flies over a country which feels great compassion for each person's rights and protection of himself and his property.

Because of this, I feel the "stars and stripes" is a fitting display on a fine vehicle.

From Virginia Beach Library

SUCH GOOD FRIENDS, by Lois Gould. New York, Random House, 1970. $6.95.

They seemed to have an adequate type of marriage, or so she thought. A nice house, two children, and several good friends. Neither of them were really satisfied, but perhaps they were only passing through a difficult time. And then Richard went into the hospital for a simple operation - removal of a mole. The operation itself was successful, but several hours later, he went into a coma. Only then did Julie Messenger begin to analyze her life and marriage.

Every day she went to the hospital, and every day she pondered her relation to Richard, her family, and their children, his friends. And then, while he remained comatose, she discovered another side of his life. Such Good Friends is a fascinating story - a woman talking with herself and sorting out her life when faced with an unfaithful husband - who cannot be called on to give any answers or explanations. Everything she learns has to be second hand. And they were all such good friends.

Tribute to a Lady

To the Editor:

The essence of the history of a city, town or state, is based on the activities of the men and women of their times, as actors of the historical drama of life and the part they played.

It therefore behooves us when one renders high public service to the community covering nearly a lifetime, to record all that such service implies. Furthermore, where the judgment is just and the heart is right, a word of praise in its proper time and place will not be overlooked.

This is the sentiment which inspires the writer in voicing a deserved tribute to Mrs. Ernest S. Merrill, retiring commissioner of accounts, who has for more than half a century, been professionally known in her maiden name as commissioner "Annie Brown."

Thus, through people one has known, events are landmarks in history as well as links with the past, and it was in old Norfolk when Mrs. Merrill made her debut as a judicial public servant in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court. After serving as deputy clerk under Major Lawrence Waring, Mrs. Merrill was admitted to the bar and later appointed to the post of commissioner of accounts.

In this connection, perhaps it is not amiss to take a glimpse of Norfolk of those far-off days when joy glowed in the hearts of its citizens. Even in distant time Norfolk was a genuine city of opportunity, and its bar and legal fraternity consisted of able jurists and lawyers famous for their learning, scholarship and eloquence. And it is no exaggeration to say that Mrs. Merrill from shortly after the turn of the century to her recent retirement, has enjoyed the esteem and respect of both the bench and bar.

And so, looking back over the years and reviewing reflections of a lady of grace, high merit, intelligence and long faithful public service rendered to the community, it may truthfully be said that the mere mentioning of her name carries its own encomium.

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

Answer To The Drug Problem?

The drug problem in this country has reached frightening proportions. It is growing at a startling rate.

Between 1961 and 1969, eight years, the number of arrests for drug-related crimes increased by more than 300 percent. The increase among young people under 18 increased by 1,860 per cent.

Don't get the idea this drug problem is just a few people taking a puff of marijuana. In the first five years of the 60's about 300 people in New York City died from heroin-related causes. In 1969 alone, more than 900 people died of the same causes. Of the 900 deaths, 224 were teen-agers and 24 were under 15 years of age.

IN NEW YORK CITY, AMONG YOUNG PEOPLE, BETWEEN THE AGES OF 18 AND 35, DEATHS TRACED TO THE USE OF HEROIN ALONE ARE GREATER THAN THOSE CAUSED BY ANY OTHER REASON!

Think about that for a minute. That means heroin is causing more deaths among the young people in New York than automobile accidents or disease. This demonstrates the seriousness of the problem.

How does the use of drugs grow? One way is by drug users recruiting others to join them. You have the Timothy Leary types encouraging others to mislead them. You also have the drug pushers recruiting new clients. Misery loves company.

Drugs have to come from somewhere. The publicity goes to the drugs that come into the country from foreign sources. Did you know that perhaps as much as 50 percent of the production of legitimate pharmaceutical companies is diverted into the illicit market? That is 50 per cent!

When the subject of drugs comes up someone is bound to mention the suggestion that the Government authorize hard drugs dispensed to addicts by physicians. They claim this would dry up the illegal sale of drugs and help cure the problem.

Did you know this was tried in the United States in the 1920's? To help cure opium addiction, the government authorized heroin dispensed in clinics. The results was addiction to heroin.

England tried this method in recent years and the number of addicts tripled during the trial period. Today, England permits addicts dispensed under highly restricted controls.

One of the serious side effects of the drug problem is the cost to the addicts. Today, a heavily addicted person will need $50 to $100 a day to finance their drug habit. This money must come from somewhere and since few people make that kind of money honestly, they must turn to crime to secure it.

Much is said about marijuana being harmless and little more than alcohol. Comparing alcohol to marijuana is not sound. Marijuana is a known hallucinogen. Alcohol is a depressant. People who smoke marijuana do so for one reason only - to get high. Most people who drink alcohol do it for purposes other than getting drunk.

A major problem with smoking marijuana is that the user comes into contact with what is called the drug subculture. They are then in contact with people who use other drugs. A correlation between frequent smoking of marijuana and the use of other drugs exists.

The majority of those who use heroin and LSD in this country have prior experience with marijuana. As a result, you have to assume that marijuana presents a danger in that it can lead to the use of other drugs.

The problem is going to get worse. It is estimated that 15 percent of college students will use marijuana on one or more occasions while they are in college.

The problem must be solved. The way it is being attacked at present is not working. Young people often laugh at the talks on drugs they hear. They know more about drugs than the people who make those talks.

Many people feel that drug education should start in kindergarten and continue through the high school years. The thought is to get to the pre-user and educate them to the dangers. Stop them before they start, so to speak.

At the risk of being called old fashioned and square (I am guilty of both) I have a theory. If we could restore the family unit to its place of importance, that just might do it!

Residents Divided Over Fire Truck

City Council apparently made the right move Monday when they turned down the chance to purchase the star-spangled fire truck at a reduced demonstrator's rate.

Last week's Sun Survey proved the Virginia Beach residents were definitely not in favor of the purchase.

They were not unanimously against it, however, and those in favor were very much in favor. The final tally had 60 per cent against the purchase; 40 per cent in favor of it.

Many of those who responded made notations on the questionnaire: "The general idea of the city demonstrating a patriotic attitude is good, but painting a fire truck this way may actually have the reverse effect... it's too much. I think the small flag buttons worn by our police is excellent."

Another comment: "Who's pulling someone's leg? Some excuse; no price is mentioned. They have five trucks they can paint any color under the sun."

Council admitted Monday that the reason they turned down the purchase was because of the truck's unique red, white and blue paint job. One person was heard to comment "It's a good thing the city didn't buy it...the hippies would have set fires just to watch the trucks go by."

Certainly today the flag design is becoming a highly controversial, and technical issue. Better City Council turn down a bargain than end up in court on a desecration charge. Perhaps.

The All-American city competition is of prime concern at the present time. Virginia Beach is one of 22 cities across the nation nominated for the award which will go to the finalists early next year.

In order to qualify for the coveted award, Virginia Beach, along with all the other finalists, must make a verbal and visual presentation in Portland, Oregon, next week before a panel of experts.

The delegation originally started out with six persons to actually participate in the presentation. The number has now swelled to 13, with seven councilmen also planning to attend.

There may be a few pros and cons on the number...costs versus merit. This week's Sun Survey offers residents a chance to voice their opinions.

SUN SURVEY

QUESTION: Do you think a 13-man delegation at the All-American City presentation in Portland will be more beneficial to the city than only six participants?

Principals Introduced

A number of new principals and assistant principals were approved for the fall term by the School Board last spring. Background information of some of them was released earlier. This is the last group.

Lewis W. Breedlove, who began his teaching career at Creeds Elementary School, is returning there as principal. From Creeds Breedlove moved to Princess Anne High School where he taught government and coached baseball and football for 11 years. When First Colonial opened he taught and coached there for three years. For the past two years he has been a physical education specialist at W. T. Cooke and Linkhorn Park Schools.

Breedlove

A native of Blackstone, Va., Breedlove has a B. A. degree from Randolph-Macon and a masters degree from the University of Virginia. He is married and has two children. Although he was born in Martinsville, Wayne Smith graduated from Deep Creek High School in Chesapeake. He is the new principal of Kings Grant Elementary School.

Smith

Smith has a B.S. degree from Frederick College and a masters degree in elementary administration from the University of Virginia. After five years of teaching seventh grade at Trantwood Elementary School, he spent last year as a helping teacher in mathematics and science. He is single.

John Cauthen and his wife share many of the same interests. Previously they were both teachers. Now both have been named assistant principals, he at Princess Anne High School and she at Plaza Elementary. Originally from McBee, S.C., Cauthen attended Tulane University has earned a B.A. degree from the University of South Carolina and a M.A. degree from William and Mary. After teaching English and Spanish in South Carolina for seven years, he joined the Princess Anne High School Faculty in 1968 teaching Spanish. One summer he worked as an actor and assistant technical director in "The Lost Colony" outdoor drama. He and his wife have four children.

Frank Peck, Jr. also taught Spanish at Princess Anne before being named assistant principal at First Colonial High School. A graduate of Frederick College, Peck has a masters degree from the University of Virginia. He has taught here since 1964.

Miss Margaret Nicholls will be assistant principal at John B. Dey Elementary School. Although she began teaching in Virginia Beach in 1966, her teaching experience has taken her around the world since then. She taught in U.S. dependents schools in Okinawa, Japan and Guantanamo from 1961-64, returning to teach in Norfolk, then teaching in a dependents school again in 1966-1967. For the past two years she has taught at Alenton Elementary.

Miss Nicholls

After receiving a B.A. degree from Mary Washington College, Miss Nicholls earned an M. Ed. degree from the University of Virginia.

Teen-Agers Learn Art

Seventy-five teenagers from throughout Virginia are now at Virginia Wesleyan College for a creative arts workshop, sponsored by the Youth Committee of the Virginia Conference of the United Methodist Church.

The Reverend Gordon V. Nelson, Jr., of Richmond, Virginia, is the director of the Conference. He is assisted by fourteen other staff members.

Two Tidewater residents are on the faculty. Barclay Sheeks, associate professor of art at Virginia Wesleyan College, is conducting a class in painting. Tony R. Abo, instructor in illustration at Ferguson High School, Newport News, Virginia, is conducting a class in music.

The course of study for the six-day conference is covering nine areas. These include music, art, drama and crafts. Virginia Wesleyan College is a four-year, coeducational, private, church-related, liberal arts college located on a 300 acre campus astride the Norfolk Virginia Beach line.

Majorette Awards Are Announced

Awards have been announced for the four-day National Majorette Clinic held recently at Virginia Wesleyan College.

The Middletown Md. High School Majorettes won the Most Outstanding Corps Trophy. Members of the corps were Robin B. Bückenstaff, Sherry Gaver, Sherry McAllister, Ann Pasike, Jan Reed and Kathy Schroyer. Second place trophy was won by the Roosevelt High School Majorettes, Washington, D. C.

Other awards were Most Outstanding Dance Corps Trophy won by the Colonial Heights Va. High Steppers. Second place went to the Highland Springs Va. Majorettes.

Elizabeth B. Humphries, Craddock High School, Portsmouth, won the Most Outstanding Twirling Trophy with Charlene Curtis, Fredericksburg, of the Charleses Balon and Drum Corps.

Tawana Dunkin, Fredericksburg, of the Charleses Balon and Drum Corps, won the first place trophy for the Most Outstanding Strutter Award. Second place was won by Lee Ann Wright, Virginia Beach, of Kempsville Junior High School.

The National Majorette Clinic was sponsored by Youth Camps, Inc., of South Hill, Va.

Basic Classes Scheduled

The Virginia Beach City Schools will offer Adult Basic Education (grades 1-8) at the Center for Effective Learning, 233 North Witchduck Rd., this fall.

Registration will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 6. Classes will meet Monday through Thursday nights.

Basic courses in reading, writing and arithmetic and GED preparatory will be offered. Students must be 18 or over. Classes are free with books, pencils and paper furnished.

"represents a part of the country that is irreplaceable." She added that she wished she had the funds needed to restore the house. "It's well worth preserving." Hers and her brother's application was also deferred another 30 days.

Objections to the church arose from Rev. Gimenez' work with drug addicts. Although he assured the Commission that he planned nothing except church activities in the building, residents of Kempsville Colony and the Commission questioned him at length about his drug work. He said that his church work and his work with Proclaim, for addicts, is completely separate.

Walter Alford, leading the opposition for Kempsville Colony, said that he feared that it would merge into "joint use of the facility. Rev. Gimenez' dedication to drug work is too strong for him to separate this work."

Rev. Gimenez said future plans called for the establishment of a Bible school on the site. His present church, Rock Church, is in Norfolk and has outgrown its building. The name Rock Church also drew some comment from those present. Rev. Gimenez explained that the Rock in the name was from the Biblical quote of "on this rock shall I found my church."

In other action the Commission: "Deferred for 30 days the application of Dr. M. Bagley Walker and Charles L. Night School Diplomas Offered for 1st Time

Beginning in September the Virginia Beach Public Schools will offer diplomas in its night adult education program for the first time.

Registration for the fall term, which begins Wednesday, Sept. 9, will be from 7-9 p.m. Aug. 26 and 27 at Bayside and Princess Anne High Schools and Seatack Elementary School. Classes will meet on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7-10 p.m. based on students taking two subjects with each class lasting an hour and a half. There will be course counseling available to all students during registration.

The cost is $2 per course for residents of Virginia Beach and $10 for non residents. Students are expected to buy their own books.

Applicants must be 17 or over and not attending day school. To be eligible for a diploma, students must be 19 or over.

A total of 16 units in grades 9-12 are required for diploma. These units must include English grades 9-12, one unit of world geography or world history, one unit in Virginia and United States history, one unit in Virginia and U.S. Government, one unit of mathematics above the eighth grade level, one unit of science above the eighth grade level and seven electives.

Applicants must have attended evening school in the Virginia Beach system for four semesters and must have earned a minimum of three units of credit plan of Oceana so that no financing is available for construction of homes.

*Approved an application of Bruce Gallup for a change of zoning on property on Sandbridge Road near Sandpaper Road to build a convenience shopping center.

*Approved an application of Pembroke Square Associates to operate an 800-seat theater on Jeanne Street west on Constitution Drive. The site is on the northeast side of Pembroke Mall.

*Approved the application of William H. Ingle Associates to construct 104 garden apartments and 68 townhouses on Newtown Road near Williams Elementary School.

prior to issuance of a diploma. However, an individual who lacks two or less credits in order to graduate from a Virginia Beach high school may be permitted to attend the evening program for a maximum of two semesters if in this time the individual is able to attain sufficient credit to be a candidate for a regular high school diploma—that is, a diploma from the high school previously attended.

In addition to the required courses, classes in business and foreign languages will be offered this fall.

For information call 427-4574.

P.A. Wins Pentathlon

Boys and girls from 16 of 24 playgrounds recently participated in a Track and Field Day Pentathlon held at the Aragona and Pembroke elementary schools. Each contestant participated in the following events: soccer kick, softball throwing, baserunning, 50 yard dash and shuttle run.

The winners in each age group are: Boys: Larry Lee, 9, Old Donation; Ricky Belangia, 10, Arrowhead; Vernon Tyler, 11, Princess Anne; Tommy Delozier, 12, Brookwood; Doug Anderson, 13, Lynnhaven.

Girls: Marie Anderson, 9, Kingston; Lisa Larsen, 10, Windsor Oaks; Pamela Cason, 11, Princess Anne; Phyllis Godfrey, 12, Princess Anne; Pearl Carson, 13, Princess Anne.

Princess Anne won the team championship by scoring 48 points and Arrowhead was second with 32 points.

Mrs. Barnard

Mrs. Mamie Elbey Barnard of Richmond died Thursday, Aug. 6 in Richmond.

She and her husband Charles E. Barnard, who survives, ran the Virginia Jalousie Co. of Virginia Beach.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday with burial in Deep Run Baptist Church Cemetery.

'Silent Majority' Backs Judge White

Judge P. B. White has received a large number of compliments on his recent conviction of a 19-year-old Detroit, Mich., girl of the charge of defiling the American flag.

Judge White convicted Jeannette A. Gale in Municipal Court and fined her $250 and sentenced her to 30 days in jail after she was arrested while wearing a small, miniature American flag attached to the seat of her dungarees.

The story of Judge White's action spread rapidly across the Old Dominion and throughout United States by means of the Associated Press news wire service and was quickly publicized in many regions.

Since then Judge White has received letters from locations in Virginia, northeastern United States and even from Paris, France praising him for the stand he took in the matter. He also has received clippings of stories regarding the case which appeared in newspapers in Washington, D. C., and Richmond, along with an indication that his stand prompted officials to make a similar arrest in Richmond.

Judge White indicates he has also received numerous phone calls at his office as well as his home congratulating him. He is quick to point out that he has also received at least two letters which criticized him from the viewpoint that he acted outside his jurisdiction.

When questioned on his feelings on this unexpected reaction White said "I think it shows the public is awakening to the fact there are too many people defiling the flag and we've got to protect it."

He added, "the silent majority is speaking up. They are in accord with protecting the flag and the country itself."

Team Celebrates Winning

Members of the Elks Little League Baseball Team were treated to a cookout in their honor, at the Somo East's home on Lakewood Circle to honor them on winning the Virginia Beach Borough Little League Minor Championship for 1970.

Each member of the team received an individual trophy bearing his name as a lasting memento of the team's achievement from Len Dombrowski, president of the Virginia Beach Borough Little League.

The occasion was also marked by the presentation of a number of other awards by Dombrowski which included a League Championship trophy to the manager of the Elks sponsored team Charles Reich, upon which was inscribed "Elks 1970 Championship"; the ball used in the last league game, which bore the signatures of all the players, to coach Don O'Rourke; and giving special recognition to coach Mike La Gilla for his outstanding training and unprecedented support at every practice session and game.

Those players who comprised the championship team included Ricky Walsh, Jeff Meyers, Lemmie Felton, Kevin Slattum, Mark Borden, Billy Gibson, Lawson Worrell, James Epps, Rusty Adams, Pat Standing, Bobby Hartman, Philip East, Jimmy Harding, Rob Crawford, Tim Rose, Mike Kinder and Jeff Stallings.

Following the presentation of awards the players were treated to hot dogs, hamburgers, corn-on-the-cob, ice cream and soft drinks.

"The happy I am when I'm straight is more beautiful than the happy I seemed to be when I was stoned"

The girl in the picture is named Chris. For over a year, she was on amphetamines, powerful drugs known as "speed." This is how she describes it:

"I think 'speed' is a lot worse than heroin. Kids have got to know about it, because they can fall so easily into taking it through the diet pill hassle, or needing something to help them study. You know, that's crazy. Because the combination of amphetamines and no sleep just blows your memory completely. There are whole sections of my life which I just can't remember. It got to be just 'do a little more, do a little more,' until that was all there was. And the 'crashing'... sometimes the 'crashing' is just really awful!

"For me to stop taking it, I had to feel that people were caring. And they were. I was really lucky. I was very close to two people that were really into amphetamines very deeply, and I loved them a lot. But as far as they were concerned, the only thing that they had was the 'meth,' and that was their life. And they're both dead now."

"Dexies," "bennies," "meth" are all called "speed" these days. And people who know "speed" know "speed" kills!

Concerts To Include Seminars

Virginia Wesleyan College will present a series of pre-concert seminars in cooperation with the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra during the Symphony's 1970-71 season.

The announcement was made this week by Joel B. Cooper, chairman of the Symphony's College Relations Committee and Virginia Wesleyan College's president, Dr. Lambuth M. Clarke.

The cooperative music lecture series will be held for members of the Virginia Wesleyan College community and their guests prior to each of this season's six subscription concerts. Russell Stanger, Music Director of the Symphony, will participate in several of the seminars.

Stanger has lectured at Virginia Wesleyan on several previous occasions for special programs.

The first seminar will be held in October prior to the Symphony's Oct. 12 opening.

Drug Arrests Continue

Four more arrests including two adults and two juveniles, were made by police in Virginia Beach last Saturday and Sunday.

Officials said Robert A. Jones, 30, of Norfolk, was arrested Saturday night during an investigation on Goodspeed Road. Jones reportedly was discovered in auto while having in his possession a small pipe containing traces of marijuana. Investigators said they also charged two 16-year-old juveniles from Hampton with possession of marijuana during a Saturday night investigation. The suspects were reportedly discovered smoking cigarettes containing marijuana while sitting on the beach near the 19th Street intersection with the oceanfront in the Beach Borough.

Authorities said they arrested William R. Cross, 22, on a charge of possession of hashish Sunday afternoon. Officials said they charged Cross at his house trailer in the 100 block of Virginia Beach Blvd. when their investigation allegedly led to the discovery of a quantity of hashish in the bedroom of the trailer.

Navy Man 'Serious'

Hospital officials Wednesday listed Richard W. Jarvis in serious condition under intensive medical care after being injured in an accident last Saturday night at the intersection of First Colonial Road and Pottery Road.

According to investigators Jarvis, 24, attached to FAAWTC Dam Neck, was injured when his car careened out of control, struck a traffic island, overturned and landed in a ditch. Jarvis, who was alone in the car at the time, reportedly received head and internal injuries as well as lacerations and abrasions in the accident.

He received emergency treatment at Virginia Beach General Hospital and was transferred to the Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

Attend Testing

Two Virginia Beach girls will begin their first week of orientation and testing at Centenary College for Women in Hackettstown, N.J. September 13.

They are Mary Dickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dickson Jr., Cornwall Lane and Susan Weing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Weing, of Windward Shore Drive.

Hester Waterfield, who for some time has served as "girl Friday" of the police department's Traffic Division, will be assuming new duties this week. She has been appointed Administrative Secretary to W. W. Flemming, director of the City's Department of Community Services. Janet Black, who has served in the department's Central Services Division will assume secretarial duties in the Traffic Division.

Congratulations are in order for officer M. M. Hanbury who this past week qualified as member of the police department's Underwater Squad and Diving Team. While carrying out his new responsibilities Hanbury will continue to be attached to the 2nd Police Precinct.

Police Dispatcher C. F. Cummings tells us he and his wife, Venita, and their children are still reminiscing over their recent trip to Florida. Cummings says they spent two weeks visiting such places as Silver Springs, Wekiwa, Weitchi Springs, Busch Gardens, Miami Beach, and the Florida Everglades. According to Cummings one of the highlights of the trip occurred while camping in the Everglades and the group passed some of the time by feeding alligators which had taken refuge in a nearby canal. Lt. C. R. Bailey, attached to 3rd Police Precinct, relates to us that he treated some friends visiting him from South Carolina to a fishing trip near Lessner Bridge. Bailey says that in just over an hour the group had used all their bait in landing over 100 spot and croaker and the catch and crew kept the stern of the outboard riding low in the water as they returned to shore.

We understand Joe Malesky, father of police Det. J. G. Malesky, will hold fond memories of his visit to the resort city this past week. Virginia Beach Shore Patrolman D. T. Loper tells he and the Maleskys joined J. P. George Queen for a fishing trip on Board the "Queen Gene" in waters off Ocean View with almost unbelievable luck. Loper says the group landed 243 Spot fish while making two successive trips off shore.

Rescued Boy Dies

An eight-year-old Richmond, boy died Saturday in King's Daughters Children's Hospital in Norfolk after remaining hospitalized since he was pulled from the Atlantic Ocean off Virginia Beach last Thursday afternoon.

Barry Gershman, son of the Sigmund A. Gershman's, had remained in critical condition since he was pulled from waters off 86th Street.

Officials said the young boy was pulled from the surf by an unidentified man. Virginia Beach police officers joined Beach Borough Rescue Squads in administering mouth to mouth resuscitation and cardiac massage to the boy on the beach. Treatment was continued as he was being transported to Virginia Beach General Hospital.

The boy was transferred to King's Daughters Hospital last Friday.

Coed Appeals Conviction

Judge P. B. White sentenced an Old Dominion University student to 30 days in jail and fined her $250 in Municipal Court Monday after finding her guilty of the charge of possessing marijuana.

Virginia Beach police arrested Jamie E. Barry, 19, of Norfolk on Aug. 11 when she reportedly was found to be in possession of a cigarette containing marijuana during an investigation at a residence in the 1800 block of Oceana Blvd.

Miss Barry noted an appeal of the conviction and was granted a release under bond pending the outcome of further legal proceedings.

Vepco Promotes Beach Foreman

The Virginia Electric and Power Company has announced the appointments of four members of its transmission and distribution department at different locations throughout the company's system.

Among them was Odell C. McGhee who has been appointed line foreman at Fredericksburg. McGhee was formerly line foreman at Virginia Beach.

Action Brings Reward

Mail Carrier Vance W. Apple was honored this past week when Virginia Beach Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite presented him with a Post Office Department's Special Achievement Certificate and an award of $150.

Apple was honored for displaying exemplary action on June 11 while returning from his tour of duty at the post office he noticed smoke coming from a residence on Old Forge Road and discovered the interior of the dwelling was on fire.

Placing a handkerchief over his face Apple crawled inside the dwelling and determined the house was unoccupied. He then removed a television set and sofa which were on fire and played water from a garden hose onto the fire until members of the Plaza Volunteer Fire Department arrived on the scene.

Lovisi Appeals

Circuit Court Judge George W. Vakos has sentenced Aldo M. Lovisi to 12 months in jail and fined him $1,000 following Lovisi's conviction of a charge of cruel and injurious treatment of a minor.

Lovisi was charged with the offense in connection with his 12-year-old stepdaughter when police confiscated a large quantity of movies, still photographs, books and literature classified as obscene from the Lovisi home in Alanton last year.

Lovisi has appealed his conviction to the State Supreme Court.

Chief Todd of the Plaza Department credited Carrier Apple with preventing a greater damage to the dwelling through his alert action.

His Freedom Short-Lived

William D. Gwaltney was charged with the sale of narcotics moments after he left Virginia Beach Municipal Court Monday morning at the conclusion of his appearance on two other charges of violating drug abuse laws.

Gwaltney, 20, of Oak Terrace, Virginia Beach, was appearing in court on charges of the possession and sale of hashish, and a drug related charge of maintaining a common nuisance. A legal technicality during court proceedings resulted in the charges against Gwaltney being dismissed.

As Gwaltney was leaving the court room police re-arrested him on the charge of sale of hashish, in the City of Norfolk.

Suspect

Charged

After Year

Officials say they have scheduled Joseph Caruso of Richmond to appear in Virginia Beach Municipal Court on Friday, Aug. 21 to face charges of burglary.

Police officials say they have charged 59-year-old Caruso with the July 6, 1969 alleged burglary of a private home in the 2000 block of Holland Road during which jewelry and a coin collection representing a combined value of some $15,000 were reportedly stolen.

Robert V. Hancock, Special Agent in Charge of the Norfolk, FBI Office said that Caruso was arrested by FBI agents in Norfolk on a federal warrant charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Authorities said Caruso was turned over to Virginia Beach police and ordered held in the City Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond pending further legal proceedings.

Fall fashion is big put on

'Soft Touch' advised

What is "poisson" (fish) to a French chef is sometimes poison to an American cook. Many homemakers who think nothing of tackling a 20-pound turkey or a 12-pound roast blanch at the thought of doing justice to a sliver of sole.

Cooking fish doesn't have to be nerve-racking according to Billy Williams, expert fisherman and proprietor of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel's unique Sea Gull cafe and snack bar. Here, three-and-a-half-miles from Virginia Beach on one of the ocean-going highway's four man-made islands, fish is the daily highlight of the menu. Freshly caught and perfectly prepared, the fish served at the reasonably priced snack bar is gaining a reputation among motorists from all over the country. In fact, the delicious food served by the cafe shop and the breath-taking view of ocean, ships, and gulls that nature provides make a stop on the island doubly irresistible for travelers on the Bridge-Tunnel.

According to Billy Williams and his wife, Jane, who manages the rapidly expanding gift shop, there is no great trick to cooking fish. "Be sure your fish is fresh, then cook it with tender, loving care," says Billy. "Fish should be cooked only long enough to firm the flesh. When the fish separates easily from the bone, it's done." Overcooking, he adds, toughens the fish and destroys its delicate flavor.

Some of the Sea Gull Pier fish dishes that enjoy great favor with travelers are these:

SEA GULL PIER CLAM CHOWDER

- 1 cup of diced, white potatoes
- 1 small onion, chopped fine
- 1 small green pepper, chopped fine
- 1/2 cup carrots, chopped fine
- 1/2 cup diced bacon fried to a crisp
- 1 pint of clams, chopped or ground
- Save all liquor when opening clams

(See 'Chowder' p. 8)

Put it on - add that second skin of nature's design - wool. This fall individual designer pieces are the greatest put ons to put-together - daring the demure to interplay and integrate the spectrum of wool fabrics which have served as a palette for the talents of ready-to-wear designers, for the best of fashion comes in modern, inventive wool - the fabric of the future that women have relied upon in the past.... printed wools in tiny tiles, delicate flowers, wild primitives and paisley patterned challis, striped wool flannels, plaided fleeces, perennial tweeds, patchwork woven wools, solid meltons reversing to geometric patterned wool velours as well as jerseys in disguise; feather-weight fantasy patterns, chevron, tweeds, mock tricot and fleecy flannels, many of which are machine washable. The focus on coloring is plum, terra-cotta, magenta, Bordeaux red, juniper and wintergreen, smokey black as well as soft foamy green, mallard blue, smoke gray, dove brown and a delicate peach.

The fashionable of the future will find that skirt lengths are free of formula in every fashion category. Sportive put-ons such as skirts, jumpers, knickers and gaucho pants are newly elongated, just fourteen inches from the floor skimming the tops of the smartest wool flannel zipped boots worn with matching opaque pantyhose to shade the leg at the high/low closing chosen by the wearer. Skirts are wrapped in closing, kilted, pleated and slit for seduction. Mindful of proportion, put-on a wool topper, whether tunic, jacket, blouse, vest or coat - all have narrow shoulders - a bodice that hugs the bosom, and a waist almost always defined. Play a lightweight wool sweater against a heavy textured wool skirt, put-on a printed wool vest of contoured shaping, add a narrow striped scarf, a woolen knit hat, the jaunty fitted boots - all are fashion delights to characterize the contemporary woman.

The wool suit is up as a forerunner of the fall season. Short-jacketed suits in fine wool crepe, knits in three parts, skirt and longer jacket combined with a matching tunic or contrasting textured skinny sweater update classic looks. The individualists will wear a wool twill vested knicker suit with a heavy textured turtleneck sweater. Put-on sophistication - the gaucho suit with slimly flared mid length pants is particularly pretty with its own short crisply tailored jacket simulating the bolero - fabric alternatives in this styling are wool tweeds, jacquards, knits and flannels with passementerie embroidery or ethnic-inspired trappings.

Particularly attractive is the aviator suit - again the put-on of many pieces, the separate skirt zipped from hem to waist, its textured tweed blouse zipper forming a metallic motif of pretty brightness and practicality. An alternative to the suit jacket and coat is the cape, softly flowing in silhouette, romantically, dramatically making its fashion point. The cape is uniquely elegant for seasonal suit situations matched with skirts, trousers and gaucho pants mid-calf long.

In the coverup category, expect the unexpected.... wool coats, capes, ponchos, put-together partners are matching wool dresses and separates to create the costume the custom look of ready-to-wear. The couture consciously claims a flowing concept of movement, the one thing characterizing all designs in length - Longuette. Great wool capes and coats in subtlest of seaming lead the way to new fashion excitement combined with stunning dresses for day and evening. Capes, many with hoods will keep the best of the new looks under wraps this Fall... body suits, pattern mid skirts and shirts, the longer supple evening gowns of sheer wool weight. All coverups take beautifully to piping, self fabric fringing, fur trim and architectural detailing with leather, braid and rem-embroidered banding.

Wool fabrics are imaginatively mastered by dress designers. Girl dressing has a new spirited direction. Natural body curves will shape fluid fabrics particularly sweater knit styles skimming the body from a high neckline to a longer hemline. Simple silhouettes with a wrapped closing, skirts center pleated, flared or fluted stem from easy defined waists tucked, widely belted or drawn to flexible dimensions by a midriff tie.

The Longuette wool shirt-dress can be a sedate or as sexy as the wearer wishes - much depends upon the mobility of a seemingly modish closing - when left open exposing a lengthy bit of leg. The shirtdress or cardigan dress admirably pairs with pants to extend the fashion life of individual wardrobe pieces. Two piece dresses become bilingual with bi-colorings and fabrics patterns. Ladylike dresses in wildlife and primitive prints are narrowed throughout and massively pleated throughout the skirt. An interpretation of the granny dresses will bring a knowing smile from the elder group when glancing at leg o' mutton sleeves.

The daring so long missing in fashion is back with decollete necklines declaring a contrast to pretty pristine long sleeves. Black is back with the daring in a spectrum of woven wools as rivals.

Fashion is all fabrics -- it is the courage of choice... wander down the path of fashion with an open mind, ready for a myriad of delights. You'll be a trend setter in the most exciting decade women have ever known.

Date is berry

How much do you know about dates, that popular dried fruit of the Phoenix dactylifera tree? According to the people at the Bordo Imported pitted and diced dates, the fruit is a one-seeded berry, usually more or less oblong, but varying much in shape, size, color and consistency of flesh, depending on its variety and growth conditions. Dates are an excellent source of natural sugar and they provide plenty of energy and stamina, an important asset in today's active pressured world.

Are Wedding Bells Ringing?

If you are announcing an engagement or wedding, why not do it in the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN?

Brides are asked to submit their photographs (5x7 or 8x10 glossy) by Monday of the week they want the announcement to appear on Thursday. Wedding and engagement forms are available at the newspaper office, 3108 Pacific Avenue.

All weddings and engagements received will be used. However, photographs will not be returned by mail but may be picked up at the newspaper office.

Provence is sun country

It has been said that the first fact of life in Provence, in the southeastern corner of France, is the sun. Its brilliant light has charmed such painters as Cezanne, Van Gogh, Renoir, Matisse and Picasso. Its warmth has made the French Riviera renowned, and it gives the world the sprightly wines of the Cotes de Provence.

Provence wines are a summer delight -- a fact that has helped make the region known for its wine and cheese plagues. The long golden days bring out the best bouquet of the grapes. Everyone who has traveled through the heart of Provence, north of the coastal ranges, will have seen the fragrant rows of heavy clusters which become red, white and rose wines.

The wines of the Cotes de Provence are enjoyed at any hour of the day, whether at a formal dinner or al fresco. But it is in the beautiful outdoors that they seem to come into their own. One sees families or groups of friends laughing and chatting around a table cloth spread with meats, cheeses, fresh bread, fruit and as an ever-present companion, a bottle or two of Cotes de Provence wine. Sensibly enough, the French consider wine not only as a refreshing beverage, but a food as well.

Wines of the Cotes de Provence are now available in most American cities, renewing memories of travel throughout this glamorous part of France. Americans planning a visit to Provence can obtain a list of wineries who welcome visitors by writing to Wines of Provence, Empire State Building, New York, New York 10001 enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

If you're planning a picnic, Provencal style, try these recipes for Skewered Lamb, Marinated Green Beans and Tuna Salad, and don't forget the wine.

BROCHETTE D'AGNEAU (Skewered Marinated Lamb)

- 2 lbs. boneless shoulder or leg of lamb
- 1/3 cup olive or salad oil
- 3 tbsp. Provence rose wine
- 1 small onion, quartered
- 1 clove garlic, halved
- 1-1/4 tsp. rosemary leaves, crumbled
- 1 tsp. French style mustard
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. ground black pepper
- 2 zucchini (1 lb. each) sliced into 1-inch pieces
- 1/2 lb. whole fresh mushrooms

Trim lamb into 1-1/2 inch cubes. Place meat in a snug fitting bowl; set aside. Combine oil, wine, onion, garlic, rosemary, mustard, salt and black pepper; mix well. Pour over meat. Cover and refrigerate 3 hours. Thread meat on skewers alternating with zucchini and mushrooms. Broil over hot charcoal, about 15 to 25 minutes, or until, turning and basting occasionally with marinade. Yield: 6 portions.

THON EN SALADE PROVENCE (Tuna Salad Provence)

- 1 can (7 oz.) tuna fish, drained and chunked
- 3 tbsp. finely chopped celery
- 1 tsp. finely chopped onion
- 1 tsp. chopped parsley
- 2 tsp. olive or salad oil
- 2 tsp. vinegar
- 1/2 tsp. chervil leaves, crumbled
- 1/2 tsp. tarragon leaves, crumbled
- 1/8 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. ground white pepper

In a small bowl combine tuna, celery, onion and parsley; set aside. Mix oil, vinegar, chervil, tarragon, salt and white pepper. Pour over tuna mixture, toss gently. Serve as an hors d'oeuvre or as a salad. Yield: about 2 cups.

SUMMER PICNIC in the French manner-- wine marinated kebabs, and tuna salad with fresh bread, cheese and fruit and a bottle of Provence wine.

HARICOTS VERTS VINAIGRETTE (Marinated Green Beans)

- 1-1/2 lbs. tender green beans
- 4 tbsp. olive or salad oil
- 3 tbsp. Provence rose wine
- 2 tsp. chopped parsley
- 2 tsp. chopped chives
- 3/4 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. French-style

mustard
1/4 tsp. paprika
1/8 tsp. ground white pepper

Trim stem ends of beans. Cut in half if large. Cook in boiling salted water 5 to 7 minutes or until just crisp-tender. Drain and cool. Meanwhile combine remaining ingredients; blend well. Pour over beans and chill at least 1 hour before serving. Serve as an hors d'oeuvre or salad. Yield: 6 portions.

McAllen's ALLEY

By Carolyn McAllen

They couldn't have been that long

My past has caught up with me--or at least my mother's compulsion to pack everything away has.

While I was on vacation, I ran across some old corduroy skirts of mine in a closet. (Actually my mother led me to the closet and stood over me while I cleared it out.) Anyhow, I picked out several which did not even have shiny seats and brought them back with me with the intention of using the material to make skirts for my girls.

In one of my more impulsive moments last week I happened to try on one of the skirts (it still fastened), complete with a vest. Not only was it mild, it was almost maxi. The hem hit just about mid-calf. To top it off I pulled on my knee boots. Really, I felt like something out of the dark ages.

The reaction from my teenage niece was immediate. "I'll never wear my skirts THAT long. I bet you even wore saddle shoes."

After denying the saddle shoes (we were in the loafer age), I waited for my daughters' reactions, which weren't quite what I expected.

"That looks groovy," said the nine-year-old. "I want a midi skirt too."

"Daddy will like it," was the seven-year-old's contribution.

The funny thing is that I don't remember my skirts ever being that long. It's a wonder I didn't break my neck going up and down steps. No wonder cars used to have running boards. How else could a woman get in a car unless she had a mounting block like they once had to get on horses. Maybe I've just shrunk.

However, long skirts and high boots could come in handy at times--like in January when the temperature is 30 and the wind is blowing from the north.

A FAREWELL—but not for far. Last week the Officers Wives Club at Ft. Story gave a farewell tea for Mrs. Daniel K. Byrne, wife of the former commanding officer of Ft. Story who has just been transferred to Continental Army Command (CONARC) at Ft. Monroe. From left to right are Mrs. Edward C. Allen, Mrs. Stephen W. Carkeek, Mrs. Byrne and Mrs. James Coleman, president of the club. The Wives also presented her with a gift.

Move out plants

Summertime!

But the living isn't always easy in hot weather, but those wise to the ways of summer comfort can make it easier.

Ages ago, desert "foxes" learned that loose-fitting, light-colored clothing was a must for survival in areas where a "cool" day is still in the low 100s. And the English, who colonized India, gave us another helpful hint—they learned that small quantities of citrus not only quench thirst but reduce excessive liquid intake. Loose-fitting clothing and citrus juices are as effective today as they were hundreds of years ago. And more sophisticated means of dealing with hot weather are now being used.

Did you know, for example, that moving houseplants out of doors during the day can reduce indoor humidity? Or that the hottest time in your house is likely to be six or eight hours after the sun has reached its zenith?

Housework is best done in the early hours of the morning, as is the practice in the sweltering nations of the Middle East, or late at night. To keep from overheating doctors recommend a lower calorie consumption during the summer, and experts say a good deodorant will not only cool, but prevent uncomfortable stickiness.

Another "summer cum laude" way of cooling it is to make sure that the heat penetrating the interior of your home is kept to a minimum. This means protecting exposed glass areas with awnings, roof overhangs and other devices. It also means providing adequate ventilation and liberal insulation in roofs, walls and other exposed areas.

Nowhere are people doing more about the weather today than in the American home, where millions of families enjoy the many benefits of air conditioning. Their reasons for purchasing air conditioning units generally include more sleep, more restful sleep, lower temperature and humidity, better appetites, less housework, relief from allergy problems, more family "togetherness," less noise from outdoors and less money spent on outside entertainment in the summer.

Most houses soak up heat like a sponge by late afternoon. If you wait until then to turn on an air conditioner, the load will be more than it can efficiently cope with, and it will labor for hours to catch up. Be sure to turn your air conditioner on relatively early in the day. For maximum efficiency, doors and windows should be kept closed and shielded from direct sunlight.

Whether or not you have an air conditioner, you can keep summer humidity levels down by venting other appliances and restricting moisture-producing activities such as showering, bathing, laundering, mopping and scrubbing to early morning or late evening hours.

Comfort in your home is an important part of sensible summer living.

The wedding will take place Aug. 27 at the New Perth Presbyterian Church in Troutman.

Life revolves around light

Some folks may believe that money makes the world go around, but those who understand nature know better. Light is the unique source of energy upon which we depend for our existence and progress.

Light provides the energy for photosynthesis which produces all of our food. Without light there would be no green plants, and thus no food for animals or man. The earth would be a barren, lifeless sphere.

The interesting plant growth phenomena we would like to emphasize at this time is the photoperiod. This response of plants to the daily duration of light and darkness is of great importance to home gardeners and horticulturists.

The flowering of most plants is directly related to the length of the light and dark periods to which they are exposed. Some plants such as chrysanthemum, cosmos and poinsettia develop flowers only under short day conditions.

Commercial florists and home gardeners may use the long and short day photoperiod characteristic to adjust the blooming date of their plants. Years ago for example, you could have chrysanthemums only during the fall. Now, by shading the plants when the days are long, you can cause them to bloom in the spring and early summer.

Although classified according to the length of the daylight period, the response of plants to light is actually due to the duration of the dark period. Scientists determined this by observing that breaking the long dark period in the middle, even for a very short time, prevented the flowering of short day plants.

The study of photoperiodism can become quite complicated. As gardeners, we need only to be familiar with this phenomena and appreciate its importance in the flowering of our plants.

Chowder

Boil all ingredients together (except clams and clam liquor) until potatoes are done. Add clams and clam liquor and let cook a few minutes. Make a flour roux of approximately 1 1/2 cups flour and water; add to chowder to desired thickness. Let come to a boil. Serves 4 to 6.

SEAGULL PIER FLOUNDER

Two 2-lb. flounders (1-lb. per person)
3 cups of milk
2 eggs
cracker meal or cornmeal for breading

Beat eggs and milk together to make batter. Dip flounder, (each piece separate) into batter. Roll in meal. Cook in deep fat at 360 degrees. (Be sure temperature has reached 360 degrees before dropping flounder into fat. Cook for 3 minutes. Serves 4.

SEAGULL PIER STUFFED FLOUNDER

Use four (4) fresh 1 to 1 1/2 lb. baby flounders. Scale both sides and scrape mud out of dark side of each fish; fillet dark side open. Stuff with crab meat mixture. Fold dark sides over crab meat. Broil until golden brown.

STUFFING FOR FLOUNDER

1 lb. can deluxe crab meat
1 egg
1 teaspoon seafood seasoning
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
1/2 small onion, chopped fine
1/2 small green pepper, chopped fine
2 tablespoons cracker meal
1 tablespoon mustard

Mix all ingredients well. This is enough mixture for four baby flounders. Use this stuffing for Sea Gull Pier Stuffed Flounder. Serves 4.

SEAGULL PIER TARTAR SAUCE

1/2 cup onion (chopped fine)
1/2 cup dill pickle relish
1/2 cup stuffed olives (chopped fine)
1 cup mayonnaise (use more or less depending on desired consistency)
Mix all ingredients well. Serves 4 to 6.

SEAGULL PIER COLE SLAW

1 small or medium cabbage
2 tsp. vinegar
2 tsp. lemon juice
1 small or medium cabbage
2 tsp. vinegar
2 tsp. lemon juice
2 1/2 T sugar
Dash of white pepper
1/2 tsp. of salt
1/2 tsp. of celery seed

Mix all ingredients, adding mayonnaise to thickness and taste desired. Serves 4 to 6.

Facilities at Sea Gull Island include a 625-foot-long fishing pier built out over the blue waters of the Bay. Here motorists can try their luck at "deep sea" fishing with none of the headaches—no chance of getting seasick, no likelihood of going short of bait, no possibility of running out of gas. "TUMMY" RUBBING

On a trip to Europe last spring PATRICIA SUE COX didn't pass up an opportunity to take advantage of an age old tradition when she visited the Town Square in Brussels, Belgium, well known for its beautiful lace. She was guided to an old rustic looking statue set in the wall of one of the shops. The only shiny place on the statue was a small spot on its "tummy." Patty soon found out why.

It's a custom for all unmarried ladies to rub the statue on the tummy, make a wish to be married and purchase a piece of lace to be used on the day of the wedding (the wish is guaranteed to come true). Patty made her wish, bought her lace, then went along her merry way.

Miss Cox

Back home again her many friends called to ask her about her trip. Among them was DANIEL ARTHUR CONRAD whom she had known for some time, had occasionally dated but, prior to his calling, she had not seen nor heard from for almost a year.

Many dates followed after that phone call, and Patty and Danny plan to be married in January 1971, shortly after Patty graduates from Mary Washington College. Danny has one more year to complete at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond. And, yes, Patty will wear her Brussels lace on her wedding day. Rose Hall is making it into a gorgeous mantilla for the happy occasion.

Anyone for "tummy rubbing" in Brussels?

SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING NEW??

DODA MARIE ROBERTS and both. When she dressed in her NEW bridal gown for her formal portrait sitting, her "something OLD" was unmistakable as well as beautiful. A heavy gold cross with filigreed gold entwining sapphire and diamond chips within the cross is too beautiful for words but, then again, so is Doda!

The Cross

The cross is very old, says Doda, and has been handed down within her family for years. The only history she knows for certain is the fact that her grandmother brought it to this country with her when she came here 75 years ago. All the brides in Doda's family have worn it on their wedding day, and she feels it is a great privilege for her to do so. Great tradition, don't you agree?

Mrs. Starkey

Doda was married to FORREST LEROY STARKEY, JR. on Aug. 8. She will graduate from Radford College next March while Skip is working on his master's degree at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Doda and Skip met at the entrance to "The Cove" where boys are not allowed unless accompanied by a young lady from Radford. Skip and a friend were trying to persuade two young ladies to "escort" them into "The Cove" but didn't had much luck until Doda and her girlfriend happened by and were persuaded to assist the young men. Evidently Skip didn't find the girls inside more fascinating because he spent that evening and many thereafter—should we say, "doing on Doda"?

Evie's Pointer to the Bride: Announcements are not sent to those who have been invited to the wedding.

(Anyone with items of interest on engagements and/or weddings, tell your story to Mrs. Evie Myatt, Bridal Consultant at Rose Hall.)

Sidewalks help tired tootsies

If you yearn to visit Japan's EXPO '70, but still remember all that walking at other fairs, Cartan Travel Bureau, Inc., a division of Carte Blanche, has moving sidewalks! The walks operate in transparent tubes and will carry about 9,000 people an hour...and they're air conditioned.

Be gentle

Abrasive cleaners should never be used on wall paneling even to remove hardened gum or grease in kitchen areas. For a tough-looking cleaning job, add a solution of any good household detergent to the wash water, suggests Abtibi Corporation, makers of vinyl- and plastic-coated panels.

Cotton liners provide cellulose for making rayon.

Protectors Keep You From Coming Up Short

BY JAMES TURNER

Each morning, A. F. Zegan comes to work with but one thought in mind: protecting you. Zegan doesn't wear a uniform or carry a gun. His tools are a set of weights, scales, intricately designed containers and a lot of common sense.

Zegan, a weights and measures inspector for the newly created Consumer Protection Division, is out to protect the consumer, and his 'man' is anything that's not weighing right or not giving the consumer what he's paying for.

"We check everything," he said. "It doesn't make any difference what it is." Nothing escapes the scrutiny of Zegan.

"I've been wondering whether the coin operated dryers and washers give you the full wash time or a full ten minutes in the dryer. It's not something we check, but I still wonder if it does.

"If a man puts in a dime for the ten minutes, he ought to get the full time on the dryer," he said. "It's the principal of the thing."

That principal leads Zegan to inspect everything from oil delivery trucks to taxi cab meters. When in supermarkets, he checks for meats that might be short, prepackaged candies that might be underweight, or anything else that might cause the consumer to be cheated.

Probably the two areas that he and the city's only other inspector concentrate on are gasoline stations and supermarkets.

When Zegan arrives at the gas station to check its pumps and any other devices that should give the purchaser a specified amount, he knows that inspection will be long and tiring.

The first thing he does is tell the owner he's there. "We always want to maintain good relations with the people we check."

Depending on the number of pumps at the station, Zegan often has to carry as much as 1,000 pounds of gas to run two simple tests. "There's one station that has about 55 pumps, and that's a lot of gas," he said.

Zegan checks the gas pumps at slow and fast rates of delivery, pumping five gallons of gas at each rate. If the gas delivered is not five gallons, plus or minus seven cubic inches, he tags the pump for rejection, giving the owner ten days to have the item repaired.

If the pump is new or has just been repaired, the tolerance is only three and one-half cubic inches.

Zegan said he sees that the pump has a dollar and decimal signs, shows the price per gallon, the number of gallons pumped, and the total cost, all of which he checks to make sure that the computing device is accurate.

Other devices checked include the air eliminator, the interlocking device on the pump, and the anti-drain valve, which keeps the hose full of gasoline up to the nozzle.

"If the valve allows one-half a cent's worth to register without delivering it, the pump's rejected," he said. "That's not very much gas or money, but you figure that if he cheats each man half a cent on every delivery, over the long run he'll be making some money."

If the pump, which is given a seal of approval as it's checked each year, passes inspection, Zegan goes on to the other devices in the station including the grease delivery units and kerosene pumps.

"What most people think is that we're out to protect just the consumer, but we also are here to protect the distributor. They're also consumers, and we see that they don't end up losing money on either end," said Zegan.

That attitude apparently is most appreciated in supermarkets, for Food Fair manager Sol Musarra is constantly aware of how easily the store can be "shorted" through a simple miscalculation by a weigher and how costly that mistake can be.

"It's a help to us to be checked. It's just as easy to do it one way as it is the other," Musarra said.

Zegan said that generally if there are any items in a store that might be short, they can be found in the meat cases. Red meats are suspect because they tend to dehydrate in the cases. The other potential offenders are chickens, which have a large percentage of fluid and tend to leak, he said.

When Zegan walks into the store, he carries with him a set of weights, a large scale, and a contraption he designed so he can mount the scales atop a shopping cart.

"It might look a little funny, but it works," he said.

After donning a white laboratory coat with weights and measures patch on back, he takes a walk along the cases in the store, selecting items at random.

"Usually, we try to be out of a store in three hours, because we don't want to create any problems or bad images," Zegan said. "We don't check the whole store in that time, but what we do is select the meats, or the prepacked items, or any other category and check them at one time."

"Everything in the store eventually gets checked during the year at least."

If meats are to be checked, he asks for the tare weight of the packaging. Tare weight is the total weight of the plastic wrap and the container, which is not included in the weight shown on the label.

"I check seven items in a lot and if the pluses are less than the minuses, then I check up to ten lots," he said. "The tolerances are read in the hundredths of an ounce."

If, after checking ten lots, the minuses are still greater, then the whole lot is ordered pulled, he said and must be re-weighed.

Zegan said faulty weighing is usually due to neglect on the part of the weigher, poor supervision or else a scale that is out of alignment.

Musarra said that since meats are most often off weight, red meats not sold after the first day are reweighed. Bone end meats are weighed every two days, and chickens are weighed every day. If the chickens are still in the case after three days they are pulled completely.

"If we have too much meat in the case, it means that the cutter hasn't been doing his job properly. He should know what our production is going to be, and not go over it," Musarra said.

Zegan said that if the meats in the case tend to be off, he'll begin to check the whole case. "It's rare, but some cases have been pulled completely and re-weighed," he said.

In June, it wasn't meat but milk that the inspectors ordered pulled. The error in volumes provided in gallons and quarts was discovered and traced back to the dairies. The containers, both glass and wax-board, were found to be deficient by as much as three or more ounces and ordered destroyed and the error corrected.

Assistant Sealer E. L. Whitehurst Jr. said that the dairies and supermarkets, to his knowledge, don't commit the errors with the intent to defraud, and thus aren't given summons for the violations. "The only violation I've ever had in court was when a man was convicted for delivering a short cord of wood," he said. "It cost him $25 and court costs."

Whitehurst said the complaint came in from someone who'd bought what he thought was a short cord. "A cord is defined as 128 cubic feet of wood, well stacked and stored," he said, "and I guess it wasn't." Although the weights and measures inspectors haven't yet begun their new assignment in the field of consumer protection as established by administrative reorganization, Whitehurst thinks they've been in the field for a long time. "We're out to keep people from getting cheated and seeing that a man gets what he pays for."

"That's all consumer protection is, anyway. Seeing that people get what they pay for. All of this," Whitehurst said, gesturing to opened cans and packages that have been checked, "is consumer protection."

Psychiatric Hospital Gets Council's Okay

Despite protests of about 75 residents, City Council Monday approved a use permit application by the Psychiatric Institute of America for a 100 bed facility on First Colonial Road near the General Hospital of Virginia Beach, by a vote of nine to one.

The hospital, the first of its kind in the state and the second in the nation, is to be constructed between Will-O-Wisp and Wildwood drives. Opposition to the facility's location was based on "traffic problems" it would create.

The profit hospital, to be administered by Robert W. Fleming, will be owned and operated by nine local psychiatrists, but will be developed, sponsored and maintained on a consultative basis by the PIA.

Fleming told council the group had thoroughly searched the city for other sites, including the Cavalier Hotel, the White Heron, and the general hospital annex on 25th Street.

Each one of these sites were satisfactory, he said, because they weren't close enough to the general hospital to allow for mutual use of facilities.

Another factor to be considered is the effect of the location on the patients, Fleming said. "It must be maintained in the community atmosphere to remain a part of the community and to help the patients feel that they are still a part of the community."

"This is a unique and special facility in the area," Medical Director Dr. Stuart Ashman said. "We expect to operate as a voluntary hospital and don't expect to take any committed patients."

However, Dr. Ashman said they would take any patients on an emergency basis. "There are some who have had to spend a few nights in jail; now we hope that won't happen," he said.

He said that at present there is a need for one bed per 1,000 residents. "We need at least 160 beds in this one facility" and added that even though there are no special psychiatric facilities at the general hospital, about 10 to 13 patients are being treated there.

Dr. Ashman said that the bulk of patients are expected to be of the intermediate care type, requiring four to six weeks of hospitalization. "There will be no custodial care patients."

"We do not intend to operate a constantly locked facility. That type of patient is few and far between," he said.

Fleming said that "any patients that are disturbed would be under constant medical supervision" and added that they would not be allowed to wander about unsupervised.

"This is an entirely different concept of a mental hospital other than the old style of a custodial care hospital," he said.

But despite the reassurances of Fleming and Dr. Ashman, residents weren't satisfied that the patients would be under control.

H. L. Hoffman, president of the First Colonial Civic League, told council the league supports the need for a mental hospital but "strongly opposes its location." He suggested that the hospital be located next to the Mental Hygiene Clinic on Wildwood Drive or north of the general hospital next to other professional buildings under construction.

Attorney W. Leigh Ansell, who said he represented some 87 homes in the area, said "if this was a psychiatric hospital I wouldn't be here today."

Nothing that the hospital has no grounds to speak of, he said he understood that the facility wouldn't have any bars, walls, fences, or uniforms.

"These people can wander around wherever they want," Ansell said. "You wouldn't want these people wandering around where your children lived."

Even though there are no plans to accept a committed patient, Ansell told council there would be no way to keep them from being admitted once the permit was approved.

He added that there would be additional traffic problems with the construction of the facility, adding to the already congested situation near the hospital and new professional facilities.

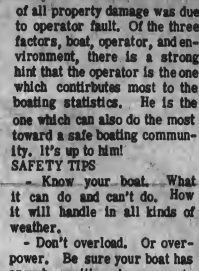

But PIA Attorney Thomas C. Broyles said he had called Reeves Johnson, the city's former director of safety, and Johnson had told him there was no traffic problem presented in the area.

Broyles said that the hospital has an option to buy three acres adjacent to the site if parking becomes a problem, as suggested by several of the residents and Ansell.

In addition, Broyles said the hospital would create a service entrance off Will-O-Wisp Drive instead of Wildwood Drive to reduce the flow of traffic.

Making a motion to approve the use permit, Councilman Lawrence Marshall noted that it appeared to him that a pediatric hospital would create no more traffic problems than a psychiatric hospital, and asked council's approval of the hospital's request.

The only councilman opposing approval of the permit was Kenneth M. Whitehurst Sr.; the motion carried 10 - 1.

Col. Lowell R. Hutson (left), who assumed command of Fort Story on Tuesday, joins his predecessor, Col. Daniel K. Byrne, in an informal discussion.

Change of Command at Fort Story

Colonel Lowell R. Hutson assumed command of Fort Story Monday at Change of Command Ceremony held at the NCO Club, Fort Story. He succeeded Colonel Daniel K. Byrne who had been commander since March 1969.

During the ceremony, the Meritorious Service Medal was presented by Major General Howard F. Schiltz commanding general of Ft. Eustis-Ft. Story, to Colonel Byrne for the period June 1967 to August 10, 1970. This period includes Colonel Byrne's service as Commander of Fort Story and Director of the Transportation Employment and Military Arts Department of the Army Transportation School, Ft. Eustis. Colonel Byrne's new assignment is at Headquarters, U. S. Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va.

Colonel Hutson arrives at Ft. Story from Washington where he served on the Joint Logistic Review Board of the Secretary of Defense. Previously he completed a tour of duty in Vietnam where he was the Deputy Commander of the 124th Transportation Command from September 1968 to April 1969 and earlier the commander of the 39th and 24th Transportation Battalions.

Colonel Hutson was born in Enid, Oklahoma in September 1922. He is married and has three children.

He is a graduate of Bakersfield Jr. College in California and has a B. A. in Psychology from George Washington University.

Colonel Hutson has had five overseas tours of duty, two in Europe and three in the Far East. He has commanded two transportation battalions at Fort Eustis, Va. and was Director of Movements, 2nd Logistic Command in Okinawa in 1968.

Military Schooling includes Transportation Officers Basic and Advanced Courses, Command and General Staff College and the Army Management Course.

Among Colonel Hutson's decorations are the Legion of Merit for Vietnam Service, the Army Commendation Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citation.

SEAL Team Wins Special Citation

The Navy's elite SEAL Team Two has received the Presidential Unit Citation in ceremonies at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base parade grounds. Admiral E. P. Holmes, Commander in Chief, U. S. Atlantic Fleet, presented the award to the Team for "...exceptionally meritorious and heroic service from July 1, 1967 to June 30, 1969 in the conduct of unconventional warfare against armed enemy in the Republic of Vietnam."

Virtually every combat decoration which can be awarded to Naval personnel has been awarded to the Team. Since its commissioning in 1962, members have been decorated with 575 combat awards.

In addition to the PUC, 28 other decorations were presented to the men from SEAL Team Two, Beach Jumper Unit Two, Boat Support Unit Two and Underwater Demolition Team 22 by Vice Admiral Luther C. Heinz, Commander Amphibious Force.

The ceremony's highest award, the Silver Star, went to Engineman 2C, Robert Christopher, who also received the Bronze Star. Christopher served with a SEAL Team platoon in the Rung Sat Special Zone, Vietnam, as a machine gunner. On Nov. 24, 1969, his platoon came in contact with a camouflaged sampan in a small canal. When the boat was given to open fire, Christopher delivered a devastating volley of machine gun rounds toward an armed enemy bunker, and continued to do so despite being seriously wounded in the left leg by automatic weapons fire.

The P.O. 2C, then was shot in both hands, and his ammunition box exploded, but he continued to fight the enemy with grenades until he sustained a severe head wound, and succumbed to unconsciousness.

Christopher was still recovering in the Balboa Naval Hospital in San Diego last week, but was flown here by the Navy to be present for the PUC presentation, and to receive his personal decorations.

Aviation Ordnanceman 2C, Thomas H. Keith of SEAL Team Two was the only participant to receive three awards, the Bronze Star, Navy Commendation Medal and Navy Achievement Medal.

Two other members of SEAL Team Two received two decorations each, Signalman 1C, Robert A. Neidrauer and Machinist Mate 1C, Paul R. Evancoe were awarded Bronze Stars and Navy Commendation Medals.

Additional Bronze Stars were presented to 12 other SEALs and one other member of UDT 22. Lt. Theodore E. Grabowsky, executive officer of UDT 22, and Seal Team's Senior Chief Boatswain's Mate Louis A. Kucinski, Shipfitter 1C, Larry B. Bradley, Aviation Ordnanceman 1C, Michael Boynton, Chief Machinist's Mate Hershel B. Davis, Commissaryman 1C, Roy D. Matthews, Radioman 1C, John W. Rowell, Torpedoman's Mate 2C, William Coulson, Shipfitter (Pipefitter) 2C, Michael L. McDonald, Machinery Repairman 2C, Ronnie E. Roberts, Boatswain's Mate 2C, Ronald J. Rodger, Electrician's Mate 2C, Jack J. Squires and Aviation Machinist's Mate (Jet) 2C, Robert L. Moore all received Bronze Stars.

Master Chief Boatswain's Mate Rudolph E. Boesch of SEAL Team Two was presented with the Navy Achievement Medal, while Boat Support Unit Two's Engineman 2C, Robert J. Fox and Beach Jumper Unit Two's Ensign Robert C. Kahrl and Radioman 3C, Fred D. Romine were awarded the Navy Achievement Medal.

Boat Support Unit Two's Gunner's Mate Gunner 3C, Michael W. Robinson was presented the Navy Commendation Medal, while one Purple Heart was pinned on Boatswain's Mate 3C, William G. Beebe of SEAL Team Two.

Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite (left) presents M. M. Nash, Jr., with a Service Award Certificate on Nash's retirement following 31 years of service with the Virginia Beach Postal Service.

He Followed Father's Career

Merrel M. Nash, Jr., of Virginia Beach was honored during a special luncheon last Thursday at the Shore Drive Inn on his retirement from the Post Office Department following 31 years of service.

Virginia Beach Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite, Jr., presented him with a certificate of special service denoting Nash's contributions to the postal service during his career, and with a "clock-weather station" designed to record time and weather conditions as a memento from his fellow workers of the postal department and those supervisors under whom he served.

During the presentation of gifts Crosswhite praised Nash for his years of devoted service and said "Change and increased automation within the postal system is inevitable. However, regardless of how much change the future might bring there will always be a built-in need for good men who are genuinely dedicated to serve the people."

Nash, 57, who resides on Blackbeard Road, shares a family tradition of service to the postal department including advancement through the ranks.

Nash began his postal career with the Norfolk Post Office as a substitute laborer when his father held the office of assistant Superintendent of Mails. On March 31, 1935 Nash was promoted from clerk to Postmaster of the Post Office located at Bayside and remained in this position until the merger of Princess Anne County and the City of Virginia Beach on Jan. 1, 1963.

The merger resulted in the conversion of the Bayside Post Office to a classified station and Nash was named as Superintendent of the Station. On Jan. 21, 1968 Nash was promoted from Carrier Station Superintendent to Chief Accountant in the Virginia Beach postal system and retained that position until his retirement.

His 61 years of service to the postal system was interrupted during World War II for a two year period. He saw military service with the U. S. Navy and was assigned to postal unit.

Nash reflected over his long postal career by saying, "I've enjoyed my associations in the Post Office and the many friends I've worked with. This has been my happiest times. We have a competent, qualified staff of supervisors, and the personnel are tops of anywhere in the country."

Nash indicates he does not intend to be idle in his retirement. He says he has passed the necessary examinations to permit him to enter the real estate field and is preparing to join the Fulford Realty Co. on Pleasure House Road.

Preach-In Moves Monday

Rev. Roger Green's "Beach Preach-In" will move from 11th Street location to 47th Street Monday.

Rev. Green of the Scripture Union in Philadelphia, Pa., has a team of 25 young people working with him. His daily programs are from 10 a.m. to noon and include games and Bible stories for children and adults alike. He will begin the beach at 11th Street Friday.

Weight, Money Problems

Question: I have always had to watch my weight. Lately I have watched it go up and up. Can I do anything to keep it within reasonable bounds? What are the chances of having enough money to do the things I would like to do. Signed P.E.

Answer: Weight, as I have stated earlier, is usually either controlled, or not, by the food we eat. Often one will say that they eat very little, but gain weight anyway. It is not so much the quantity as it is the quality of the food we eat, that makes us gain weight. In your case there has been an additional factor that has caused you to gain weight, and I doubt that there was much that you could have done to prevent it. Your ascendant, which governs the physical body, has progressed to a conjunction of the planet Jupiter. The nature of Jupiter is considered very benefic, but it is also the most expansive planet in the solar system. You have Jupiter in the house governing the physical body at birth, and this conjunction has certainly been the cause of your putting on weight at this time, although you may not have eaten more than you would have normally. Drop me a card and I will recommend a book that will help, I'm sure. I can see that you have had some difficulty in being able to get, and keep enough money without some considerable struggle. In your horoscope the Moon rules the house governing the finances and it is strongly afflicted by the planet Saturn. Saturn is notorious restricting, if not denying the things that it signifies in the horoscope. For example, if Saturn governs the house of marriage in the horoscope, and it is sufficiently afflicted, it is almost certain that the person for whom the horoscope is erected, will marry late in life, if at all. The same would apply to the finances. It usually indicates a struggle for enough money to keep body and soul together. I wish that I could tell you that you are going to come into a fortune or that you are going to win the Derby, but this is not the case. There should be an improvement in the finances soon, however, since the last three years the planet Venus (the money planet) has been afflicting the planet Neptune. This is not a terribly bad aspect, but it has surely put a damper on the finances. This is about to move away giving you some relief. Also the house governing the employment is soon to receive a rather good aspect, which should improve the finances as a result of employment on your part. What this could mean is that if you are not working things should improve considerably there. No one ever seems to have all the money they need but your finances should improve considerably.

A New Business

Question: After several attempts at different businesses, none of which was successful, my husband has gone into the barber business. Will he be successful at this? What about his weight problem? Signed AEH.

Answer: I am happy to report that your husband has found a niche where he should be quite happy and successful. With Scorpio on the tenth house (governing professions), and with Venus, the planet of beautification and money, located in the tenth it is almost certain that he will be successful. One bit of advice, however. Being in business requires a lot of experience and since your husband is relatively new at this profession I would suggest that he be sure that he is financially and professionally prepared to enter into a business on his own.

There are some very good progressed aspects at this time, which indicate that he will have a period of success if he uses good judgement. Venus, the money planet, has moved into good relationship to his natal Sun. This is always a good indication of a period when all things tend to go well and finances improve considerably. There is a couple aspects that could prove to be unfavorable if he does not exert caution, however. Mars, which can be quite malefic, has moved to a conjunction with his natal Sun. This indicates a period of activity and progress, but there is some danger of accident, since Mars is known to be a malefic. Over the next couple of years he will have to be especially careful where things like guns and automobiles are concerned. This Mars progression will most likely produce a period of extreme activity, which could lead to a lot of travel, business and pleasure, and there could be an accident, such as on a hunting trip. With proper caution he can be well on his way towards success.

As far as the weight problem, it is usually accepted that the reason we are overweight is that we do not eat the right foods in the proper amounts. I could recommend a couple of good books that will offer excellent advice on diet that will help this situation I am sure.

Exact Time Important

Question: I know I was born on the cusp. Do you see any improvement for me in the next year. Two tragic events have occurred in recent years, my mother and husband passed away. Signed PCL.

Answer: The common idea that one can be born on the cusp between signs is an erroneous one. We are born when the Sun is in either one sign or the other, in your case it was Sagittarius. In order for you to be born on the cusp the Sun would have had to stand still in space while you entered the world. In your case the Sun was in degrees 27 minutes (not a full degree) of Sagittarius. Sideral time is measured in degrees, minutes and seconds, and it would be possible to be born when the Sun was in 0 degrees 0 minutes and 1 second of a sign, such as Sagittarius. What is more important, the doctors in the delivery rooms often do many things before they bother to note the time of birth. There can be from ten to twenty minutes that the baby has been alive before anyone bothers to look at the time. Obviously the doctor is quite busy at this time, and it is not reasonable for them to be concerned about anything other than the mother and the baby, but it would be much better if there was a law requiring the nurse to note the time of birth exactly. When astrology has gained the acceptance that it will one day have, this will be the case. If we have a birth time of 6 a.m., such as you gave, it is almost certain that you were either born a bit before, or after that. It is unreasonable to think that you were born exactly at the stroke of 6 a.m. The exact time of birth is essential for a correct analysis of the Natal horoscope but it is even more important in determining the time in the life when an event will occur. The reason for this is that four minutes in accuracy in the time will throw off an event by one full year. This is often considered an

Love Messages On Sand

By LES LEHIGH

Young people of the resort city are gathering on beaches of the Beach Borough this month for a purpose other than the usual one of spending the day to bask in the sun and frolic in waters of the Atlantic Ocean. Ranging in age from 5 to 14 years these youngsters are participating in a unique "preach in" program designed to acquaint them with Christianity, and to increase their knowledge of scriptural teachings.

The program is under the direction of Rev. Roger Green of the Scripture Union in Philadelphia, with the assistance of some 20 college students and adults. The program is referred to as the "Children's Special Service Mission" and is conducted on a nondiscrimin-ational basis. It is open to anyone who wishes to attend.

The project is being conducted through a system of daily "classes" of two hours each in the morning and evening. During the first two weeks of the month classes were held on the beach at 11th Street, and are continuing through Friday, Aug. 28, on the beach at 47th Street. Virginia Beach Methodist Church and the Galilee Episcopal Church are used for classes in the event of rain.

If it were not for the age of some of the instructors, they could not be distinguished from those attending the sessions. Nearly everyone attending, teachers and students alike, gather on the beach in swimsuits, shorts, sun-suits, and other casual wear.

The center of the "classroom" is a small stage constructed from a neatly built sand-dune on top of which is placed a wooden frame. A tape recorder off at the side used to play over a public address system, a series of well-produced theatrical readings of various Bible stories. As the children gather on the sand in front of the "stage" the sounds of male and female voices pour forth from a loud speaker in portrayals of Biblical characters involved in the stories. As they are being told they are acted out on the stage by puppets, on the upraised hands of instructors concealed behind the sand platform. It is a most effective method. The children sit enraptured, their attention held by the puppets and voices coming from the tape recorder.

At the conclusion of the "lesson" the children are divided into age groups, under the guidance of program instructors, for a fun and game period. These instructors are college students who have volunteered their time for the program. To be more fully accepted by the children they assume identities to the youngsters liking. For example there "Tonto" who wears an Indian headband, complete with feather, "Lobster" who wears a small badge replica of a shell fish on his shirt and "Strings" who carries a guitar with her and renders an occasional tune for the pleasure of everyone.

The resort city "preach-in" is being sponsored by the Virginia Beach Experiment, and while it is aimed primarily at children adults are welcome to

New Reports to Tell Progress Like It Is

By CAROLYN McALLEN

There'll be a new look in report cards for the primary grades (1-3) in the Virginia Beach public schools this fall.

The new card is a result of two years' efforts by teachers, parents and administrators. No longer will primary children receive letter grades. Instead their progress will be marked with checks. Checks will indicate what subject matter the child has been introduced to, whether he is progressing in that particular subject and whether he has mastered it. There will be no more failing grades.

The whole concept is a positive one; the card reports what a child can do and is doing, not what he has failed to do. Behavior will also be marked with checks and will be geared toward the child so that he can understand his own progress. There will be pictures illustrating such personal and social growth as "I am interested in doing my best," "I work and play happily with others," "I am willing to try new things," "I take care of my things," "I control my talking," etc. There will be 18 of these, each with its own picture and with the checks indicating "most of the time," "some of the time" and "seldom."

Not every item will be checked every time. If an item is not marked at all, parents may assume that their child has not yet been introduced to that material. Since the same card will be used by three grade levels, items applicable to one might not be to another.

For instance in the mathematics section, items are generally listed from simple to complex. However, the same items might be marked for a six-year-old and an eight-year-old. For example, mastery of "tells time" for a six-year-old would mean he could consistently tell time according to the hour and half-hour. The eight-year-old would have mastered time according to exact minutes and hours.

In addition there will be a new feature which should be popular with parents. There will be a section to show whether the child is making rapid progress, satisfactory progress or experiencing difficulty in his school work based on how other children are progressing.

Another new feature of the overall grading program will be scheduled parent-teacher conferences after the first and third grading period. This was tried successfully last year in conjunction with the introduction of the non-graded primary grades in about half the elementary schools. The School Board Tuesday approved two non-teaching days for the elementary school calendar just for this. In addition conferences in grades 4-7 will be scheduled at the same time at the discretion of teachers and parents. Committees are now in the process of trying to revise the report cards for grades 4-7 also, but not for the coming school year.

"We thought we ought to find out if teachers were happy with the report cards (the old ones) and what suggestions they would make to improve it," said Mrs. Mildred Wilson, assistant director of elementary education. She added that the old cards had been in use approximately 10 years. "We took the suggestions and made a survey of all elementary teachers. From the tabulations we tried to follow the survey leaders." Results showed that two-thirds of the teachers said grading practices were not consistent with their philosophy.

Next a basic committee compiled background material on report cards and reporting systems from all over the United States so it would be available to the teachers. Then a parents committee representing every elementary school PTA was formed. This committee reviewed a dummy of the new card in June and made more suggestions. Incidentally, the parents committee filled out a short form of the teachers' questionnaire and the results were basically the same.

Record keeping by teachers will also be different, since no grades will be entered in grade books any longer. Instead teachers will have progress sheets for each child.

"We looked at a lot of material," said Mrs. Ruth Bridges, elementary supervisor. "Ours is based on our curriculum," added Mrs. Mabel Church, another supervisor. "We're working on a parallel curriculum guide now."

The progress reports were presented to elementary school principals in a meeting yesterday for their approval. Next, at the beginning of school, parent orientation programs will be scheduled in all schools with a tape and slide presentation to explain the new reporting system.

The reports will be issued four times a year just as the old ones were. They will be light blue with dark blue ink. The same report will be used in graded and non-graded classes. Last year non-graded classes had a different form.

Transferring of pupils out of the system will not be difficult according to the educators. The level and skill in which the individual child is working are

How Many Delegates Is Question

Controversy continues to flare over whether or not the city should bear the expense of sending 13 delegates--six official representatives and seven additional councilmen--to the All-America City judging next week in Portland, Oregon.

As of Wednesday afternoon opposition to the added expense of sending council en masse had come from the Jaycees, the Chamber of Commerce and the Republican City Committee.

The Inkkeepers' board of directors Tuesday night recommended that 25 per cent of the estimated $7,500 cost of the trip, or $1,875, be appropriated out of "that portion of the travel and tourism budget set aside for promotional purposes."

This portion of the budget is presently set at $10,000 and is incorporated in the $178,000 tourist promotion budget City Manager Roger Scott said earlier would supply the needed funds.

The Inkkeepers apparently took the action to prevent the possibility that the entire $7,500 would be taken out of the $10,000 appropriation which most benefits them.

Inkeeper President Roy Niel said the decision was made after Scott spoke to the group Tuesday and explained the publicity and public relations benefits the city would derive from the award.

The Chamber of Commerce, on the other hand, has suggested that the funds be charged to another city account.

In a letter to Scott, Chamber Executive Vice President Albin R. Malilhes said "We fully recognize the advertising value to the city but feel any expense attached to this project should be charged to another city account, possibly the general fund."

The Jaycees turned to newly appointed City Attorney J. Dale Elmsom in their letter of opposition. They requested a ruling from him as to "whether this action violates any city or ethical code."

The letter pointed out that the request was made specifically in regard to the expenditure of funds from the city's tourist promotion budget for the 13-man delegation.

The Jaycees also took exception to the city's stand that the extra councilmen would establish industrial contacts during the 4-day Oregon trip, stating they "seriously questioned" the merit of this.

As to private concerns undervirting a portion of the expense, the Jaycees said "any such donor action, especially by anonymous businesses, would dangerously border on conflict of interest."

The Republican City Committee, in a statement by Chairman Jim Fant, was even stronger in their opposition. The committee, in fact, questioned the merit of the contest, stating "we doubt seriously that there is a 'million dollars' of benefits to be derived for the city."

"If the funds were a direct expenditure for the benefit of our children, our cultural life, our industrial efforts or perhaps a direct investment towards acquiring some valuable asset for the city, Camp Pendleton, for example, then we would be one hundred per cent behind this effort," Fant said.

He also said that "a poll of the Republican City Committee shows overwhelming opposition to the expenditure of these tax dollars for the trip and would ask those councilmen, both incumbent and otherwise, to give an emphatic no to this junket."

Watch for Numbers

By JAMES TURNER

Even though the men who work in the Department of community services don't wear numbers on their backs, their director, William S. Fleming, thinks they're actually running backs on one big football team.

Fleming, who last week assumed his post as head of the newly created department, said that the team's job is to provide the best service for the citizens at the lowest cost possible. "And that requires a team effort," he said.

The divisions on Fleming's team include engineering, sanitation, civil and traffic engineering, inspection services, and public utilities.

"We've got to start doing everything right from this point on and not cause the taxpayers any additional burden by correcting our mistakes later," he said.

This does not presume that there were large mistakes made in the past, Fleming said, but the city and the community services department has to assume a more professional attitude about its functions.

"Once we get started on the right foot, we can go back and correct some of the ills that have plagued residents but that we've been too tied down to get to," Fleming said.

Fleming, whose last position was as an engineer in Henrico County, said Virginia Beach and Henrico County are allies in many ways. Both areas are large and not fully developed and can allow for flexible planning and development, not like large cities that are often the product of very old mistakes that don't allow for correction, he said.

But since the areas are larger and more far-flung, the cost of servicing smaller urban communities with the city are greater than in a city, Fleming said.

And since the cost of servicing these areas is greater, Fleming said the city has to anticipate "the perplexing problems and pressures" of building and be able to move in the same direction as the developer when the time comes.

"With the help of the people in the Planning Department, we can cut the cost of some of these new places," he said.

"We have to adjust our services based on the zoning of the land and the intended use," he said.

Fleming advocates the greater coordination of development and servicing among the municipal departments in an effort to reduce spending. For Community Services, that coordination comes most course, I know, but it is most certainly not. An example of this happened recently. I was reading a chart for a man who was concerned about his career. I asked if he had experienced a certain condition in his life three years ago, and he indicated that it was not three years but two years ago, and that the event occurred. This told me that the birth time was off by about four minutes. It is (now possible to give him more accurate timing of future events. With this idea in mind, I will try to indicate some of these things you can look forward to in the near future. First, Mars (energy) has moved to a conjunction of the planet Venus. This always indicates a period when the affections and finances are brought to the fore. The last two years would seem to have been a period of indecision as far as your entering some kind of partnership arrangement. This is indicated in the chart strongly, and I would think that this would mean that there has been the possibility of marriage. If this is the case the situation will soon resolve itself, since the Sun has progressed to a good aspect with the planet Saturn. Saturn governs the area of the horoscope involving marriage and partnerships, and this indicates that the things which have been bothering you in this area of your life will soon be straightened out. There is also some consideration in the area of finances. Venus is moving to a favorable aspect with the Moon, and this could bring about an improvement in the finances, since the Moon indicates the area of finances in your horoscope, this also is tied in with the partnership area of the life. There are other indications but with the uncertainty of the time I am reluctant to go into it any further. All things considered there should be a period of peace and prosperity for you in the near future. The recent past has been difficult but this should be behind you so things will brighten up for you.

Thomas (left) and Sandberg discuss the play.

Message was there; it had to be said

This is not a review. It's about a play but it's not a review. It's about a man who wrote a play, who believes so strongly in what he had to say that he follows his creation all over the country just to experience opening night with local audiences.

That's why Marvin Sandberg is here. His creation, the family comedy "Take My Wife", opened last night at the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse. The review will come later but right now let's talk about Sandberg and his wife and his play.

They are a team, the three of them. Sandberg wrote, his wife typed and the play was created. It wasn't that simple, of course. It took two and a half years to develop an original draft and 10 revisions to come up with the finished product.

You see, Sandberg had something inside that had to be said. He is a highly successful garment manufacturer, a partner in one of the country's largest houses of maternity wear. But he had something to say about marriage and boredom and middle age and the rat race and, well, just the usual things that plague the average person. So he put it all down on paper, using his natural flair for humor, and came up with a play that's funny because it mirrors the comedy in life.

"Take My Wife" is still an infant as far as plays go. It opened two years ago in Chicago with Virginia Graham and the late Fred Clark. The Cavalier is producing it for its 14th time and by the end of Fall it will only have had its 17th production.

It hasn't been on Broadway yet. But it's headed there, Sandberg is convinced of it. And Cavalier Manager Mark Thomas is convinced of it.

"We received a letter from Mr. Sandberg saying the play was available," Thomas said. "I read the script, thought it was hilarious, and we arranged to produce it."

Thomas has no qualms about producing an unknown play. It's a gamble he's willing to take. "Look, my reputation is on the line too. I think it's a good play and I think it will go. More dinner theatres should give unknown playwrights a chance... They might come out a winner!"

Sandberg isn't really worried about the play. He believes in it and is more anxious to get to it before the people than he is to make a dollar off it.

"It has a message," he explains, "but I've tried to make it so subtle the audience won't feel they've been hit over the head with it."

What the message is remains to be seen. But the sincerity of its author is apparent. He likes people, is genuinely interested in them and has a way of getting into their minds before they know what's happened.

Maybe that's why he had to write the play. To tell people about themselves.

Sandberg got the feel for writing back when he was a counselor at summer camp. He wrote a script for Studio One entitled "The President Picker". It wasn't so hot but it was just enough to spur him on. Then came "Take My Wife".

The garment business has been more stable. He's been in that for 22 years and has managed to keep the two worlds business and theatre... in their respective places.

It's a pretty big professional span between the garment industry and a successful play. But Marvin Sandberg took it in one giant step.

planning.

Many developers often get in streets and sewers that don't meet up to the standards for long term operation, and the delayed repair or replacement has often cost the city a large amount.

"I hope that under the current subdivision control ordinances we could prevent this not allow this type thing to happen again," Fleming said.

"When an individual develops a piece of ground and reaps the economic benefits and then turns the sewers and streets over to the city, they should be built so that we don't have to go in later and spend taxpayers' money to repair it."

"It's as if it should be that he (the developer) does his job properly and not produce problems that will burden the taxpayer public," Fleming said.

After all, he said, the people who live in the area not only have to suffer the inconvenience but have to pay the taxes too.

Seeing that these situations don't develop requires for a well organized government and an informed citizenry, something that Fleming strongly advocates.

"I'm not saying that there should be hundreds of people down here for each public hearing, but I do think that the people should be just as concerned about another part of the city as their own," he said.

"The local level is the place to find the solutions and not run to the Federal government every time a small problem comes up," said Fleming.

But he said that the search for solutions requires new thoughts and that not many people are interested in civil engineering or public works. "There's a great need for young people in public works," he said.

"I've never wanted to do anything else, but I don't know why."

"I guess it's because there's such a rewarding feeling about seeing something accomplished when played a part in it."

Man Dies, 19th for Year

Police officials have identified Nathan P. Williams of Baltic Avenue as the 19th traffic fatality of the year in Virginia Beach.

Authorities said 59-year-old Williams succumbed to internal injuries he received in an accident Monday, Aug. 10 at the intersection of Laskin and Holly Road. Investigators said Williams was a passenger in one of three cars involved in the accident.

At last reports charges in the accident were pending the outcome of the completion of an investigation into the accident.

Burned Tot Recovering

A two-year-old Virginia Beach boy was reported making excellent recovery Wednesday in King's Daughters Hospital from burns received in his home Tuesday night.

Officials said young John Tripp received second degree burns over his legs and body in a fire in the garage of his home in the 900 block of Westery Trail.

Volunteers of the Kempsville and Davis Corner fire departments were involved for approximately one hour in extinguishing the fire which was confined to the garage of the residence.

An investigation is under way to determine the cause of the fire.

Rallies Are Set

Two more rallies of young people to boost the Boys Club will be held on Thursday, Aug. 20 and Thursday, Aug. 27. Both rallies will begin at 7 p.m. and will be held at First Colonial High School.

Joshua P. Vaughn, campaign coordinator for the Optimist Club of Virginia Beach (sponsor of the Boys Club fund raising drive), said, "These are the last two meetings before these youngsters begin the door-to-door campaigns to sell candy and magazine subscriptions, and we would like to see representatives of every Virginia Beach School at one or both meetings."

With the help of the young people, the Optimist Club plans to sell 100,000 boxes of candy on August 22 and 23, and 10,000 magazine subscriptions August 28 and 29. Everyone who participates will have his or her name inscribed on a plaque which will hand in the new Boys Club of Virginia Beach.

detailed in the report form. The information sent to the receiving school will be more specific and in greater detail than that sent with the traditional report form. An accompanying transfer sheet will include the names of books he is using and where he is working at the time. Accurate placement should be facilitated rather than deterred by the new report form.

On concept around which the new report was formed is basic: progress will be specifically stated in terms of what a child can do. Which is what most parents want to know.

Pumper Purchase Approved

Final approval was given Wednesday morning for the purchase of a new fire truck for the Beach Borough Fire Department.

City Mgr. Roger Scott and Finance Director Giles Dodd approved an expenditure of $34,995 for the purchase of a 1,000 gallon "Mack" pumper for the department.

Department Chief E.B. Bayne says the new truck is expected to be delivered in approximately two weeks, and represents a savings to the city of $3,990.

Those connected with approval of the truck's purchase point out funds for the new truck had already been included in appropriations contained in the City's current fiscal budget.

Chief Bayne explained the "savings" in the purchase price was realized through the fact that the truck was being used by the Mack company as a demonstrator.

Bayne also pointed out that while the truck had been driven several thousand miles while being used as a demonstrator the decision to purchase this truck was based on its being immediately available while it would have been necessary to wait for a period of from 11 to 14 months in order to obtain a new truck.

Another important factor in the decision to purchase this particular "pumper", according to Bayne, was the urgent need to replace one of the department's pumpers which has been "sitting up on blocks" since July in need of repairs, and that while required parts have been on order that long they are still unavailable.

Bayne said the purchase of the new pumper will bring the department up to full strength from the standpoint of equipment and added that the new truck will be white in color.

attend the evening sessions which include programs designed for them.

Dr. Roger Visser, Experiment chairman, says between 100 and 300 children are being attracted to the daily sessions. College students associated with the program visit the various churches of the resort city on Sunday mornings to invite young people to attend. One of the main objectives of the program according to Dr. Visser, is to encourage young people to develop a greater interest in Bible study and scripture readings. Visser said this is accomplished through distribution of a series of written lessons at the end of each "preach-in" program for the children to complete by using their Bibles at home.

The Virginia Beach Experiment, according to Visser, is assisted in supporting Mr. Green and his team by a number of churches, business groups, and private citizens. The group is housed in a cottage and obtain their basic supply of food through donations to their cause. Visser pointed out that if the group were supported strictly on a cash basis it would cost about $2,000 to sustain them during their month in the resort city.

When questioned as to the motivating factor behind the staging of such a program in the field of religious teaching, Visser said that much thought was given to methods of furthering the cause of Christianity. "We wanted to let the kids know about Jesus and here was a unique way to do it," he said.

It Was Back To School For Realtors

A number of members of the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors have completed Graduate Realtors Institute courses at the University of Virginia and three have graduated.

Those who graduated have completed three-30-hour courses of comprehensive study covering the most intricate aspects of the real estate field.

The graduates are Rudy Ann Dunn of Kellam-Eaton Insurance & Real Estate Co.; M. Frank Abel Jr. of M. R. Abel Realty Corp.; and J. Burks Withers Jr. of Withers & Taylor Co.

Mrs. Dunn has been with Kellam-Eaton about seven years, working primarily in insurance in the Princess Anne office. She qualified for her real estate license about a year and a half ago and in just one year managed to complete the 90 hours of special instruction.

Abel went into the real estate field in 1964 when he got out of the Navy and in January of 1967 opened his own firm. There are presently eight members in the firm and expansion of the staff is expected in the near future, he said. The firm specializes in residential sales and rental management.

Withers went into the business 17 years ago in his father's firm, J. B. Withers & Co. That firm dated back to 1945 when it was established, but in 1967 the elder Withers retired and the younger man joined forces with G. Scott Taylor to form Withers & Taylor. The firm, which also handles appraisals and insurance, specializes in residential sales and rentals in Virginia Beach and Lynnhaven boroughs.

Local realtors who completed their second course at this sessions were: Hubert J. and Rose E. Blissett, Blissett Realty Inc.; Ann M. and Lester K. Bruestle, See Realty; Jean French, Alvin C. Bryant, and Jack Robertson, all of Womble Higgins Realty Inc.; Cecil M. Harrison Higgins Realty Inc.; Margaret L. Poth, Dickson Realty and Mortgage Services; and Jeanne S. Van Kirk, Anchor Realty.

Another Womble representative, Mary C. Spady, attended post graduate courses.

Those attending for the first year were Joseph A. Carter, Walnwright Realty Co.; Violet Compton, Princess Realty; Nancy A. Forchase and R. W. Van Kirk, Anchor Realty; Guy E. Moneyenny, Higgins Realty Inc.; Leland R. O'Brien, Blissett Realty Inc.; Virginia R. and Walter R. Revollinsky, Cromwell & Austin Realty Inc.; and Leo B. Winters, Larasen Realty Corp.

The GRI courses are open to licensed members of the Virginia Association of Realtors, the only Virginia agency authorized by the National Association of Real Estate Boards to offer the designated courses. Virginia has the second oldest of over 30 institutes operated by state associations throughout the United States.

The three courses total 90 hours, broken into one-week sessions of 30 hours each. Up until last year they were held only once a year but last December an additional session was provided enabling aggressive students to now complete the courses in one year rather than three.

Neighborhoods Against Pollution will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Kempsville Branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library.

NAP is a newly formed environmental action group. Citizens concerned about combating environmental pollution in the Tidewater area are invited to attend.

Cardinal Gets New Manager

Ivan L. Joslin, who joined Cardinal Sign Corporation in May of this year, has been promoted to the office of general manager. In this capacity he will supervise and coordinate the manufacturing, erecting, and servicing of all of Cardinal's signs throughout Tidewater and eastern Virginia.

Joslin is a 1958 graduate of Western Carolina University, holding a B.S. degree in secondary education. Upon graduation he was commissioned an ensign in the U.S. Navy and reported aboard a destroyer for duty. Two years later he was accepted into the Navy's "Silent Service" where he served on both conventional and nuclear Polaris submarines. At the time of his resignation from active duty on May 1st, 1970, he was a Lt. Cdr. serving on the staff of Commander-in-Chief Atlantic in Norfolk.

Joslin resigned from the Navy to join Cardinal Sign Corporation in time for their move to Virginia Beach into their new plant located in Lynnhaven Industrial Park.

Is This Trip Necessary?

It is unfortunate that such controversy has developed over the Virginia Beach delegation to the All-America City presentation in Oregon.

The controversy could have been avoided had the delegation been maintained as originally proposed to include only 6 representatives who were directly related to the various aspects of the presentation. The controversy has developed since the delegation was expanded to include seven additional members of city council who are not involved and the fact the city will be paying the tab for something which has all the overtones of a junket.

The presentation has become a needlessly expensive proposition. There is every reason to doubt that the presence of a large delegation will influence the judges who are hardened businessmen, impressed more by quality than quantity.

Other cities have won the same recognition with substantially less representation; Norfolk sent only two delegates and Roanoke only three. It would appear difficult to justify the expenses involved in sending the additional councilmen.

These councilmen might pause now and compose the answers they will use when various organizations appear before them seeking funds for much needed projects. Will they be able to turn down requests for aid for the mentally retarded, for cultural and convention activities and facilities, for rescue equipment and the list goes on and on.

Even if the councilmen are convinced that a large delegation will influence the judging, they should consider the merits of a more diversified delegation. There are many faces to Virginia Beach, each a vital part of the overall community. Such representation might include delegates from the military, education, tourism, civic organizations, women's clubs, industry and retail business.

And finally, if the councilmen who are not directly involved in the presentation still wish to make the trip despite the controversy, they may consider the use of personal funds to defray the expenses.

Lifeguards Praised

A drowning in the surf at Virginia Beach is a tragic occurrence and the drowning during Sunday's rip tide was no exception. However, it was a compliment to the lifeguards that only one person drowned.

There were thousands of persons on the beach Sunday and many of them appeared determined to destroy themselves. Lifeguards were literally running from one point to another calling swimmers out of the surf and warning of the dangerous tide.

Many of the swimmers had to be warned individually and repeatedly. Despite this, many continued to fight their way through the unusually rough surf to dangerous distances and depths.

Only stout-hearted, conscientious young men, thoroughly instructed in their responsibilities could have persevered. It would have been much easier for the lifeguards to just throw up their hands in disgust and allow the swimmers to have their way.

But they did not. And for that reason only the city suffered only one drowning during the dangerous rip tide that occurred on a day which had an unusually large number of people on the beach.

The young men who serve as lifeguards are to be commended for their efforts last Sunday.

Get Back To Nature

Thousands of visitors enjoy these parks. They spend valuable travel dollars to stay in this city just so they can "get away from it all". The residents could enjoy the same peace and quiet for nothing more than a gallon or two of gas.

In another few months the leaves will turn to hues of orange and yellow and red. The areas will become ablaze with the colors of nature. A few miles from every home in Virginia Beach there will be a panorama of nature that money cannot buy.

If the pressures of business, the confines of the house or the worries of everyday living start fraying the nerves, why not take a trip to Redwing Park, the Narrows or Seashore State Park? There's nothing so relaxing as a day with nature.

The tourists flock to Virginia Beach year after year because this city offers some of the finest recreational facilities on the East Coast.

Its beaches are superior; there is a great abundance of parks and nature areas. The city has, in fact, done an excellent job in building up these recreational facilities.

The tourists enjoy these facilities. What a shame the residents doesn't. Or at least it can only be assumed he doesn't. Local people seldom take advantage of what is handed them on a silver platter.

These natural areas are kept clean. They are furnished with picnic tables, boat launches and, in some cases, cooking spaces. The roads into the parks are safe for motorists. Even the insects are kept at a minimum.

Incidentally, in case I may sound too liberal or be hastily labeled "radical" by my peers, let me say that I am a thirty-seven year old father of two teenage young ladies, a career military man finishing twenty years service and one who, after two and one half years in the area, intends to sink roots in Virginia Beach and grow with the town after retirement. Our family loves "The Beach".

Suggests Other Men

Letter to Editor:

I would suggest, rather than financing this trip for the councilmen simply because they happen to be councilmen, that the city concentrate on quality rather than quantity? I would particularly like to send Sam Scott, a most enthusiastic and energetic promoter of the Beach. And what about the Sun's own John Griffin—certainly an articulate and impressive expert in Public Relations?

Approves Flag Apparel

To the Editor:

Yes - let's buy a fire truck painted like our flag! I see nothing wrong with displaying a little patriotism, in good taste and such a machine certainly would be easily seen.

I do become personally offended when I see an actual American flag improperly displayed, or flagrantly degraded, such as using it for a beach towel or tent and seeing it sewn, as a real or imagined patch, on the posterior covering of some unkempt "plastic hippy's" costume. (I'm not so sure, however, that the young lady intended any disrespect for her country, or its flag, by sewing a miniature of same to the upper portion of a hip pocket. After all, some clothing manufacturers put their own name in this position on garments and it is said that "a man's name is his most valuable possession.") Re: last week's Sun Article.

I have no quarrel with dissent with good reason, nor long hair, bare feet and youth. I like cars, trucks, vans and motorcycles painted to resemble "Old Glory" and even clothing entirely constructed of material similar to that used in the American flag is O.K. by me. (Uncle Sam wears a suit like that, doesn't he?) To me, the intent of the wearer or operator/user/decorator is of prime importance and should be determined in every case of "Flag Defiling" before some

KEEP OFF

THE

By W. A. Leavell, Ph.D.

The temptation is strong to lump all members of the academic community into the same wild flock of revolutionaries that has led our young people down the road to ruin, riots and violence.

This is understandable because this is the group we see and hear about the most. The qualified, dedicated and real American teachers, instructors and professors seldom make the news. Outside of the profession they are mostly unknown.

When the "New Left" takes over the administration of a University they tend to quickly surround themselves with the new breed in their own image. The good educators then drift out as good education and those who teach it can not function side by side with the "New Left." Education and revolution are not compatible. They live in different environments.

At a recent gathering of my fellow egg heads it was my pleasure to enter into a discussion with a number of real educators. For the most part they were professors at State and private colleges in the South and the Midwest where institutions of learning are still dedicated to good education. Not one of them taught a course in revolution. They are not out to change society to fit their own political beliefs. Each has the goal to help young people learn as much as they can about their specific field of knowledge.

The discussion quickly turned to the problems our institutions of higher learning face today. It was noted that in some areas of the country the problems on campus are much greater than in others. The problem campuses seem to be those where the "New Left" has gained substantial footholds in both the administration and students from the same general areas. In short, they seem to be the product of a group of people that are somehow different from the rest of the country.

Why would some sections of the country be different, more prone to follow the "New Left" line, the SDS and the revolutionary teachings than others?

Institutions of learning require vast sums of money. Few institutions are self sustaining. The money must come from those who support them. Since few people tend to support ideas they do not approve of, it must be assumed that the institutions reflect the views of their supporters.

In the area where I live most campuses are little more than training grounds for the "New Left". Those where the super liberal administrators and faculty have not completely taken over are few. You can tell where these institutions are going by the list of guest speakers they have. The Chicago 7, SDS, Black Panther leaders and the spokesmen for the "New Left" are the most popular.

What type people support such "New Left" campuses? Those who are not a part of the educational community but who support through their tax dollars, contributions and allowing their children to attend such colleges.

I can't speak for all such areas but in mine, they are mostly permissive dedicated open heart liberal bleeders, Jello backed types who will follow the leader, any leader. They wouldn't fight to protect themselves or their families, much less their country. As protectors of freedom, on or off the campus, they are worthless.

Have they always been that way? NO! The time was when they were in the front of the others in standing up for the goals that have made this the great country it is. Years ago they were part of the backbone that led the original 13 colonies to seek freedom.

What happened to such people? It is a combination of many things but one that stands out is the fact that they took such pride in being different that they soon truly became different and they drifted out the mainstream of the country. Today, they seem to be a far cry from the patriotic, freedom loving Americans that live in other sections of the country.

If education, and our country, is to survive the present threat from the "New Left" we must treat these problem campuses and areas of the country like rotten apples in a barrel and good ones. We must remove the bad apples and then we must try and keep the ones left from going bad.

Let's close up the rotten campuses and then let's see what can be done about the people who support such institutions. If the people will demand good education, if they will insist that their support be justified, we can have good campuses.

Thumbs Down On 13-Man Delegation

The reaction to last week's question was almost explosive.

The question was: "Do you think a 13-man delegation at the All-America City presentation in Portland will be more beneficial to the city than only six participants?"

The response was emphatically "NO!"

Scarcely a questionnaire came in without a comment. One man said such a thing would be "more detrimental". Another said "I object to seven councilmen taking a junket at the taxpayers expense." The only comment one reader could come out with was "NO! NO! NO!"

It is obvious from action that has been taken by some of the city's most influential groups, that these sentiments are felt all over the city.

The Jaycees started the ball rolling Monday with a letter to the city attorney; the Chamber of Commerce voiced its concern over the funds being taken out of the advertising budget; the Republican City Committee just put its foot down and questioned the merit of the entire project; and the Innkeepers recommended that only 25 percent of the total estimated cost come out of their particular portion of the promotional budget.

The people of Virginia Beach have expressed themselves explicitly. Not one individual responded in favor of the 13-man delegation.

With that controversy still raging, we'll turn next week's Sun Survey to a quieter, but vitally important, issue... a community college for Virginia Beach.

A college was planned earlier for this resort city. It had the approval and blessing of the Virginia Community College System.

The city donated the property in Green Run Farm and all signals were "go". Until it hit the General Assembly. The legislators chose to shelve it from the college appropriations.

Governor Holton has indicated that the pressing busing situation, and other matters, may force General Assembly into a special session next January. Is it possible that Virginia Beach's college could be re-introduced at that time?

SUN SURVEY

QUESTION: Should City Council take steps now to re-introduce a community college for Virginia Beach before the General Assembly, should an extra session be held in January?

Your comments and signed letters would be appreciated also.

Councilmen query officials about operations.

Unless you've been a candidate for City Council or one of its members, there's no real way of knowing why a man decides to take on the obligation of representing a constituency. There are a lot of theories about the assumption of that obligation: a chance to make fast money; a means of helping others; or in some cases genuine civic concern. Yet none of these theories can properly justify running. If there was a way of finding out why, it probably could only be expressed as a feeling, something that couldn't be put into words.

Monday the City Council-elect had the opportunity to see what lies ahead of them in terms of city development. Taken on an inspection tour by City Manager Roger M. Scott, the new council was shown 28 points of interest or concern, including the police special weapons range complete with a demonstration, the site for the city's newest land fill project, a tour of the Hampton Roads Sanitation District's Virginia Beach facility, and several dredges operating within the city. The new council was accompanied by outgoing council members as well as administrative department heads, who gave commentaries on projects under their supervision.

And if one point was made throughout the tour, it was that the city government is in the process of building a new Virginia Beach, a city where every facet of community activity and business can be blended for each party's betterment.

444 Earn Reading Certificates

The Virginia Beach Public Library System concluded its third annual Summer Reading Program last week and certificates were presented to 444 children who had completed the requirements.

To earn the certificate, a child had to read 15 books during the summer. A record of books read was kept for each child. Those receiving certificates were, by library:

Committee To Select New Dean

A twelve-member committee representing faculty, administration and students has been appointed by Virginia Wesleyan College President Lambuth M. Clark to select a new dean.

Wesleyan's dean for the past two years, Dr. Garry D. Hays, was relieved of his duties by the Board of Trustees effective August 7. Dr. Stephen S. Mansfield, assistant professor of history at Virginia Wesleyan for the past two years, will serve as coordinator of academic affairs until a new dean is appointed.

The committee, chaired by President Clark, includes Dr. Mansfield, Dr. Joseph H. Harkey, professor of drama; Dr. Robert S. Huestedler, professor of chemistry and chairman of the Division of Natural Sciences and Mathematics; Dr. D. Barry Lipscomb, associate professor of psychology; Dr. William R. Shealy, professor of religion and chairman of the Division of the Social Sciences; Frank S. Badger, Director of Admission and Registrar; James R. Bergdoll, Assistant to the President and Director of Development; and three students, Vincent G. Conery, a senior from McLean, Virginia, Judith Lynn Hall, a junior from Virginia Beach, Virginia and Roy P. White, a sophomore from McLean, Virginia.

President Clark indicated that the committee would meet in the near future.

Children's Week Is Fun For All; Even Workers

Next week most students will be enjoying the waning days of summer...surfing, sunning, back-to-school shopping, all the things young people like to do in the final throes of summer vacation.

But not a group of Frank W. Cox High School students. They will spend the week watching crawling toddlers away from the surf, yanking over enthusiastic youngsters out of Seashore State Park's fresh water lake, or wiping away the tears of pirate-frightened children at Treasure Island.

If it doesn't sound like fun to you, then you're not a member of the Sigma Alpha Beta Tri-Hi-Y at Cox. These girls like Children's Week at Virginia Beach is the greatest yet. They meet next week will be the fifth straight year they have taken over the supervisory duties of this special summertime event.

There are only 11 members in the group, the smallest Tri-Hi-Y in the district, but they handle everything from bandaging a nicked elbow to explaining what a frog is to a young "city slicker."

"And they do it all with ease and dignity," said Mrs. Laura Lamb, chairman of the sponsoring Chamber of Commerce special events committee. "And they always do it with a smile. The kids love them."

Children's Week was started several years ago to give youngsters 16 years of age and under one final fling at fun before going back to the school gring. Two events, however, the miniature golf tournament and trip to Treasure Island, are restricted to registered guests of Virginia Beach accommodations.

The teen-age helpers for this popular event are almost as enthusiastic as their young wards. "It's a lot of fun to see how excited the kids get," said Candy Hoskins, president of the Cox club. "They keep asking, 'when are we going to get there' and 'what are we going to do.'"

The dip in Seashore State Park's lake came about when a 9-year-old boy got so excited over the story about Blackbeard the Pirate using the lake for fresh water he fell overboard. "He wasn't even scared," said Mrs. William H. Longworth, the group's sponsor. "All he could talk about was falling into Blackbeard's lake. He thought it was the greatest thing that ever happened to him."

Since most of the youngsters are from out of town, and many from large cities, they are quite unfamiliar with nature. The boy who collected coconuts, for instance, caused his family considerable alarm. The coconuts decided to hatch while they were homeward bound.

"We found out later that the people suddenly had a car full of flying insects," Mrs. Longworth said.

When Sigma Alpha Beta undertook the Children's Week project five years ago, they were the first school group to launch a project in the summer months. Other groups have now entourage of school principals and secretaries for the annual Boss's Night.

The girls have also completely cleaned and decorated the Cox teachers' lounge, set up all the display bottles for the annual Camellia Show, made Christmas gifts for mentally ill children and collected food for the Proclaim drug rehabilitation center.

The list of accomplishments goes on and on and one cannot help but wonder how so few can handle such a heavy schedule. "It's easy," laughed club treasurer Sara Marion. "We enjoy it."

"We do everything together," commented vice president Cathy Morris, "and that makes it fun."

The driving force behind it all has been Mrs. Longworth and the girls are quick to place praise on her shoulders.

Their trophy-winning scrapbook, in fact, has a tribute to their sponsor which even she is unaware of.

"She can be seen attending a conference or serving punch; thinking up her (and sometimes same) ideas; or driving a car overflowing with girls (that's us). But one thing's for certain - she's always there when guidance is needed. No club could have a better sponsor."

Some of the projects are social and purely for fun, such as the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance, but others are strictly service, such as celebrating the birthday of the more than 100 teachers on the staff.

During the school year the girls take a cake for each teacher's birthday. If the special day falls during the summer, then those teachers are treated to a big birthday party on April Fool's Day...complete with party hats and favors.

Last year the Sigma Alpha Beta membership stood at 16 (it fluctuates with graduation, of course), yet the girls set up and served the city's entire

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

August 20, 1970

A bicycle auction meant a long hot afternoon for some...

For others it was a bargain hunt.

But for others it was pure pleasure.

She doesn't know why

It would seem that Ellen (Mrs. Leonard) Morrell has been singled out for an honor afforded few Republicans in Virginia. She has received an astronaut stamp printed from the die carried to and from the moon by the crew of Apollo 11, the first manned space ship to land on the moon.

The memento arrived without prior notice from Winton M. Blount, Postmaster General, on the first anniversary of the Apollo XI landing. The stamps mounted, with first day post marks, on a large color photograph of the moon showing a close up of an astronaut with the space ship reflected in the face mask and Neil Armstrong's now famous quote "...one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind." The picture is signed by President Richard Nixon and by Blount.

Accompanying the stamp and picture was this letter from Blount:

"Dear Mrs. Morrell:

"The enclosed memento from President Nixon and me is a token of our appreciation for your service to the Nation.

"We felt that nothing could be more fitting expression of our gratitude than this philatelic portrayal in honor of the historic Apollo XI moon landing one year ago today.

"With warm regards, I am

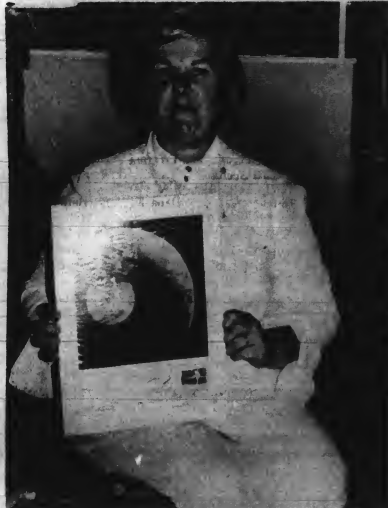

"Sincerely,

"Winton M. Blount

"I was pleased, but I thought they were mailing one to every Republican," said Mrs. Morrell. However, after checking locally and finding no others she called Richmond. As far as she knows she and State Republican Chairman Warren French are the only ones in the state to get the memento.

Although she labels the gift an "honor and a privilege", she says she does not know why she was selected. However, despite her modesty, she is one of the mainstays of the local Republican party. She is immediate past president of the Virginia Beach Republican Women's Club. She is also a member of the National Federation of Republican Women and was co-chairman of the Virginia Federation of Republican Women's convention at the Mariner last spring and was arrangements chairman for the spring mass meeting.

Her contact with President Nixon dates back before his election. She went to Richmond when he was speaking there and urged him to come to Tidewater. Later she set up the headquarters in 1964 for the United Citysens for Nixon-Agnew. Following his election she was invited to the presidential inauguration and ball, which she attended.

She is also Republican registrar and has been in charge of undecided voters and the 'get-out-the-vote' campaign. "I believe in person to person contact."

Mrs. Morrell says she has been working in the Republican party since before she was 21 in Pennsylvania. "I had a Democratic aunt that worked at the polls," admitted Mrs. Morrell. "I went along and watched."

Mrs. Morrell also attended the Republican National Convention which nominated Nixon, although she was an observer and not a delegate.

She was also active in the gubernatorial campaign. She is proud of the fact that Virginia Beach topped its vote goal for Linwood Holton, by almost 4,000

--14,995 with a goal of 11,000. With Gov. Holton's election came another inaugural inaugural invitation. In fact, she served as one of the hostesses at the reception in the governor's mansion the day after the inauguration.

"I like to work. I like to think of myself as the Virginia Republican's poor Pearl Mesta," quipped Mrs. Morrell.

After raising seven girls and a boy (she also has five grandchildren) Mrs. Morrell knows about today's youth. "I think kids today are so smart--and so interested in what's going on."

And that's not all. Mrs. Morrell has been warned of another memento she will receive--a copy of the recent portrait of Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Nixon.

But she still doesn't know why...

Slides will be program

CINCLANT

to have luau

A luau, complete with a Tahitian dancer and hula girls, is planned by the CINCLANT Officers Wives on Friday, Aug. 28 at Ft. Story Officers Club.

The evening will begin at 7 p.m., complete with dinner and cocktails with prizes for the craziest and best costumes.

Going, going got it

Bikes don't bend in the middle--at least not under normal circumstances. And they don't fit in the back seat of a small car without a fight.

Everyone should attend at least one bicycle auction. They're held periodically behind the police station at Princess Anne Courthouse. There was one last Friday with more than 100 bikes--and at least 150 men, women, children and a few dogs waiting to grab them.

The day was hot--and the kids were tired and thirsty. (Not mine, that is. I had sense enough to leave them home.)

The really lucky guy was the one that won the first bike for a bid of $5. Prices (or bids) rose rapidly after that.

The seven-year-old's bike was stolen a little over a month ago, so we decided this would be a good chance to get her another cheaply. Ha! She did ask me before I left home if I'd buy her old bike back. I can honestly say there wasn't a single pink bike there--purple maybe, but not pink.

I bid $8.50 on one that sold for $8. The auctioneer didn't hear me. Don't worry, I don't give up easily. I bided in the sun for an hour and a half until I got her one--blue, that is.

One thing did make me kind of mad, though, and that was having a bicycle shop owner bidding against me. I guess he has his rights too, but still....

Anyhow, I got the bike. And I wheeled it away fast before somebody changed his mind. But what do you do with it. We have a semi-compact car. The bicycle would not fit in the trunk. I tried putting it in the back seat forwards and couldn't get it in. Then I couldn't get it out to turn it around. May I add that the thing wasn't exactly clean either. Not really dirty--just greasy. Finally I got it back out and backed it in. It fit, a little too close for comfort unless you like to drive with a handle bar sticking in your ear.

There was still half a day to work in a greasy dress, which I did. However, when I got home, I couldn't get the bike out backwards, forwards or upside down. Finally I took my niece, two of the kids and myself to wiggle and turn that thing out.

The seven-year-old was overjoyed--it's bigger than her nine-year-old sister's bike.

I had always been curious about the auctions, and now I know. Next time I'll be prepared--with thermos, bull horn, sunburn cream and a lawn chair.

TOGETHERNESS--Lt. Dick Farver receives lieutenant bars from his bride Lt. Jean Farver. Capt. William A. Schroeder, Jr., commanding officer of Naval Air Station Oceana, gives Jean a preview of what's to be for her in December when she also becomes lieutenant.

Don't mention prune cake

Lt. Dick Farver, of air operations, met wife officer Jean Jeffords, former Oceana communications officer, at a party in December of 1968.

July of this year saw them augment their careers by taking the oath to serve one another as man and wife.

The newlyweds, as naval officers, are climbing the ladder of success. Lt. Dick Farver just received his promotion and Lt. Jean Farver will be promoted in December.

They hope to maintain both careers; their only worry is getting assignments that will keep them together.

In keeping with the adage, "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach," Lt.

Farver was questioned about his wife's cooking. He enthusiastically replied, "She's a great cook!" Whereupon Jean added, "If we can forget my prune cake, I placed it on top of the stove to cool, and inadvertently turned on a burner. It looked as if Mt. Vesuvius had erupted when the center of the cake burned through and smoke just billowed out."

Show plans progress

Plans are already underway for the Twelfth Annual Antiques Showale sponsored by the Princess Anne Woman's Club. The event will be held Oct.

22-25, at the Virginia Beach Civic Center from 1-6 p.m.

Forty dealers from ten states are expected to exhibit their antiques at the show. Donation for the event is a dollar.

Candidate is speaker

Democratic Senatorial candidate George Rawlings will be guest speaker at the quarterly meeting of the Mid-City Democratic Woman's Club at noon Sept. 9 at the Ramada Inn.

The public is invited. Luncheon reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Helen Todd, 340-2344; Mrs. Tina Britton, 340-2637, or Mrs. Betty Jo Hendrix, 497-9456. The deadline for reservations is Sept. 7.

Mrs. G. L. Aldridge is general chairman for the show. Mrs. A. R. Bunting is co-chairman.

Are Wedding Bells Ringing?

If you are announcing an engagement or wedding, why not do it in the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN?

Brides are asked to submit their photographs (5x7 or 8x10 glossy) by Monday of the week they want the announcement to appear on Thursday. Wedding and engagement forms are available at the newspaper office, 3108 Pacific Avenue.

SUMMER CHAMPAGNE AND WINE COOLERS

CHAMPAGNE COCKTAIL

Place 1 lump Cocktail Sugar (cubes dipped into Creme de Menthe and Angostura Bitters) and 1/2 slice orange in saucer type champagne glass. Fill glass with GREAT WESTERN Champagne. Sugar need not dissolve completely before serving. Renew sugar and orange slice after 2 cocktails.

WINE COOLER

Fill tall glass with ice cubes. Add GREAT WESTERN Chelots or Pleasant Valley Red Wine until glass is three-quarters filled with wine. Add ginger ale or carbonated soda for fizz. Add swizzle stick and fruit slice.

Cut strawflowers for drying when fully opened and fully colored. For more interesting arrangements cut also a few half-opened blooms and buds.

Mrs. Ware (Boice Studio)

Denning-Ware wedding

The marriage of Miss Barbara Louise Denning and Joseph Shay Ware, Jr., both of Virginia Beach, took place at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 15 at Schott Memorial United Methodist Church with the Rev. H. Randolph Arrington officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Matthew Haywood Denning of Ohio Avenue and the late Mrs. Mary Eldise Denning.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. G. W. Purvis of Norfolk and the late Joseph Shay Ware.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white silk organza and tulle lace. The accenting veil was shoulder length.

Miss Pamela Joy Cash of Norfolk was maid of honor and Mrs. James E. Ramsey of Virginia Beach was matron of honor. Bridesmaid were Mrs.

Charles Barton of Virginia Beach, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Deborah Via of Virginia Beach, Mrs. Jerald R. Vaughan of Norfolk and Miss Mary Hays Leeper of Richmond. Nieces of the bride, Tracy Leigh Lucas and Mary Lynn Myers were junior bridesmaids.

Thomas R. Gallagher of Blacksburg, formerly of Virginia Beach, was best man. Groomsmen included nephews of the bride, George William Myers, Jr. of Virginia Beach, and Thomas Scott Lucas of Norfolk. Other groomsmen were Richard M. Hamlet, John Webb Drescher and Jesse R. Davis, all of Virginia Beach; and Jerald R. Vaughan and Ronald Richards of Norfolk.

A reception was held at the Virginia Club of Norfolk. Following a wedding trip the couple will live on Virginia Avenue in Virginia Beach.

Law helps control cards

"A new law, enacted by the 1970 Virginia General Assembly, relieves the recipient of an unsolicited credit card of almost all responsibility concerning its use," Miss Hilda Dalley, extension specialist in home management with Virginia Tech's College of Home Economics, assured homemakers.

If one has not requested the credit card, has not agreed in writing to receive it, has not used it; nor given another permission to use the card, one is not responsible for charges placed against the card.

"The recipient is not required by law to destroy an unsolicited credit card. Nor is one prohibited from destroying it. Common sense would indicate it should be destroyed," Miss Dalley said. "If it should be put to unauthorized use, one might find it difficult to prove its misuse."

Miss Dalley recommends care to prevent the unsolicited card from being lost or stolen. "It is not for the sake of the issuing organization, but for the sake of the person whose name it bears," she said.

In addition to the new state law, a ruling by the Federal Trade Commission has added some control over unsolicited credit cards. It prohibits distribution of unsolicited cards issued by all companies and other businesses on the grounds of unfair competition. The ruling does not apply to banks and common carriers.

When you're not
Lydia Pinkham understands

All of a sudden you might feel you're changing--not a good feeling. You're tired, edgy, out of sorts and that's not you. Lydia Pinkham understands.

A long time ago, when ladies couldn't be as frank as we can today, Lydia Pinkham recognized the problem and set about finding a remedy. She knew it was not natural for women to have to suffer with what was obviously a natural process.

So she turned to nature for a remedy. She developed a marvelous compound of medicinal roots and herbs that turned the trick for the women she knew. Because it is a natural answer to your natural problems, it can turn the trick for you, too.

Try Lydia Pinkham's root and herb remedy to help you feel better, more like yourself.

Mrs. Chalmers (Aufenger Studios)

Kellam-Chalmers wedding

Miss Rebecca Randolph Kellam became the bride of Norman Wayne Chalmers in a candlelight ceremony at 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 15 at Nimmo United Methodist Church with the Rev. Emory S. Ellmore officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Floyd Eaton Kellam of Princess Anne Station and the late Judge Kellam.

The bridegroom is the son of Capt. and Mrs. Norman Edward Chalmers (USN) of Five Forks Road.

The bride, escorted by her brother, Floyd Eaton Kellam, Jr., was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a gown of candlelight French net applied in medallions of white re-embroidered Alencon lace. The fitted empire bodice featured a round neckline and puffed sleeves. The controlled belle skirt bordered in a deep orange colonial ruffle, swept into a full chapel train. Her veil of imported silk illusion was arranged from a cluster of lace petals encrusted with crystals and pearls.

Mrs. Robert John Robertson, Jr., of Virginia Beach was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Sandra Francis Chalmers and Miss Francis Dea Chalmers of Virginia Beach, sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Marion Hunter Joyce of Norfolk and Miss Sally Owen High of Whiteville, N. C.; Anne Randolph Robertson, the bride's niece, was junior bridesmaid, and another niece, Martha Bruce Robertson, was flower girl.

Thomas Gary Sharpe of Norfolk was best man. Groomsmen were Charles Michael Scott of Norfolk, Alva M. Wilder of Virginia Beach, Robert Newton of Chesapeake and Samuel Corpening of Richmond.

Following a reception at the Commissioned Officers' Open mess at NAS Oceana, the couple left on an undisclosed wedding trip. They will live in Chesapeake.

Mrs. Chalmers is a teacher at Alton Elementary School, and Mr. Chalmers is employed by Virginia Electric and Power Company.

Cleo 'dug' pickles

An old and popular use for cucumbers is the making of pickles. And the final product is in a most useful and beneficial item in our diet.

Don't let those extra cucumbers in your garden go to waste. Many fine recipes are available for converting all sizes into various types of pickles and relishes.

The fermentation process for making pickles has been used for several thousand years. It may have originated when a bitter olive fell into a briny lagoon, and someone discovered the resulting product was edible.

Famous people throughout the ages have praised pickles. It is reported that Cleopatra considered them a royal treat, and believed they were good for health and beauty.

Many centuries ago Pliny wrote about spiced and preserved cucumbers. Napoleon considered them to be a health-giving food. Famous Americans like George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and Dolly Madison expressed their fondness for pickles.

Pickles were an esteemed item in the diet of the early pioneers. Under frontier conditions they were the only juicy, zesty, green food available during the long winter months.

Modern pickles are similar to those of many years ago, but the quality is better. The use of scientific methods, in sanitary food processing plants, now produce many types of pickles and relishes in attractive convenient packages.

The cucumbers available for making pickles have also improved. Plant breeders have developed new varieties which produce large yields of uniform small pickles.

Another important recent advance is the invention of machines to harvest the crop. The equipment will pick up the vines and knock off the small cucumbers and carry them by a conveyor belt to field crates or bins.

Plan to include a short row of small pickling cucumbers in your garden next year. The new hybrid gynoecious types such as Crusader and Picadilly produce high yields starting less than two months after they are planted.

Don't let the word gynoecious confuse you. It only means that all of the flowers are female, and each one will produce a fruit. Some male plants are mixed with the female hybrids to provide pollination and fruit set.

Most slicing cucumber varieties produce many more male than female flowers early in the season. Thus, the hybrid pickling cucumbers produce a heavy crop at the start, whereas the slicing types attain full production more gradually.

Rose Hall's BRIDAL LANE

THE HONEYMOON'S OVER

Just got the lowdown on the second honeymoon trip our friends took to Hawaii. They had such a fabulous room in Las Vegas (swimming pool in the bedroom, etc.) on their first that they expected that and better in Hawaii which was supposed to be the highlight of their honeymoon trip.

When they arrived, the lady insisted upon being carried over the threshold, even though she had gained a few pounds since they were first married. Her husband enthusiastically carried out her wishes. He picked her up, pushed open the door and suddenly dumped her unceremoniously in the doorway!

While she was screaming from pain, surprise and anger, he was screaming, "Look at this room--there's no furniture, no beds...just two couches...I've paid a fortune for nothing!!and this is our honeymoon!"

show him the stone and ask his opinion since it did have "a little sparkle" in one corner. Imagine his surprise when he was assured that it was a real diamond. It was cut, polished and made into a Tiffany setter for his bride-to-be.

It is now 1970, and the ring will be worn according to family tradition by Miss Patricia Ann Moats (Mr. Larson's granddaughter) on Sept. 2 when she will be married to Doyle Clinton Sampson, Jr. Her sister, Susan Marie, will be next in line to have the honor of wearing the diamond on her wedding day.

Miss Moats

Pat will also carry a white prayer book her mother, Mrs. Donald W. Moats, carried on her wedding day in which the passage from Ruth "thy people shall be my people" and "For Love Eternal" are well marked because they meant so much to Mrs. Moats, and Pat feels the passage is as significant to her as to her mother.

A diamond is a diamond, and Pat is certainly not "in the rough." She's a real gem.

"Budget living permits a written record of how much you've spent beyond your income."

"Every wife should buy her husband a tie rack. It makes a handy place to hang hose and slips."

HELPFUL HINT: Before an engagement is announced publicly, the groom asks the consent of the bride's father (or head of her family) and the groom's family calls on the bride's family if at all possible.

(Anyone with items of interest on engagements and/or weddings, tell your story to Mrs. Evie Myatt, Bridal Consultant at Rose Hall.)

Age is no deterrent

The Golden Age Clubs of Virginia Beach sponsored by the Recreation Department, had a successful tour of Florida, leaving Aug. 10, and returning Aug. 15.

The group was composed of Blackwater, Creeds, Atlantic Park, Lynnhaven Princess Anne Plaza Golden Age Clubs, with guests from Berkley senior citizens club. The group left the community center at Seateck for the bus station in Norfolk. Leaving Norfolk, they arrived in North Carolina where they received the requested driver and proceeded to Jacksonville, Fla.

The next morning they went on a tour of Silver Springs taking in the glass bottom boat ride and other sites of interest, taking pictures and enjoying the festivity offered at Silver Springs. Leaving Silver Springs they started for Tampa. There they visited the famous Busch Gardens. The group boarded the Nona Rail Trains and rode through the wild kingdom and saw every type and kind of wild animal from the old world, including all kinds of rare birds.

Leaving Tampa, they headed for Miami Beach, then traveled through the orange groves where they stopped and drank orange juice, bought oranges, grapefruit, jams, jellies and souvenirs.

They found Cape Kennedy an eye-catching site to behold, visiting the building where the capsules are assembled. The door is so large it takes 1 1/2 hours to open.

Next they went into St. Augustine where they took in Marineland. The porpoise show and the rare birds were very impressive. They headed back to Jacksonville where they spent the night and got up Friday morning touring Jacksonville itself and shopping. Then they boarded the bus for Virginia Beach.

The committee in charge of the tour was Recreation Supervisor, H. C. Benjamin, Mrs. Elenora Winston, Blackwater, Mrs. Uola Hite, Atlantic Park, Mrs. Isabelle Williams, Lynnhaven, Mrs. Gladys Jackson, Creeds, Mrs. Margaret Stearns, Princess Anne Plaza, and Mrs. J. E. Lumen, Berkley.

Riptide Claims Life

The body of a 19-year-old Guatemalan who drowned while swimming off Virginia Beach Sunday was recovered Monday morning on the beach of Fort Story.

Officials said Lt. Col. J. A. Payne, post deputy commanding officer, discovered the body of Julio Fajardo shortly after 7 a.m. at the end of 14th Street on the military post.

Fajardo disappeared into waters of the Atlantic Ocean off 34th Street at about the time Weather Bureau officials issued a warning of a rip tide, accompanied by heavy undertow, moving along the shoreline of Virginia Beach.

Attempts by Fajardo's brother Juan, and two lifeguards identified as Joe Shepherd and John Hamilton, to rescue him failed.

Officials said Julio Fajardo was visiting his brother in Arlington, Va., on a visa from Guatemala, and they had arrived in Virginia Beach early Sunday for a one day visit to the resort city.

The issuance of the warnings of a rip tide with heavy undertow prompted efforts to close the beaches fronting on the ocean from Fort Story to the North Carolina border.

While the Fajardo drowning was the only serious incident reported during the unusual weather conditions, life guards on duty at various points along the Virginia Beach shoreline were reportedly called upon to assist swimmers.

Coast Guard units were dispatched to waters off Cape Henry to offer assistance to boaters and to swimmers needing assistance. Officials, however, reported a large number of boaters experienced minor difficulties in reaching calm water but no mishaps of consequence.

Weather Bureau officials said the unusual tide warnings were withdrawn late Sunday as waters along the shoreline returned to normal condition.

Wallen Fined, Sentenced

Thomas J. Wallen, of Richmond, was fined $200 and given a suspended one-year sentence by Municipal Court Judge P. B. White Friday after being convicted of possession of narcotics.

Wallen, 18, was arrested by Virginia Beach police July 27.

Drug Possession

Robert Preston Oliver, Jr. is facing court proceedings after being charged by Virginia Beach police with the possession of LSD and marijuana.

According to officials Oliver, 20, of W. Hastings Arch, in his auto in the 200 block of 23rd Street when the vehicle reportedly was found to contain quantities of marijuana and pills believed to contain LSD.

Hushish Sale

Authorities said they also charged Edwin J. Wise, 18, of Atlantic Avenue, with failing to move on during the arrest of Oliver.

Municipal Court Judge P. B. White has forwarded the case of David Fair, charged with possession and sale of hashish, to a Circuit Court grand jury.

RADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Congratulations are in order for police juvenile Division Det. D. C. Watson and his wife Carolyn who have become the proud parents of baby boy. We understand Sean Ashley Watson weighed in at 9 pounds 3 ounces, and Sean, mother and father are all doing fine. This is the Watsons' second son and second child.

Milton T. Holland, director of the City's Fire Prevention Bureau and Chief Fire Investigator, was confined to Virginia Beach General Hospital this week. Holland was undergoing observation and a series of tests.

Louise W. Fulham, wife of officer "Shep" Fulham of the 1st Police Precinct, retired this past week after 23 years of service with the federal government. She spent the last nine years of her service employed at the Oceana Naval Air Station.

Men of the Kempsville Volunteer Fire Department captured several awards last week in competition with fire departments from throughout the state during the 44th annual State Firemen's convention at Chincoteague, which was attended by some 1,500 firemen from across the Old Dominion. The unit was awarded a prize for having the best fire fighting apparatus at the convention, as well as individual trophies for taking fourth place in competition in the one man and four man hose hook-up competition. Those who represented Kempsville during the Eastern Shore event included Dan Humphries, Douglas Sawyer, John Perry, Gary Painter, Leonard Thorpe and Paul Hershberger.

Two new men joined the Virginia Beach police duty roster this week. Officers Richard A. Chrisman and Kenneth R. Paul have assumed duties with the 1st Police Precinct. Mrs. Rosemary Clark also joined the staff of the police department's Central Services Division.

Men of the Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Department have placed an order for a new "custom carry-all" ambulance to increase the capability of the unit's Rescue Squad.

ADR2 D. T. Loper, attached to the Virginia Beach Shore

Patrol Detachment, was listed in serious condition Wednesday in Portsmouth Naval Hospital. Officials tell us Loper was being treated in the hospital's cardiac care unit after a heart attack.

Mother Files Damage Suit

A $76,500 wrongful death damage suit has been filed in Virginia Beach Circuit Court in connection with the fatal injury of John Lee Sullivan in Aragona Village July 20. The suit filed on behalf of Barbara L. Holcombe, his mother, Crape Myrtle Road, claims the death of the six-year-old boy was the result of negligence and reckless driving on the part of Mary B. Rousseau of Quinwood Lane, named as defendant in the legal action.

The defendant was identified as driver of the car which collided with the boy's bicycle at the intersection of Ferry Plantation Road and Overman Avenue, resulting in injuries which claimed the boy's life.

1 Convicted, 4 Released

Thomas Bullock has been fined $250 and sentenced to 30 days in jail by Municipal Court Judge P. B. White after being found guilty of the charge of possession of marijuana.

Bullock, 18, was charged by Virginia Beach police on July 19 when they allegedly found a quantity of marijuana in the bedroom of Bullock's Oceana home in the 1900 block of Virginia Beach Blvd.

Defense attorney Thomas F. Betz, Jr., has appealed Bullock's conviction to the Circuit Court.

Judge White ruled in favor of a defense motion to strike the evidence in the case of four other's charged with possession of marijuana in the same investigation.

Those acquitted of the charge were identified as John Royall, 18, of Linville Crescent; Timothy Hill, 18, of S. Witchduck Road; Gordon Walker, 19, of Greeter Road, and Gregory Burbage, 20, whose address was listed as the Virginia Beach Blvd. residence where the investigation was conducted.

William E. Hershman, president of the Virginia Beach Civitan Club, presents a $1,000 check to Mrs. Robert Summers, president of the Camp Civitan Board of Trustees, as Capt. Earnest W. Metzger USN Governor Elect of the Chesapeake District Civitan International, looks on. The money will go towards operating expenses for the camp. More than 270 handicapped children have participated in Camp Civitan activities this summer.

Suspect Caught in Roanoke

A 15-year-old juvenile who was being sought in connection with two residential burglaries in Virginia Beach is reported in custody of authorities in Roanoke County.

Det. H. J. Coffield, Jr., said the youth and two 16-year-old juveniles have been charged with the July 14th burglarizing of the Florence Turner home on 50th Street and the G. W. Miller home on 48th Street, as well as the theft of an auto from the Turner home.

Coffield said the three suspects are expected to be turned over to Virginia Beach officials following proceedings in Roanoke County where they reportedly face charges similar to those in the resort city.

According to Coffield the three are also facing similar charges in North Carolina.

Coffield indicated his investigation shows the three juveniles arrived in Virginia Beach during a 15 day "crime spree" which followed their escape from custody at the Bon Aire Diagnostic Center in Chesterfield County.

Old Wife

New Wife

Give your wife a new wig, and she'll look and feel like a new woman. Especially if it's one of the smashing Debonair' wigs available at F&M for the ridiculously low price of $9.95.

Now we know husbands aren't wig experts. But we should tell you that our Debonair' wigs are made of famous Kanekalon. (This may not mean much to you. But to your wife it means no upkeep. No setting. Just an occasional rinse-out and run-through of the brush. And that means a lot.)

These stretchy little wigs come in two styles...a smart London Shag, and a chic

Semi-Curl. And they come in 25 shades and colors, including the new frosted.

To get one of these fine wigs for just $9.95, all you have to do is open a savings or checking account at F&M for $100 or more. Or add $100 to your existing F&M savings account. (For a deposit of $1,000, the wig costs just $5. And for a deposit of $5,000, it's absolutely free.) And for your convenience, we've fixed it so you can charge the cost of the wig on your BankAmericard.

You don't even have to worry about choosing a wig. Because once you've made your qualifying deposit, we'll give you a wig certificate for your wife. Then she can stop by one of our F&M wig boutiques and select her new

wig. (See list at bottom of page for boutique locations.)

Now we realize husbands aren't the only people reading this. So now a word for the ladies. Just tear this ad out and drop it as an un-subtle hint. Or visit F&M on your own and see these beautiful Debonair' wigs.

If you don't, you may be cheating yourself out of more than a brand new wig. You may be cheating yourself out of a brand new you.

And you may be cheating your husband out of a brand new wife.

GETTING A FIX

Have you ever been lost? That question may not be as foolish as it appears to be at first glance - especially to the boatman who may have been caught in a fog. Or in a period of reduced visibility due to stormy weather.

A story was related to this writer a short time ago by a boatman who got caught in a sudden weather front. Before the front approached he knew exactly where he was. He could see land on three sides? But the open sea lay on the other side. His boat was at anchor and his party was fishing. All of a sudden it got rough and he lost sight of his landmarks. When the front had passed, and visibility improved, he found that he was over two miles from where he thought he was. Fortunately, for him, that was the only result of the storm. No boat damage, no personnel injury. But for what must have seemed like a lifetime this boatman was lost! He didn't know where he was. And it could have been worse. NAVIGATIONAL AIDS

The Coast Guard maintains an elaborate system of aids to navigation consisting of buoys, lights, ranges, radar beacon stations, loran stations, day beacons, and the like. Some aids are fitted with gongs, bells, or whistles. They have different colors, shapes, and numbers. There are a number of different ways by which to fix your position, to tell where you are. That is, if the visibility is such that you can see these aids to navigation and recognize them. Or hear them! Or receive information from them electronically! Otherwise, you may be lost.

All of these aids are fixed, for example, they remain in the same location. However, the boatman is always on the move, and in many cases determines his position from the aids to navigation. Many boatmen have installed navigational aids on their boats. And some of this equipment is a miniature version of what one might expect to see on an ocean liner. And the small boat electronic gadgets serve the same purpose as those on the liner. Maybe even more. Many pleasure boatmen are using their electronic devices to determine their position, signal for help when needed, spot schools of fish, and perhaps even tell their wives when they'll be home for supper. There are many types of electronic equipment available to the owner of a pleasure boat. And the cost of these items range anywhere from a few dollars to several thousand. Among items now on the market are:

- Communications equipment. Take your choice! You can get anything from a pocket-sized transistor receiver for less than ten dollars and use it for getting weather broadcasts, etc. - or, you can spend a few thousand dollars and get an elaborate radio-telephone, or ship-to-shore system, which the skipper may be able to call anywhere in the world if there is a marine operator within range.
- Fathometers. These are small sonar sets which bounce a signal off the bottom and measure the time it takes to return to your boat. By converting this time into distance, it will indicate the depth of the water. And some of these depth finders are particularly suited to finding fish. Prices range from less than $100 for a "build it yourself" kit to a $100 or more. You can get a portable one which can be used on a rowboat, or one which would complement the most luxurious yacht.

-Radio direction finders. From a little over a $100 on up to many hundred dollars you can get one of these sets to determine the direction - but not the distance to the radio beacon station maintained by the Coast Guard. By getting two such lines of position, or directions to station, and plotting them on a chart you can tell within a certain degree of accuracy where you are.

-Radar. This is an electronic device developed during World War II and named for the initials RADAR Detection And Ranging. It is designed to indicate the presence of objects, from which the operator may derive both direction and distance. Probably the most expensive piece of electronic equipment for the boatman, it costs upward from $2,000.

-Loran. Another system developed in World War II and named for the initials LONG RANGE Navigation. In Loran, synchronized pulses are transmitted from pairs of transmitting stations. The time difference of receipt of the pulses is measured by the Loran receiver on the vessel and a line of position is established. The crossing of two such lines of position provide the "fix," or location of the boat. These units cost between $750 and $1,500. WHAT'S WHAT?

Every boat afloat should have at least one piece of electronic equipment aboard - a radio receiver. But the boat owner who has all of those above and is still not satisfied with his gimmickry may try one of these: a huge sniffer to detect explosive fumes; a foghorn that comes on automatically in fog; a combination load huller/listening device; intercom; automatic pilot; etc.

Electronic navigational aids are here to stay. But there is one important navigational aid which has not been mentioned and which does not depend upon electrical power to operate. It draws its power from the earth itself. The origin of this aid is lost in history; the first clear description of its present pivoted model dates back to 1269. And it is still the most dependable navigational aid in use today. The magnetic compass! A compass, marine or otherwise, can be purchased in any desired shape or style at just about any price the boatman would want to pay. And it will always help you return. All you have to know is which direction you want to go. Shouldn't every boat have at least this simple navigational aid?

Make safe boating your "cruise-aid". Address any questions to the writer at Commander, Fifth Coast Guard District (oba), Portsmouth, Virginia 23706.

THAT'S A CANTALOUPE--28 pounds of it, that Mason Williams of Princess Anne Road is holding. A "smaller" one weighed only 24 pounds. On the ground at left is a normal-sized melon, while at right is a banana cantaloupe, one of a number of them which Williams says he did not plant.

Avant-Garde Festival Features 'The Americans'

The Off-Broadway Cafe La Mama Experimental Theatre comes to Norfolk tonight through Saturday as part of the Second Annual Summer Avant-Garde Festival X, produced under the auspices of the Norfolk Theatre Center.

The internationally famous company, under general direction of Ellen Stewart, will present Maxine Klein's production of THE AMERICANS, a dramatization of fact and legend concerning the American Indian and his place in our society today. Mrs. Klein staged THE AMERICANS under a partial grant from the National Endowment for the Arts through the Boston University Drama Department, where she is director in residence. She previously created and directed APPROACHING SIMONE in Boston, which was later moved to Cafe LaMama's off Broadway house, and for which she was awarded the Obie (Best Off Broadway Director of the Year) in 1969.

The three performances of THE AMERICANS will be presented at Old Dominion University Theatre, 46th and Hampton Boulevard, at 8:40 p.m. Other performances by local groups will be staged through August 29 during the Festival at the Theatre Center, 345 W. Freemason Street. They include the Magical Mystery Tour the Norfolk Theatre Center Repertory Company, The Tidewater Dance Guild and the Norfolk Chamber Consort, all presenting new works in their respective media. The Theatre Center programs will begin at 8:30 p.m. Tickets for all FESTIVAL X programs are available at the Center's box office at admissions of $3.00 for adults and $2.00 for students and enlisted military personnel. Norfolk Theatre Center membership may also be used for Festival X performances. The box office is open from 10 a.m. daily.

ASTRO-ADVICE

By Raymond Williams
noted Virginia Beach
astrologer

Needs Exact Time

NOTE: Will the young lady who wrote in saying that she was a Libran, but did not think that her life was balanced, please provide me with the time and place of your birth. I could answer your questions without this, but it would help a great deal insofar as accuracy is concerned.

Jennifer Is Grateful

QUESTION: I'd like to thank you for the concern you showed me in your column. Kindness shown by others can really get rid of depression. I am writing this because I would not want you to think I am ungrateful. Could you advise me on what course I should set in my life? My main interest is music, art or some kind of social work. Jennifer is not my name, forgive me for this.

ANSWER: Jennifer, it does not matter what your name is. The thing that matters, and it matters more than you realize, is that you are a human being and that you are in need of some kindness and understanding. Frankly, I would rather associate with someone who is confused and is willing to admit it than with someone who is confused and has acquired a whole network of habits and poses to impress the world that they are cool and in command of their lives. You see, it is only when we admit that we do not know, or that we are confused, or that we are afraid, that it is possible to find clarity in our lives. To continue a pretense only digs our grave of self-deception deeper. The problem with many young people is that they are buried in imagined guilts and fears. As an astrologer I can see these fears and some of the problems that you must face, in spite of what is generally believed, the competent astrologer can get a very clear picture of the person that he is counseling through a horoscope. I think I know what it is that is depressing and confusing you and I can assure you that it is not at all as serious as it seems to you at this time. Someone has said that today is the tomorrow that we worried about yesterday. I think that is an excellent thought, and if we can remember it when we are depressed it can often sustain us through difficult times. I would like to know what you meant by someday I shall be released.

As far as setting a course for the future one thing is certain. You are a tremendously sensitive person and there is a wide variety of things you could do that would bring you financial return, as well as a sense of satisfaction. You have the planet Mercury (the mind) in the sign of Libra, which is the ruler of art and anything relating to beauty. This could mean clothing, cosmetics, interior decorating etc. It is interesting to note that Mercury is conjunct the planet Neptune. This is a blessing and a curse. From the point of what you can do it is a blessing, but from the point of self-understanding it is a curse. Neptune tends to cloud and confuse what it touches and from that point it makes it difficult for you to see things as they really are. But if used to its fullest, it can be tremendous asset in things such as art, cosmetics, costume design and decorating, because it gives us the opportunity to use the subtle deceptiveness that Neptune produces in making a small room look large, an inexpensive dress look like an original, or a few brush strokes look like a tree or figure or anything else that you want it to look like. This is one of the requirements in creative design of any kind. The problem is that this kind of creativity is often difficult to understand. Another thing that you must begin to see in yourself is the fact that you tend to exaggerate things a little out of proportion. This can also be a blessing or a curse, depending on how you deal with it. An example of how it could be used profitably, as with deception, would be in seeing how things can be exaggerated, or overstated in cases of comedy. Another good example can be found in use in most of today's advertising.

So you see Jennifer, it is not so much what we are given to work with, as it is what we do with the things that we have. It is so easy to "cop-out" these days, and it is easy to do so. I might add, but it is much more rewarding to persist in doing what we feel is right. Even when things do not make too much sense at the time, we often discover later that there was reason behind the seeming madness. As I said before, you have what it takes and I know that if you will try you will make out quite well.

A Difficult Period

QUESTION: Recently I have become very confused and despondent. I have always had a tendency to be moody but this is too much. Every day is a mental battle and unhappiness is resulting. I know that in the end everything will be all right, but meanwhile what is going on and what is in the near future? Signed R.C.

ANSWER: Everytime I begin to think that my critics may be right and that I may be a crack-pot for being interested in, and what is worse, believing in astrology, something happens that brings me back to the faith and surety that astrology is a valid and reliable science. In erecting your horoscope I somehow used the incorrect date, I erected the chart for the year 1953 instead of 1954. As I began to study it to determine the cause of your present state of unhappiness I could find nothing that would account for your problems. At first I was concerned because I even went back to the ephemeris for the year 1953, to check the planet placements, and of course they were exactly as I had placed them. It was not until I stopped for my morning coffee and returned with a new determination to find the obvious cause for the discrepancy, that I found my mistake. Now, with this new light, I think I can safely give you an understanding of what is taking place in your life.

You have Libra rising at birth, with the planet Neptune placed in the first house. This is the mark of a mystic. You are sure to have some unusual taste in relationship to the things that interest you, such as art, music, literature etc. There is some conflict in this area that could cause some confusion and conflict with your friends, relatives and employers as you grow older. It may have caused some conflict in school already. This same configuration will also produce some rather unusual illnesses. Where someone else will get a cold, for example, and recover quickly, you would tend to have the cold develop into something that resembles the "flu-bug" and it would take you longer to recover.

There are two things taking place in your chart now that are causing you the problems you describe. The planet Venus is moving to a conjunction to the planet Saturn. This will cause a

Death Raises Question Of Successor

By RUBY JEAN PHILLIPS

Virginia Beach Borough was left without an incoming councilman Tuesday by the tragic death of councilman-elect Frank D. Tarrall Jr. and it appeared filling the vacancy would demand court action.

Tarrall would have been among the other 10 councilmen to be sworn in Friday afternoon by Circuit Court Clerk John

V. Fentress. Since he had not been officially sworn in there was some question Wednesday as to how his successor would be selected...appointment by council, appointment by Circuit Court or special election?

Official Action Will Rest On Technicality

Breaking for the Law

E. L. Whitehurst Jr., Assistant Sealer of Weights and Measures, and city inspector E. W. Litchfield (right) supervise the destruction of about 2,000 glass milk bottles confiscated by the city's inspection Services Division when it was discovered that consumers weren't receiving the property quantity of milk. Plans were made for return of the bottles to the manufacturer where they would be melted down under Federal supervision but shipping costs proved too high so Thursday the bottles were disposed of at Mt. Trashmore.

He'll Lift 'em up' Put 'em Down', To Boost Beach

By JAMES TURNER

Some men will walk a mile for a cigarette, but Johnny Rowe will walk about 800 of them for the City of Virginia Beach. For a fee, that is.

Rowe, a professional walker from Scarborough, Ontario, came to Virginia Beach last week for a vacation and left with an ambition: to walk from Ontario to Virginia Beach, a distance of about 845 miles, for $5,000.

"All I need is a sponsor," he said. "I know that seems like a lot of money, but in terms of advertising, it's worth it."

Rowe said that he needs at least $2,000 to cover expenses, leaving the remainder of $3,000 as his fee for the feat.

While on the road, Rowe has a man driving a car following him to give him drinks during the day, to talk with, and take care of any physical problems that might be encountered.

Rowe said the trip would take about 27 days, if he covered about 35 miles a day. Pacing the trip, Rowe said, is the biggest problem. "I'll probably walk about 10 or 12 hours a day. That way, I don't kill myself in the process."

The fastest walk Rowe ever made was 10 miles, which he covered in an hour and 40 minutes. The longest walk is one day was 103 miles.

Rowe, 41, started walking when he was 20. "I did it because I was thin and didn't weigh very much. I didn't feel very good either."

"I don't know why I started walking, but next to nothing," he said. "I use them because I get chafed from everything else. It has caused a few problems getting them washed when we stop at night," he said.

Rowe said that when he stops he usually is interested only in rest, but takes time out to catch up on the news of the day through a briefing by his road man.

While walking provides Rowe with a great deal of exercise, "it gets awful lonely out there. But it gives me a chance to blow off steam and clear my mind as well as my body," he said.

People are usually friendly about someone making a walk, Rowe said. They will stop and talk for a few minutes and generally don't try to run you off the road, but he notes one exception.

"Newfoundland was the closest I ever came to getting picked off. I was walking along talking to a reporter and this guy came right across the road like he was deliberately heading for us."

"I grabbed the reporter and hauled him and myself out of the way," Rowe said. "I was worried about him walking 'I guess she'd be there with me.'"

Rowe, who's also a truck driver for the city of Toronto, said the best time to walk is during the last spring and during the summer. Walks have been considered during the rest of the year, but Rowe said the weather gets too bad to attempt it.

Two walks Rowe would like to make are across the state and across the country.

Rowe said he found the Jeepster empty and the man's body in the canal.

Sheriff Cahoon said Tarrall was found dressed in a sport shirt and slacks, wearing only a diamond ring. He was without any identifying papers and identification was made through papers in the Jeepster, parked about 100 yards from where the body was found.

The sheriff said the vehicle was filled with a large amount of equipment, several brief cases, and a number of business papers.

He said the keys were in the vehicle, and there was only one set of tracks leading to the spot.

Sheriff Cahoon said he didn't suspect robbery.

Tarrall, a native of Norfolk was a son of the late Frank D. and Mrs. Mary Virginia Orr Tarrall and the husband of Mrs. Martha Turner Tarrall.

He was a member of Virginia Beach First Baptist Church and a teacher in the Baptist Modern Class of the church.

Tarrall had been president of the Chamber of Commerce for two terms. A member of the Virginia Association of Surveyors, he was appointed by the governor for two terms to the

The City Charter states that a vacancy on council must be filled within 60 days through appointment by the remaining councilmen but that the appointee must reside in the borough he is to represent. The charter apparently does not specify how the office will be filled if the councilman-elect dies or withdraws before taking office.

The State Code, however, does specify that should a governmental official die or become unable to serve prior to going into office the filling of that vacancy shall be determined by Circuit Court. This could be appointment or by special election.

Fentress was in Charlottesville on a court matter Wednesday and could not be reached for comment.

City Attorney Dale Bimson said it would appear the method in filling the vacancy would probably rest on the technicality of whether or not Tarrall was officially a councilman.

If the election itself, held June 9, was the determining factor, then Tarrall's successor would be selected.

On the other hand, if it is determined his office could not have been official until the swearing-in ceremony Friday afternoon, then the matter will go to Circuit Court.

"We must first determine what makes his office official—the election or the swearing-in," Bimson said. "Then we'll know how to fill the vacancy."

Tarrall's death came at a time when most of the city's governmental and election leaders were out of town. City Manager Roger Scott and five councilmen were in Portland, Oregon attending the city's presentation for the All-America City award. They were not expected to return until late Wednesday night.

The Virginia Beach delegation was advised of Tarrall's death Tuesday night, according to Mrs. Grace Swartzfeger, secretary to the city manager.

Fentress was out of town and so was attorney John B. James, chairman of the Virginia Beach Electoral Board.

The only possibility that seemed impossible by Wednesday afternoon was that the office would not automatically go to Tarrall's opponent in the June election, Sotirios (Cary) Karageorge.

Karageorge, a Republican, trailed Tarrall, a Democrat, by 7,974 to 4,893 vote.

Tarrall Found Dead In N.C.

The body of Frank Tarrall Jr., a councilman-elect scheduled to be sworn in as a councilman Friday, was found in the water at the edge of a canal in the Duck Woods Golf Course in Kitty Hawk, N. C. Tuesday.

Tarrall, who lived in the 100 block of 46th Street, had been shot once in the head, according to Dare County Sheriff Frank N. Cahoon. He said there was a .38 caliber pistol found in the water near the body and that there had been no indication of foul play.

The 63-year-old surveyor and former owner of Frank B. Tarrall Associates had been a councilman in the old City of Virginia Beach prior to the 1963 merger with Princess Anne County.

Tarrall's body was discovered by a golf course caretaker, Norman Perry. Perry told authorities he had seen a lone man in a Jeepster drive down the dead-end road about noon get out and walk around.

He said he didn't see the man leave and went to investigate the situation after work about 5 p.m.

Perry said he found the Jeepster empty and the man's body in the canal.

Sheriff Cahoon said Tarrall was found dressed in a sport shirt and slacks, wearing only a diamond ring. He was without any identifying papers and identification was made through papers in the Jeepster, parked about 100 yards from where the body was found.

The sheriff said the vehicle was filled with a large amount of equipment, several brief cases, and a number of business papers.

He said the keys were in the vehicle, and there was only one set of tracks leading to the spot.

Sheriff Cahoon said he didn't suspect robbery.

Tarrall, a native of Norfolk was a son of the late Frank D. and Mrs. Mary Virginia Orr Tarrall and the husband of Mrs. Martha Turner Tarrall.

He was a member of Virginia Beach First Baptist Church and a teacher in the Baptist Modern Class of the church.

Tarrall had been president of the Chamber of Commerce for two terms. A member of the Virginia Association of Surveyors, he was appointed by the governor for two terms to the cases, and a number of business papers.

He said the keys were in the vehicle, and there was only one set of tracks leading to the spot.

Patriotism By Music Planned

September 5 has been proclaimed "Patriotism Day" by the Virginia Beach Jaycees' Committee for Patriotism.

Ceremonies will be held at the Norwegian Lady, located at 25th and Ocean Front from 1 to 5 p.m.

The committee consists of Ron Neely, Jim Ferebee, Denny Kuhnemund, Jack Jennings, Mac Sawyer, and Art Emsberg. Committee Chairman Jim Chestnut said he feels the citizens participating in the activities can express their patriotic feelings, and support for the flag.

The ceremonies will commence with the Honor Guard, a drill team from Fort Eustis. Following the drill team, the 38th Army Band from Fort Eustis will provide concert music.

"This will be an enjoyable day of patriotism set to music," Chestnut said.

Other bands providing concert music will be announced at a later date.

Beach UCF Kicks Off

Volunteers took the first step of the 1970-71 United Communities Fund Campaign Tuesday morning as they began the summer canvass of the resort areas of Virginia Beach.

Over 30 young Beach executives attended an 8 a.m. breakfast meeting and heard Harry B. Price, III, co-chairman of the General Union, and J. Frank George, Jr., president of the United Communities Fund, Norfolk.

Price, who is chairman of the UCF campaign in Virginia Beach, said that the Virginia Beach UCF Service Center, the newly acquired YWCA swimming pools and attendant swimming programs, and the Armed Forces Hospitality House have been used by thousands of Beach residents and visitors.

The resort area phase of the UCF campaign in Virginia Beach is being led by Charles Shanks, Robert J. Johnson and Arthur W. Allen.

Delegation Was Trimmed Down To Ten

Despite the protest of the Virginia Beach Jaycees, several other groups and private citizens, a party of ten city officials and residents traveled to Portland, Oregon and made the city's presentation during the All-America Cities Competition August 24 and 25.

Representing the city as members of its official delegation at the presentation were Councilman George R. Ferrell, City Manager Roger M. Scott, realtor Lawrence A. Sanello, city information officer Frank L. Cressy, Hospitality House director Algy Cohen and Aaron Parsons, a member of the Seacoast cleanup project.

Aside from the official delegation, councilmen Albert L. Bonney Sr., Lawrence E. Marshall, Earl M. Tabbutt and Kenneth N. Whitehurst Sr. made the 3,000 mile trip.

Protests over the trip arose when members of the council not affiliated with the presentation decided to attend. However, city officials didn't alter their plan.

Councilmen were originally scheduled to attend but changed

Symphony Auditions Planned

Auditions for musicians interested in becoming members of the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra will be held on Aug. 25 and Sept. 4 and 5 at the Symphony Office, 700 Board of Trade Building.

Vacancies are anticipated for violin, cello, contrabass, bassoon, French horn, trumpet and percussion. Music Director Russell Stanger invites any musician to audition even if no vacancy is anticipated for his particular instrument, since vacancies sometimes occur during the season, and extra or substitute musicians are often needed.

Musicians interested in auditioning should call the Symphony Office (823-8590) to arrange an audition time.

period of restraint where the affections are concerned. To one your age, I would think this could mean that you could experience a difficult experience in a love affair. This could also effect the finances. Since this aspect has not formed as yet, you are only feeling the beginning of its effect. The most important aspect is: The ascendant (rising sign) has moved to a conjunction with the planet Neptune. The nature of Neptune is such that it confuses or clouds over what it comes into contact with. Since Neptune is located in the first house of your horoscope, giving it much greater significance, this is producing a period of confusion and depression. This is not to be taken lightly, since these are the years that you are developing attitudes that will last through the years. I hope you are fortunate enough to have parents who will understand. This could also effect your health and I would be very careful to take especially good care of myself, if I were you.

As for the future, you are one of those truly blessed people who will have success almost at your finger-tips. The only thing that will keep you back will be the difficulty you will have understanding your self. When you have overcome the problems that Neptune will surely place in your path in the next few years, you can do as you please. If I were to offer a specific field at this time I would only suggest that you consider something which will bring you before the public. This could be sales, acting, lecturing, etc.

Don't Be Hasty

QUESTION: I have done so many irrational things in my life that I am afraid to trust myself in matters of importance. How may I prepare myself for my retirement years. What will the near future hold financially?

ANSWER: In your horoscope you have the planet Mercury (the mind) in an adverse aspect to the planet Uranus (uncertainty, changeability) and this is what has made you react radically from time to time. I often wonder if it would have helped to have had someone tell you this as a youngster. Would it have helped you to develop the discipline that would have been needed through the years?

In the last few years, the planet Mercury has been opposing your natal Uranus. Since Uranus is in the second house (the money house) and is ruler of money in your horoscope, there have surely been times when you did not know where the next dollar was coming from. This has passed now, and I am happy to say that things are looking much better. Your progressed ascendant has moved to a conjunction with the natal Uranus, and while this will tend to cause you to act a little hasty again, it should improve your finances considerably. It is the nature of Uranus to do anything suddenly and unexpectedly and you can therefore look for changes to take place in the finances quickly and unexpectedly. The changes should be for the better in the long run, but could present some unsettling conditions from time to time. There are other conditions working in the chart that could bring about a partnership situation. These influences are both good and bad. There is some need for caution, since the ascendant and conjunct Uranus could cause you to make some unwise decisions where other people are concerned.

You need not be too concerned about the future. You are quite intelligent and are capable of achieving almost anything you want. What you need to do is develop the determination to stay with something until it develops fully. Don't drop a thing and try something else quite so quickly.

Address your questions to Astro-Advice, Virginia Beach Sun, P.O. Box 657, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23451. All questions will be answered as space permits but must include date, time and place of birth.

First International Tennis Tournament Opens Tomorrow

Eight top international tennis professionals will begin their matches tomorrow on the courts at 25th Street as the three day 1970 Virginia Beach International Tennis Tournament gets under way.

Players who have accepted bids for the $5,000 event are: Inge Budge, West Germany; Ray Ruffels, Australia; Thomas Koch, Brazil; Brian Fairlie, New Zealand; Peter Curtis, England; Jaime Fillol, Chile; Premjit Lall, India; and Pancho Guzman, Ecuador.

Alternates for the tournament include: Gerald Battistich, England; Ion Titeac and Ilie Nastase, both of Romania; and Bob Carmichael, France.

Alternates were named as a security measure since most players will be competing in a tournament in Orange, New Jersey until August 29. If any of the bid players reach the finals in that event, an alternate will replace him in the Virginia Beach tournament.

In addition, Mary Ann Eisel, the wife of Peter Curtis, and Stephanie de Fina Johnson, two of the top-ranked U.S. women's players, will put on an exhibition match in conjunction with the tournament.

The tournament, sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, is being sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the International Players Association.

Series tickets for the event, good for three days, are $5 and on sale at the Chamber office, Alexander-Beegles, Miller and Rhoads, the Princess Anne Country Club, the Jewish Community Center, Norfolk Yacht and Country Club, Norfolk Academy, and military bases.

Chairman for the event is George Harris III. Executive Committee, officials are: Sidney Hughes, Al Kouri, Dr. Hulbert J. Kanter, George Heilig, Dr. Maurice Steingold, Capt. Fred B. Koch, Ned Caton, A. G. Alexander, Kenneth Whitehurst, Page Preston, Harold Whitehurst, Richard Guy, Beverly Middleton, Capt. Richard Jester, Maury Rignano, Nere Day, John Foster, W. C. Jones, William J. Vaughn, Dr. Ramon N. Redford, Al Malibes, and E. E. Briskell.

Also, Mayor Frank Dusch, Richard Branch, Mayor Anne Kilgore of Hampton, Bobby Delgado, Bill Bruce, Adm. Ephraim P. Holmes, Capt. William H. Hardcastle, Capt. A. W. Smith and Capt. William A. Schroeder

Mrs. George Harris III is chairman of the ticket sales committee and Mrs. Langley P. Land is chairman of the tennis ball scheduled for August 30 at the Cavalier Beach Club. Tickets are $12 by reservation only.

Ushers for the tournament will be the Virginia Beach girls' tennis champions. Ball boys will be junior members of the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Association.

SCHOOL CROSSWALK--This is only another on the many signs prevalent throughout the City of Virginia Beach pointing to the scheduled reopening of public schools in the resort city next Friday morning.

Berlitz To Discuss Atlantis

"The Mystery of Atlantis" is the subject of a lecture by Charles Berlitz to be presented on Thursday, Sept. 3 at 8 p.m. by the Association for Research and Enlightenment, 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

Berlitz is the author of a recently published book bearing the same title as his lecture. Widely traveled, familiar with 30 languages, he is a grandson of the famous inventor of the Berlitz method of teaching languages and founder of the world wide Berlitz schools.

"ESP Around the World" is the title of a week-end conference following the Berlitz lecture, featuring other public lectures, Edgar Evans Cayce, son of the late Edgar Cayce and author of books on Atlantis, will speak on "A New Picture of Man Through ESP Research" on Friday, Sept. 4 at 8 p.m. On Saturday, Sept. 5 at 2:30 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. James Embleson will talk on "You and Your Aura." At 8 p.m. Hugh Lynn Cayce will talk on "Three Cases of Past Life Memory from India." On Sunday, Sept. 6 at 3 p.m. Dr. Herbert B. Puryear will speak on "The Spirit in the Earth."

All lectures will be followed by a question and answer period. For further information call the Association.

Governor To Present First Surfing Trophy

East Coast Surfing Championship officials said Wednesday that Gov. E. Linwood Holton will attend the contest at Camp Pendleton Sunday and present the Governor's Trophy a new award instituted this year.

Ray W. Twine Jr., Jaycee chairman of the event, said the Governor is expected to arrive at the contest site about midday and remain for the trophy presentation.

"We expect that he'll check the situation out and evaluate what's happened thus far," Twine said. "Hopefully, he'll reach a conclusion about continued use of the camp."

Twine said judges for the event, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, will include Bob White, Harris Pulley, Lee Jones, George Despain, Kenny Smith, and Al Schneobelen, and Danny Johnson.

Twine said he expected about 150 entries. That number is lower than in previous years, he said, because the event is not sanctioned by the Eastern Surfing Association.

There is another sanctioned contest occurring the same time in Coco Beach, Fla. that will draw a greater number of West Coast surfers since they will receive points for surfing titles if they place in that event, he said.

One additional new trophy, the Cecil Land Anti-Pollution Award will be presented to the individual who collects the greatest amount of trash during the contest.

Competition will be at 7 a.m. both days.

Graduates

Wesley Wayne Morefield of Westgrove Street in Virginia Beach has been named a candidate for a bachelor of general studies in business degree at the University of Nebraska in Omaha. He is one of 663 candidates expected to receive their degrees Aug. 31 there.

Kids to Get Day at Fair

Merchants of Virginia Beach have made arrangements for 3,000 youngsters to enjoy an all-expenses-paid day at the Greater Tidewater Fair.

The fair is scheduled Sept. 24-Oct. 3 on the fairgrounds at Indian River Road and Princess Anne Road (off Va. 615) in Pungo at the Pungo Airfield. About 3,000 tickets will be given to underprivileged children.

Regular fair hours will be from 3 p.m. until 2 a.m.

The James E. Strates Show will be the midway attraction. More than 100,000 persons attended the fair last year. It is the first state-chartered fair in Tidewater in more than 40 years.

There will be commercial and industrial exhibits and a complete agricultural display covering all the farm products raised in Tidewater.

Fountainhead--An Agency That Does Its Own Thing

Fountainhead Studios, Inc., which opened its offices recently at 2947 Virginia Beach Blvd., brings to Virginia Beach a new, unique approach to the field of commercial art and advertising in its method of operation and techniques.

Perhaps the most unique phase of the studio's operation lies in the development of its "Cenergy Room", where regular experiments are conducted with the aim of achieving new methods of multi-media presentations.

The experiments are conducted in a 12 x 20-foot room fitted out with a nylon mesh canopy-type ceiling, multi-lighting effects, projectors, tape recorders, and speakers.

Utilizing the human senses of sight, hearing and smell, experiments are conducted to develop methods of presenting the qualities of products in a manner which will catch the fancy of the consumer.

When being given a demonstration of the operation of the "Cenergy Room" you are requested to remove your shoes and are led over carpeting to the center of the "Room" which is suddenly plunged into darkness as you stand beneath the overhead canopy.

You then are instructed to clap your hands twice in a very loud manner. This sound, through the use of a concealed "activator", starts tape recorders rolling as they emit a variety of unusual sound backgrounds which fill the room, activates multi-hued lights which bathe the room in restful colors and create unusual forms as they are reflected from the canopy billowing overhead.

Images are then cast onto a screen from a slide projector, while additional lighting effects are achieved by placing a revolving disc containing various shades of cellophane over individual frames in front of the slide projector.

Bruce indicates the "Cenergy Room" is proving quite useful in the developing of new art forms and photographic effects in their continuing endeavor to bring a fresh, new approach to the field of commercial art and advertising.

VNB Rises To 61st

Virginia National Bank, as of June 30, became the nation's 61st bank in size among the 300 largest banks in the United States.

The announcement was made by W. Wright Harrison, VNB chairman of the board, who received notice of his bank's standing from Dominick J. Misclone, executive vice president, "American Banker," the nation's only daily newspaper published for the banking profession.

"American Banker" publishes this tabulation twice each year. As of June 30, 1969, Virginia National ranked 77th in size. By Dec. 30, 1969, it had risen to 68th place.

Banking Instruction Planned

Classes sponsored by the American Institute of Banking are scheduled at Princess Anne High School with an expected attendance of approximately 2,000 local area bankers.

For the first time, the Tidewater Chapter of the American Institute of Banking is now affiliated with Old Dominion University and this fall will mark the first semester with classes taught at the University. Students enrolled in these classes will be eligible for credits toward a business degree.

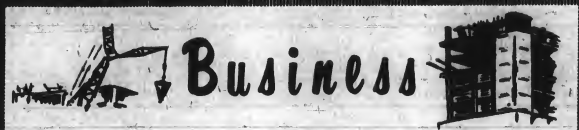

Classes will also be taught in the American Institute of Banking classrooms in the Professional Arts Building in Norfolk, Wilson High School in Portsmouth and a new classification of skills classes will begin with stenographic and business mathematics to be taught at Kee's Business College.

Street Renumbering Nearing Completion

The Planning Department's move to renumber and rename certain streets in the Linkhorn park area is in the final stages of negotiation, a planning official said Tuesday.

William T. Caten, the department's coordinator of streets names and house numbers, said that members of the Linkhorn Park Civic League are to meet with planning department staff members to iron out any problems concerning the changes in names and numbers.

The renumbering and renaming plan, presented to City Council August 3, was postponed by the Post Office until the planning department could revamp their plan to include extension of Dogwood Road to include 32nd Street to Pacific Avenue and extension of Linkhorn Drive to include 38th Street to the Oceanfront.

Caten said the initial changes were made because expansion of the area would complicate the house numbering system, making it harder to deliver the mail and to react quickly to any emergency calls that might originate within the area.

Caten's first plan called for renumbering of streets in Linkhorn Park and renaming of Bay Drive to York Lane and Pine-wood Drive beyond Cavalier Drive and Bay Colony Drive to North Dogwood Road.

The new street signs for the renaming process are already in place, he said, but the department wants to make sure the residents understand that the changes are necessary.

Eventually, the department will place a carrier system through the entire city on what is termed the uniform grids system of planning, as opposed to the present system which is a modification of the rural route system.

All of the changes in the city are being made to facilitate easier delivery and service by the Post Office, he said.

What used to be Pinewood and Halladay will soon be York Lane and Halladay.

GOP Leaders Here Friday

The Virginia Beach Republican City Committee will meet Friday at 8:30 a.m. in the Conference Room, Atlantic Permanent Savings and Loan Association, 944 Independence Boulevard, Virginia Beach.

Ray Garland, Senatorial Candidate, and Caldwell Butler, Republican Minority Leader for the State of Virginia, will be there to address the Committee.

Medal Awarded

The Navy Cross Medal and other coveted awards were presented to six Naval Amphibious Base personnel in an awards ceremony held Tuesday by V. Adm. L.C. Heins, Commander Amphibious Force, Atlantic, at the Amphibious Base.

Gunner's Mate 3.C. Timothy D. Alsbaugh, assigned to Base Ordnance, received the Navy Cross Medal for "extraordinary heroism during operations against an armed enemy in the Republic of Vietnam, on Sept. 25, 1969, while he was a machine gunner aboard River Patrol Boat 677."

His craft was on night waterborne guard post on the north bank of the Cal Lon River, when he was struck by an object, which he recognized as a grenade thrown from the underbrush. He immediately shouted a warning to his fellow crewmembers while he bent down to search for the grenade, which had come to rest on the far side of his gun mount.

Despite the extreme darkness and imminent danger of an explosion, he located the grenade and threw it back into the clearing from which it had come. Even before the grenade exploded near the enemy's position, he was firing his machine gun into the brush and continued his fire until his boat was clear of the area. Due to his quick reaction and courage his patrol craft was able to escape without a casualty.

ALSBAUGH

P.O. Alsbaugh was also presented the Navy Commendation Medal with Combat Device during the ceremony for his participation in 196 combat patrols and engaging the enemy on five separate occasions, while serving in Vietnam from May 1969 until May 1970.

Hospital Corpsman 3.C. Russell L. Wright, was presented the Bronze Star Medal with Combat Device for his "courage and composure under fire as he boldly maneuvered through hostile fire to render emergency first aid treatment to his wounded comrades, while serving with the Third Marine Division."

Navy Commendation Medals went to Hospital Corpsman 3.C. Thomas E. Porter and Quarter Master 3.C. Donald M. Whitson

Trees make way for new 'swinger' apartments.

City To Get Area's First 'Swinger' Apts.

A complex of "swinger" apartments, modeled after those so highly publicized in California, is under construction at Virginia Beach.

It's a "Singles Only" arrangement, according to Rocco J. Lassiter of L&O Construction Co., builders of the complex.

The project is located at 25th Street and Barberton, near Birdneck Village Apartments complex. Lassiter said he expects to have the buildings ready for tenants before the end of the year.

It will be the area's first apartment project specifically for single people. "It will also be a pilot program for us," Lassiter said.

The "swinger" apartments on the West Coast have been highly successful, according to national magazine articles. They are restricted to singles, regardless of age, and are usually built around a courtyard where parties and get-acquainted events are held.

Lassiter said the Virginia Beach apartments rules would adhere strictly to the single status of its residents but that no entertainment programs would be planned. The project will, however, provide a pool and clubhouse.

Just how the rules will be enforced remains to be seen, Lassiter said.

"We don't like to use the word 'screen' but tenants will only be accepted by application," he explained.

There will be 52 apartments in all; two-thirds will have one bedroom, the remainder will have two bedrooms.

They will be of Spanish design, air conditioned, completely furnished (including a bar), and rent for about $180 per month for a one-bedroom. The two-story buildings will front on 25th Street and the rear of each apartment will open onto a balcony, or overlooking a courtyard.

Lassiter and his partner, William M. O'Brien, also built the now defunct Frontier City entertainment park. Their new venture is located on two acres of the original Frontier City site.

And the marital status of both builders? "Happily married and firm family men," Lassiter said.

Consultation Is Planned

The Transportation Department of the National Board of YMCAs will hold its 1970 consultation here at the Mariner Motor Inn, September 10-13.

Delegates to the Consultation will be welcomed by Virginia Beach Mayor, Frank Dusch at the opening banquet, Thursday, September 10, at 8 p.m.

Also speaking at the opening banquet will be the Reverend George B. Davis, D.D., I.L.B., minister of the National City Christian Church, Washington, D.C. He will speak on the Consultation theme, "Our American Heritage."

Prime F. Osborn, III, President, Seaboard Coast Line, will speak at the Friday Luncheon Meeting on the subject, "The Need for Spiritual Values in Industry."

Frank Warner, radio and television personality, featured player in RKO movie, "Run of the Arrow," author of "Famous American Folk Songs," retired General Director of the Nassau & Suffolk County YMCAs, and a member of the National Transportation Department Staff for 20 years, will entertain at the Saturday night Fellowship Buffet Dinner at 6:30 p.m.

The consultation is open to YMCA directors, laymen, families and their friends.

Williamson Accepted By Engineers

B. Frank Williamson, assistant to the director of Virginia Beach's Department of General Services, has been accepted into the Greater Tidewater Chapter, American Society of Safety Engineers.

A minimum of eight years experience and completion of certain tests are prerequisites for ASSE members.

Williamson was administrative assistant in the Bureau of Safety before moving into his present position Aug. 3. Among his new duties will be the establishment of formal safety programs -- individual, departmental and vehicular -- for all employees in the municipal administration.

Curb Those Signs

The signboard situation in Virginia Beach is of great concern to a large group of interested citizens and justifiably so. The growth of unsightly boards could well develop into full fledged monstrous proportions if city council doesn't curb its leniency in approving these permits.

homes, schools, shipping centers, etc. Signboards may fit into this picture within limitations, but certainly not to the extent they seem headed.

Now is the time for city council to set some definite restrictions on the erection of these roadside signs. A certain amount of advertising is needed, admittedly, but not at the risk of destroying this resort city's natural assets.

Laxity in these restrictions during the past few years have made Shore Drive and Virginia Beach Boulevard into horrendous splashes of merchandising. The boulevard is the worst offender and is perhaps the most unsightly, the most unattractive stretch of main thoroughfare to be found in Virginia. It definitely is not something of which the city can be proud.

Mistakes have already been made and the motorist, visitor and resident alike, is stuck with them. But there is no excuse should other Virginia Beach Boulevards be allowed to develop. Now is the time to put a stop to it.

Council's Empty Seat

Frank D. Tarrall Jr. would have been sworn in Friday as a Virginia Beach councilman. He would have taken office next Tuesday. But the city will not have the benefit of this man's devotion to his community. Tuesday he was found dead on a golf course near Nags Head, N.C.

This is a great loss to the city for Mr. Tarrall was a man who worked for, and believed in, the future of Virginia Beach. He had for many years given of his many talents and abilities to further the progress of this resort city.

Mr. Tarrall was a stalwart on the old City Council, a stabilizing force in many storms of controversy as the small resort town grew into a nationally popular seashore resort. For eight years, two terms, he sat on that council, resigning only when he feared a conflict of interest with his business shortly before the merger in 1962. It was the many contributions he made not only through his office as councilman but through his personal interest in the city and in those with whom he came in contact that merited for him the First Citizen of Virginia Beach award in 1959.

All who had known and worked with Mr. Tarrall through the years, welcomed him back to public office after his successful bid for the Virginia Beach Borough councilmanic seat in the June 9 election. There will be a void on that council now. Mr. Tarrall will be greatly missed.

The most surprising thing about the Cavalier Playhouse presentation of Marvin Sandberg's "Take My Wife" is that it neither bores nor drags. It deals with a badly worn plot, a nagging, overly fastidious wife and her hard-working harried husband—but what comes through in this particular play is a laugh at middle age and long time marriages.

This will probably limit the play's appeal to younger people, even young marrieds. It takes those with a little age and a number of years of marriage behind them to truly appreciate such lines as "how can you love a woman who's destroying you?" or "Why don't you even talk to me, Harry?" or even to comparing their wedding day to the sinking of the Titanic.

"Take My Wife" is marriage in pretty raw form, but beneath the conflicts there is humor because, despite the battles, there is love.

Author Sandberg told this reviewer before the play opened that "Wife" has a message. He didn't say what the message is but we surmise it is that human beings adjust to the idiosyncrasies of their mates, the boredom of middle age, the pressures of their work because, basically, they love each other.

They form a life pattern that leaves a lot to be desired but taken out of this environment they flounder and struggle for survival. Life, after all, is a struggle but when braced with love it can survive despite the pitfalls of advancing years.

That, as we see it, is what this play is about.

Felice Gilbert is delightful as the Jewish housewife, Sandra Roth who relieves her loneliness by inferring in the lives of other tenants in the building. She nags, but not obnoxiously, as the character demands and lends considerable warmth to her interpretation of the role.

Harry Roth, her husband, is a good-hearted but overworked man who wants only to enjoy their newly decorated apartment, to sit down with the paper and a good cigar and relax. Charles Richman is most convincing in this role as he stomps and bellows his frustrations...he takes his shoes off at the door, finds his cigar in the freezer and eats a bread and butter sandwich for dinner.

His son is an obstetrician (a "quack"), his father calls him) who Mama, naturally, wants to marry off to some nice rich girl. William Painter is not quite as strong in this role as he might be, his voice is at times almost inaudible, but he picks up momentum as the play progresses, and ends on a pleasant note.

Betty Jane Smartz is most attractive and vivacious as the widowed mother of the girl, Shirley. Mama finally introduces to her son. Her cha-cha with Harry is well done. This dance incidentally is actually instrumental in causing the rift between Harry and Sandra—the rift that brings them both to their senses.

Elaine Cohen and Coral Shattuck, are lovely young actresses who portray the rather unchallenging roles of Lena, another noney tenant in the apartment house, and Shirley, the girl the obstetrician finds so charming.

All in all, it is an enjoyable play. Jon Dawson does his usual good job in directing it and the sets and costumes are perfect.

It's difficult to take some of the more miserable aspects of married life and weave them into a humorous play. But that's what Marvin Sandberg has done with "Take My Wife". He has mirrored our me and the people next door and made us see ourselves and the lives we lead. If you are over 30, long time married and feeling the doldrums, you'll enjoy "Take My Wife".

To A Clever Reader

To the Readers:

The cartoon reprinted on this page was sent to us by one of our ingenious, certainly imaginative, readers who preferred to remain anonymous. Because of its cleverness and because of its message we decided to share it with all of you.

We add just one other note to the artist's message: the man who helps his neighbor clean-up on Sunday and litter through the week is probably also the man who sits in church on Sunday and steals from his fellow man Monday through Saturday.

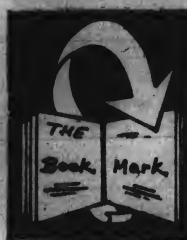

What a shame the peace of Sundays, like the spirit of Christmas, can't remain with us all year long!

To the interested reader who sent in the cartoon, utilizing the Sun's editorial cartoon of August 20, we say thank you. From the Editor

To the Editor, Congratulations! Your editorial in the Virginia Beach Sun of this date entitled "Is This Trip Necessary?" was excellent. It is the most cogent commentary on the "nepotistic Tweedism" of our council. Pat Hudson

THE SECRET WOMAN, by Victoria Holt. New York, Doubleday & Company, 1970, $5.95.

Here is a story of proper, but exciting Victorian England in Victoria Holt's best gothic style. THE SECRET WOMAN relives the life of Anna Brett, a serious-minded young woman who lived with her spinster aunt in an old mansion which was filled with elegant pieces of rare old furniture. In those days, it was not ladylike to be in business, but Aunt Charlotte was just that, thriving on the buying and selling of antiques. In time, Anna became knowledgeable and interested in antiques, and won the grudging admiration of her teacher-aunt.

The author portrays her characters in such a way that you feel a very close relationship with them. This is especially true of the young nurse who appears one day to care for the ailing aunt. Nurse Chantel is a warm and happy soul with an intangible charm that contrasts greatly with Anna's solemn nature. The two young ladies are soon dear friends, exchanging diary-like journals while they become involved with a wealthy family-castle and all. Intrigue, suspense, attempted murder and love follow them on a voyage to the South Seas.

THE SECRET WOMAN is a very light, fast-moving story which will be enjoyed by ladies of all ages.

By W. A. Leavelle, Ph.D.

Industry, Schools Criticized.

In many of my columns I have been highly critical of the area in which I live. This criticism has covered a broad area with special mention of the educational system, which I feel is not only inferior but a national disgrace, and pollution, both human and environmental, which in my opinion has passed the point of no return.

Many readers have noted that I did not mention the area by name and have asked me to identify it. With the hope of preventing others from making the same mistake and the desire to alert people all over the country of what can happen if they sit back and allow it, I will be more specific.

I live in a small coastal town in Maine. It is a chicken town, in more ways than one as it is the chicken capital of the state. Two large plants kill thousands of chickens a day and manage to pump more than a few feathers and other parts into the bay. The bay is often referred to as Chicken Gulch Bay. Of course the chicken picking plants are not alone in their pollution. They are strongly supported by the shrimp stuffing factory and the potato peeling plant. The water that flows out of this area should be considered for possible commercial use as a shower.

The secondary school system is shocking. One school district was recently investigated for using the free hot lunch program and the school buses as a means of discipline. If the children who rode the buses to school did not please the school administrators, they were made to walk to and from school, often many miles. If those who were eligible for free hot lunches did not please the administrators they were forced to go without lunch.

This was investigated and the charge was found to be true and it was "Recommended" that this practice be discontinued. Nothing more!

The high school principals in the state have an association. This is not unusual except that it has only about 165 members who pay $10 each a year in dues BUT they have a $17,500 a year paid executive secretary and expense accounts for their members you wouldn't believe. How do they do all this on so little dues? Well, it seems the high school principals are big time sports promoters. They have a monopoly on all high school sports. If they don't run it, it doesn't happen in the high schools. This group has over $60,000 in CASH in the bank and they take in hundreds of thousands of dollars.

This group has been investigated by the state legislature, the state board of education and many others and despite recommendations to the contrary they are still sports promoters.

The area where we live has such a poor school system that rather than send our son to it we have sent him out of state. One school superintendent, we understand, has been rumored to refer to himself as GOD and his staff as his disciples. I don't think he is joking. In many areas of this state the school system is the largest business. It employs more people, spends more money, etc. than any other operation. Many of the people have become afraid of it. The school administrators have become the "Mill Bosses" of the towns.

We have had people call us and tell us they didn't like something going on in the schools BUT since they had children in school they couldn't say anything. Many taxpayers are afraid of the school system they support. It is something like the old remarks about the Hitler Germany and having relatives under the control of the Nazi government.

The school system has become unresponsive to the citizens and taxpayers. It is completely dominated by the administrators and the people accept this as a way of life.

Not long ago a newspaper published the salaries of the teachers and administrators. It was their thought that since the taxpayers paid the bill they were entitled to know where their money was going. The teachers and administrators objected so strenuously I don't think the paper will do it again.

I mention the sad situation in this area not to point the finger but as a warning to my readers. It was not always this way in this area. It can happen anywhere. It can happen where you live if you sit back and allow your schools and local industry to become unresponsive to you. Take a look at your own area and concern yourself with what is going on before it is too late. This area has sold its birthright to its school administrators and its few industries. The people have become second class citizens. Don't let this happen to your area. Don't let it be true that "as Maine goes, so goes the nation."

Let's Forget That Community College!

The possibility of a community college for Virginia Beach would seem to be of importance to the citizens of this wide-spread city. It would offer education-at-your-doorstep for the residents; economic benefits for the merchants; and various other advantages for the city.

The Sun last week asked the question "Should City Council take steps now to re-introduce a community college for Virginia Beach before the General Assembly, should an extra session be held in January?" This seemed a reasonable question. First of all, Virginia Beach came very close to having the college earlier. It had received official approval, only to be cut from the educational budget when it reached the 1970 General Assembly.

Governor Holton has indicated a special session of the legislators may be called in January because of such pressing matters as busing, etc.

Isn't it likely that the city's college will come before this special session, if it is held, and even goes are beginning to oppose the number.

This feature in the Virginia Beach Sun is designed to give the public a voice—if they prefer not to write a full letter—in matters of importance to them.

The editors cannot always pick the right question, as evidenced last week. But we'll keep trying.

Near-Tragedy Ends Tearfully, Rescuers Find Lost Family

By: LES LEHIGH

An Army wife and her three young children were rescued from Seashore State Park Friday afternoon moments after she apparently had abandoned all hope of ever being rescued. The family had spent two days and nights in dense woods and marshlands in an ordeal which began as a simple, family picnic outing.

A search party found Mrs. Gertrude Stem, 30, and her three children Christina, 11, Yasman, 10, and Mark, 6, on a small island in a swamp about two-and-a-half miles from the museum parking lot of the Nature Trail section of the sprawling park.

The family of Army Maj. David Stem, stationed in Washington, D.C., was staying at the Fort Story guest house during a brief visit to Virginia Beach, and reportedly got lost while on a picnic outing to the nature region of State Park.

Except for insect bites, scratches, bruises, exhaustion and hunger, they were reported in good condition.

The four were located about two hours after a search was launched, involving nearly 150 soldiers from Fort Story, Park Rangers, Virginia Beach police officers, and men of the Davis Corner, Ocean Park, Kempsville, Chesapeake Beach, Oceana, London Bridge, Thalia, and Beach Borough Volunteer Fire Departments and Rescue Squads.

2nd Lt. Thomas W. Alphin, Ft. Story guest house billeting officer, was apparently the last person to talk to the family before they vanished.

Mrs. Terry Manfredi, post public information officer, quoted Alphin as saying Mrs. Stem talked with him about 11 a.m. Wednesday about taking her children on a picnic and asked for directions to State Park.

The first indication of anything unusual occurred on Thursday evening when Lt. Alphin noticed Mrs. Stem and her children had not checked out of the guest house as she had planned. Lt. Alphin said he thought the family had decided to extend their visit and made no mention of it to guest house officials.

However, Lt. Alphin became concerned Friday morning when he still had not heard from her. He checked the guest house and was unable to locate anyone who had seen Mrs. Stem or her children since Wednesday morning. He telephoned her husband at his Washington office and learned the family had not returned home as he thought they might have done.

Alphin called State Park Rangers and found that Mrs. Stem's Volkswagen was still parked at the museum where it apparently had been since Wednesday morning. The auto still contained a picnic basket, a gallon thermos jug, a bag of towels and what appeared to be beachwear.

The information was relayed to the Ft. Story Provost Marshal's office. Lt. W. E. Hibbits, 2nd Police Precinct C.O., Capt. W. J. Moore, Jr., who began the missing of search and rescue units on the State Park parking lot. As search teams were organized they moved into the sprawling Park along trails assigned them.

Mrs. Stem and her children were found about two hours later by a search team comprised of members of the Davis Corner, Kempsville, and Oceana Volunteer Fire Departments and Rescue Squads. Those from Davis Corner included Asst. Chief Dickie Taylor, Donald Tucker, Mike Mayo, and members of the Davis Corner Explorer Scout Post Randall Lackey, Willie George, Rex Mitchell and Arthur Mitchell. Those from Kempsville included Bruce Brinkley and Fred Coffey, with Mike Falkner from Oceana completing the team. Taylor acted as coordinator of the search team's activities.

Taylor said the group followed Lagoon Trail, searching adjoining woods for any sign of the missing family, until they came to a dense marshland and swamp at the end of the trail about two miles into the woods.

At this point, Taylor said, the search party sat down to rest and began calling out. Taylor said they heard what sounded like a girl's voice calling back to them, and began moving in the direction of the sound.

Fifteen or 20 minutes later, trudging through waist-deep water and mud, they found Mrs.

Stem and her children sitting on a small island. The Stem family broke into tears of relief when they saw their rescuers. Taylor quoted Mrs. Stem with saying that shortly before the team arrived she had finally decided no one would ever find her and the children.

After being assured by Mrs. Stem that she and the children were not injured, the group began making their way out of the swamp, the rescuers carrying the family most of the way. Taylor said that the group became momentarily lost in the swamp and marshland during their trek out of the park. He attempted to call the fire dispatchers' headquarters, by means of a small "walkie-talkie" radio, requesting units at the Park museum parking lot to sound sirens as a "directional fix" but the radio failed to work.

The group was able to find their way back to the museum parking lot where Mrs. Stem and the children were reunited with Maj. Stem, who had been flown to the scene from Washington by Army helicopter. Rescue Squad ambulances rushed the family to the Ft. Story dispensary where they were examined and found, with the exception of being tired, hungry and thirsty, and marked by scratches and insect bites, to be in good condition.

Taylor said that during their return trip out of the Park Mrs. Stem related the events of the two-day ordeal which she and the children had just undergone. She said they had gone to State Park for a picnic outing and decided to take their dogs-hund for a walk before having lunch. The dog wandered off the trail and she and the children went after him. When they located the dog she realized they did not know their way back to the trail. As they roamed through the woods in hopes of relocating the trail she suddenly realized they were lost with no idea as to their location.

As darkness fell Wednesday night, according to her story, she heard the sounds of passing cars and attempted to follow the sounds. Suddenly they found themselves in water and realized they had been moving in circles. At this point, they came upon the small island where they were found. She said they had already seen one snake and were frightened and decided to take refuge on the island.

She said that she and the children were afraid of drinking the water around them since she did not know what it might contain, or of eating anything they had found because she was uncertain as to what might be poisonous.

The only thing the Stem's had with them when they entered the Park were the light weight summer clothing they were wearing. She said she had covered the children with bark during their first night in attempt to shield them from the insects.

After their medical check and reunion with Maj. Stem the family rested Friday night at Ft. Story, and returned to their home near Washington on Saturday.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 11 a.m. at the Virginia Beach First Baptist Church, the Rev. H. Wadell Waters officiating. Burial will be at the Woodlawn Cemetery in Norfolk.

On the Trojan area, hunters must furnish their own boat and decoys and pay the $3 per head fee for the use of the blind. At Pocahontas, guides and decoys are furnished for a flat fee of $20 in addition to the $3 per hunter, blind fee.

The Barbour's Hill area, located on the east side of Back Bay at the north end of the new False Cape State Park, can be reached only by 4-wheel drive vehicle from Sandbridge. Decoys are furnished, but hunters must wade to place decoys and retrieve birds. Hunters must pay the $3 per person blind fee and furnish their own transportation to the blind.

To be eligible for the drawing on October 19, at which time applicants will be assigned their hunt dates, hunters must obtain an official application form from the Game Commission's Richmond Office or from Trojan-Pocahontas headquarters at Back Bay and submit it along with the proper blind fee. Most blinds will accommodate a party of three persons except those at Barbour's Hill which only hold two. Persons hunting on Pocahontas will be required to pay the $20 guide fee upon arrival for the hunt.

Most of the dates are expected to be filled following the drawing, but any openings will be available on a first-come, first-served basis. Persons may check on openings or cancellations after October 19 by calling 428-6320 in Virginia Beach.

St. Aug. Alumni Meet Here

St. Augustine's College ever expanding network of alumni chapters, will again convene on Virginia Beach for their annual 'confab by the sea' according to a joint announcement this week by Mrs. Ellen Perry, president of St. Aug's Tidewater Chapter (Norfolk, Hampton, Newport News and Virginia Beach) and Peter G. Holden, Sr., president of St. Augustine's National (Reform) Alumni Party.

The third annual convention will be staged in the Gay Vacationer Motor Inn on Ocean Front at 34th Street, on Sept. 11-13.

The convention, which will take the form generally, of a series of workshops, will host several college department heads who will outline plans and areas where alumni chapters can best work together with college officials to achieve common goals.

Dr. Prezell R. Robinson, himself a member of the alumni association and president of St. Augustine's will be the main speaker for the alumni banquet which will take place on Saturday evening beginning at 6 p.m. The banquet will be held at the Americana Hotel.

Dr. Robinson, among other things, will give a pre-view of 'things to come' during the academic year '69-'70, with special emphasis on meeting the aforementioned fund-raising campaign target dates.

On the Trojan area, hunters must furnish their own boat and decoys and pay the $3 per head fee for the use of the blind. At Pocahontas, guides and decoys are furnished for a flat fee of $20 in addition to the $3 per hunter, blind fee.

The Barbour's Hill area, located on the east side of Back Bay at the north end of the new False Cape State Park, can be reached only by 4-wheel drive vehicle from Sandbridge. Decoys are furnished, but hunters must wade to place decoys and retrieve birds. Hunters must pay the $3 per person blind fee and furnish their own transportation to the blind.

To be eligible for the drawing on October 19, at which time applicants will be assigned their hunt dates, hunters must obtain an official application form from the Game Commission's Richmond Office or from Trojan-Pocahontas headquarters at Back Bay and submit it along with the proper blind fee. Most blinds will accommodate a party of three persons except those at Barbour's Hill which only hold two. Persons hunting on Pocahontas will be required to pay the $20 guide fee upon arrival for the hunt.

Most of the dates are expected to be filled following the drawing, but any openings will be available on a first-come, first-served basis. Persons may check on openings or cancellations after October 19 by calling 428-6320 in Virginia Beach.

Four More Arrested

Four more arrests for violations of drug abuse laws were made by Virginia Beach police during an investigation in the 400 block of 24 1/2 Street in the early hours of Monday morning.

Police officials said they charged Edward T. Flynn, 22, of 27th Street; Henry B. Capps, 19, of Michael Court; and two juvenile girls aged 16 and 17 with possession of marijuana. Investigators said the arrests followed the reported discovery of two burnt marijuana cigarettes inside a Volkswagen van, and a quantity of marijuana and a small pipe employed in the use of drugs on the ground near the van.

Officials said that Flynn and Capps were also charged with contributing to the delinquency

7 Arrested For Drugs

Seven persons were charged with violations of drug abuse laws in three separate investigations by Virginia Beach police last weekend.

Authorities said Griffin B. Deal, Jr., 22, of Curlew Drive, was charged with possession of marijuana Friday night when a quantity of the substance was reportedly found in his auto on 17th Street.

Four persons were arrested during an investigation early Saturday night at a 25th Street apartment. Officials said they charged Donald C. Instone, 23, and Monte J. Carman, 26, both of whom reportedly reside in Toledo, Ohio, with possession of marijuana. Authorities said the same investigation resulted in the charging of Laurie A. Layman, 20, of McLean and Robin B. Woods, 23, of Alexandria with possession of LSD and marijuana.

Another Saturday investigation in the 1100 block of Atlantic Avenue led to the arrest of two New York state residents. Officials said they charged Francis J. Ryan, 19, of Scarsdale, and James P. Ryan, 19, of Pelham with possession of marijuana.

Student Arrested

Police say they have charged 20-year-old Donald R. Bell, Jr., with two recent burglaries in Virginia Beach.

According to officials Bell is charged with the reported theft of some $900 in cash on July 27 from the Susan Constance Drive home of Patrick L. Standing and the theft of a quantity of Swedish rugs valued at $2,000 on Aug. 16 from Spencer's Interior Imports on Laskin Road.

Officials said the rugs were recovered at the time of Bell's arrest last Saturday in Lexington where he is attending Washington and Lee University.

Crash Fatal to Driver

Virginia Beach recorded its 20th traffic fatality of the year in a two-car accident Sunday night on London Bridge Road.

Police said John M. Hardin, 21, of Paul Jones Circle, was fatally injured when his car collided with another vehicle near the Oceana Naval Air Station rear gate. Hardin was alone in his car at the time.

The three occupants of the second auto were also injured. They were identified as Mrs. Joyce Trigg, 30, and Charlotte Trigg, 7, both of East Ocean View Avenue, Norfolk; and Jacqueline Ray, 34, of Bow Creek Blvd.

Police Hunt Early Thief

Police are searching for a suspect who is believed to be responsible for a robbery and attempted robbery of two Virginia Beach motel clerks early last Tuesday.

Officials quote Mrs. Eldora Maddox, 73, with saying a man entered the office of the Rudee Motel on General Booth Blvd. about 1 a.m. and requested a room.

She indicated that when she

'Pot' Found in Car

Police officials say they made three arrests on charges of possession of marijuana with intent to sell, which constitutes a felony, during an investigation early Wednesday morning.

The suspects were identified by authorities as Patrick A. Powers, 21, of 37th Street, and Roger S. Memoryn, 18, of Dogwood Drive; and Richard L. Glikerson, 20, of Salisbury, Md.

Investigators said the arrests followed discovery of approximately 3/4 of a pound of marijuana in a car occupied by the suspects which was stopped during an investigation in the 200 block of 25th Street.

Primary

Children

Vulnerable

"Motorists, remember that the safety of thousands of youngsters depends on you as this new school year begins," said Frank W. Cox, director as he highlighted the School's Open public information campaign of The Tidewater Automobile Association.

Cox said that about 11,000 children each year are involved in traffic accidents as they travel to and from school. "Primary grade children are especially vulnerable," added Cox, "because they may be unfamiliar with safe pedestrian practices. Consequently, children 5-8 are involved in two out of every three school-age pedestrian accidents."

In reminding motorists that a child and a 3,000 pound car do not make an even match, Cox turned for a key the man fired pistol at her. She received a powder burn of her left temple and ran from the building. The assailant fired a second shot at her as he ran out of the building then fled in a car.

Police say they believe the weapon used in the hold-up attempt was a blank pistol, since they found no traces of a spent cartridge in the motel office.

The same man is believed to also be responsible for the robbery of the Aloha Motel at 15th Street and Pacific Avenue a few minutes earlier. Investigators quoted motel clerk Frank G. Gooding with saying a man entered the motel office and told him "This is a stickup. Open the cash register."

Gooding indicated the man then produced a small pistol, scooped $94.90 in cash from the register and cash drawer, told Gooding to kneel on the floor as he fled on foot.

Police indicate they felt the same man may have been responsible for robberies at three other motels in Portsmouth and Chesapeake between Saturday and Tuesday mornings.

POSTAL CLEAN UP--M. R. Kenyon does a final touch-up in the repainting of mail bag "dollies" at the mail handling annex on Parker Lane in London Bridge. Repainting of "dollies" was only a small part of work conducted at Virginia Beach postal facilities in a nationwide Clean-Up Campaign conducted by the U.S. Post Office Department last week.

Emergency Protection Discussed

Primary importance in the distribution of such information would be given to the protection of persons boating on open waters of the Atlantic Ocean, Chesapeake Bay, and the numerous lakes and rivers of the resort city; those engaged in swimming, and/or other water sports such as water-skiing, surfing, and fishing as well as those persons camping at various sites in the area.

Smith requested the Council to issue a reminder of one service which has already been set up by the Weather Bureau to offer assistance to boaters in gathering weather information.

Smith pointed out that a continuous broadcast of marine weather information on the VHF radio frequency of 162.55 KC's has been established. The information, according to Smith, is broadcast directly from the Weather Bureau office, and is constantly updated to include changes which may develop in weather conditions.

Members of the Council also discussed steps which are being taken to gain the representation of persons from various City government offices and organizations which might be beneficial in coordinating future safety programs within Virginia Beach.

Members of the Virginia Beach Safety Council turned their attention to additional steps which could be taken to offer better protection to residents and visitors to the city. In the event of severe weather or waterfront tidal conditions during the organization's meeting last Thursday.

Hurtis Smith, Meteorologist in charge, U. S. Weather Bureau Office, located at the Regional Airport in Norfolk, attended the meeting as a special guest.

Smith discussed with council members how further utilization could be made of existing weather gathering equipment which is already located here and methods which could be used to increase the dissemination of weather information when severe weather conditions pose a possible threat.

Of main concern in discussions was the devising means of distributing weather information to personnel within the city who would be involved in the protection of life and property during severe weather conditions.

Summer

Honoree

John Frank Kobus of Route 1 in Virginia Beach has been named to the summer season honor rolls at Southwestern State College in Weatherford, Okla.

Kobus, who was among the 506 students named to the Dean's List, has to maintain a 3.0 (B) average or higher and no grade below a C in at least eight semester hours of class work.

District Gov. Visits Local Rotarians

District Governor Cloyd S. Steinmetz of District 760, Rotary International made his annual visit to the recently held meeting of the Princess Anne rotary Club held at the Commodore Country Club.

Club President Gerard Propster and Secretary Archie John met with Steinmetz for an early morning meeting with committee chairmen. After the project reports were given, the regularly scheduled meeting was held at 12:30 p.m.

Steinmetz's home is in Richmond where he is a consultant to Reynolds Aluminum Sales Company, a subsidiary of Reynolds Metal Company. During his term of office as District Governor, he plans to visit all of the 56 clubs in district 760. Steinmetz's term expires in June, 1971.

Scholarship

House Near

Completion

The 1970 Tidewater Association of Homebuilders scholarship House is nearing completion, according to R. B. Johnson. The house will be formally dedicated with special ceremonies in September at Lake Edward West.

Each year the TAHB member builder sells the scholarship house and the proceeds from the sale go to a scholarship fund that is used to help deserving Tidewater high school graduates in advancing their education.

Since its beginning, the sale of Scholarship House has contributed more than $35,000 to the educational fund.

The Lake Edward Corporation, builder of this year's two story, three bedroom colonial townhouse in the Lake Edward section, has announced that many sub contractors and suppliers have contributed to make this year's Scholarship House concept a success.

And, in a way, they were right. Our revolutionary services have been flagging in hundreds of new customers. So many, in fact, that we're opening a new office Monday -- our Mid-City office in Lynnhaven.

Like our other two offices, Mid-City is open Saturdays and offers REALLY free personal checking accounts....with no minimum balance, no service charges, and no charge for writing checks. Unlike our other two offices, Mid-City is located on Virginia Beach Boulevard between R.K. Chevrolet and Beach Ford.

Is our revolution flagging? We think it's spreading. And to celebrate, we're giving away a big horizontal freezer and a sit-down rider mower. Come register to win and see our new office, soon. Like Monday, for instance.

A nostalgic night--the Bay Harbour's last 'shrimp night'

It was a nostalgic evening. A swinging party, but nevertheless nostalgic. The Bay Harbour Club ended its social life as a private club as excitingly as it opened nearly eight years ago.

The shrimp and beer feasts have become traditional with the Bay Harbour and it was on this note that the club went out in style Friday night. The menu was just the way the members like it...shrimp cooked in beer, fried succini squash, scalloped potatoes and varied trimmings, and all they could eat.

The club's shrimp and beer events, held at least once a month, sometimes twice monthly, always draw a heavy turnout of the longtime members.

Friday night's feast drew record numbers, perhaps 200 or more, a crowd nearly equal to the New Year's Eve parties. It was obvious they were there to take the Bay Harbour out in good fashion.

The club, since its opening has maintained a rather stable membership. Saturday night dances and special parties usually drew the familiar faces, the ones you expected to see there. The membership has been pretty well divided because of the diversification of the club...the boating crowd, the tennis crowd and the just-plain-party crowd. Oh, yes, and the gin-rummy crowd. A close-knit group they have become during the years.

Now the club has been sold, along with the entire White Heron Motel complex, and will soon be made into a public supper club. Come Sept. 1 it will come to a close as a private facility.

The Bay Harbour, although not on the oceanfront, is one of the most desirable clubs in the area. It is the only social facility catering to the boat-lovers, plus offering an Olympic-size swimming pool and large tennis courts. Its view of Linkhorn Bay (more than three-quarters of the circular building is glass) is hard to beat.

It has, during the past eight years, been one swinging place, whether it be a Saturday night Las Vegas party or a Sunday afternoon oyster roast.

This all won't come to an end under the new set-up, of course. Big plans are in the making and the Bay Harbour should become one of the resort's most popular nightspots. But the usual crowd won't be there. At least not all at one time. That's why Friday night was special...it was "play happy birthday one more time for 'old' Ben Coloma," and "we sure are going to miss seeing Lucille and Bill and Jill and Joe and all the gang," and "I remember what a 'splash' this club made when it opened"...it was one of those kind of nights.

The Lamplighters didn't play "Auld Lang Syne". But only because no one thought of it in time.

"It would have made us all weepy, anyway," said one departing guest. And he was right.

In a gala mood were Mrs. Delma Creekmur, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Spencer and Harry Johnson.

He sticks out like a sore toe

There's nothing wigglier than a six-year-old boy when you're trying to keep him still. Just try to sit one down for a day to soak his foot in Epsom salts.

This was the prescription for an infected ingrown toe nail. His nine-year-old sister insisted he wasn't "old enough" to have an ingrown toe nail.

Bill can't even sit still long enough to eat a meal. Naturally, any water hotter than lukewarm is "too hot." He'd let it sit 15 minutes before he'd even sit on his toe in.

Television wasn't of much help after Captain Kangaroo was over in the morning until Dark Shadows came on in the afternoon. He went through two coloring books in no time flat, and I refused to buy any more--especially after the dog ate all the crayons.

He caught on rapidly to the art of getting his sisters to wait on him. They got disgusted, however, and went out to play. Thank goodness one of the little boys in the neighborhood did come in for a while.

But when I got home from work I found him lying flat on his back on the den floor with his foot stuck in the 12 quart soup pot. The only trouble was that it was the wrong foot. He explained the "he was tired" of soaking just the one so he put the other one in.

The doctor had also prescribed some medicine to take by mouth. The seven-year-old just would not believe that anything taken by mouth at one end could possibly help his toe at the other end. Naturally, she being the family hypochondriac, quickly developed a sore throat, which we ignored. So, since the nine-year-old had a cold, the seven-year-old developed a cough. One dose of her sister's sour cough medicine "cured" her cough permanently.

Anyhow, something must have worked on the toe because all the inflammation was gone the next day. Now all I have to do is to keep it that way until he has to put shoes on when school starts. The doctor suggested getting him shoes a half size too large so he'd have plenty of room. The trouble is that Bill can't even keep them on when they fit. His last pair wound up in the lake. I wonder if the school would let him wear sandals in December?

Then it actually helps shrink swelling of these tissues caused by inflammation. The answer is Preparation H®. No prescription is needed for Preparation H. Ointment or suppositories.

Mothers vs. Vepco set Fri.

By CAROLYN McALLEN

As most residents are aware, we are faced with another rise in Vepco rates. And as many may have also noticed, their bills in recent months have been climbing without a rate increase.

Well, at least one local woman is trying to do something about it. She is Mrs. Robert L. Hickman, a mother of four, who lives on Hattaras Road and is planning a protest mothers' march in front of the Norfolk Vepco office on Cromwell Road from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday, Aug. 28.

It is her conviction that "usually women can get themselves organized." And this is certainly true in her case since this is her second round with Vepco. The first, several years ago, wound up with an appearance to testify before the Rules Committee of the House of Delegates—shortly before Vepco announced a rate reduction. Her testimony was the result of another protest march with about 20 other women about the higher rates charged Vepco consumers in Virginia as compared with North Carolina Vepco rates.

Mrs. Hickman says she received a number of calls over the weekend from supporters including one 70-year-old woman who not only wanted to join the march but wanted to come visit Mrs. Hickman besides. "A lot say they don't have time to march," said Mrs. Hickman of her calls. She is optimistic about the outcome of her efforts, however.

What ignited the most recent protest is the fear of what her utility bills might be this winter with the 10% Vepco increase which was approved by the State Corporation Commission, effective last month.

She says that her bills for this summer have been: June 3, $29.19; July 2, $36.82, and July 31, $41.19. "And we were gone most of June. That's what made me mad. What's it going to be next month?"

The Hickmans have a three bedroom ranch house with a den they added on. They have just one window air conditioning unit. "It's getting to the place where we can't afford to feed the kids because it costs so much to keep the stove operating. We aren't buying luxuries," said Mrs. Hickman. "We can hardly afford the necessities."

She said that last February the tenants moved out of the rental house she and her husband own next door to them. They had the utilities reconnected, though, to keep the pipes from freezing. "The thermostat was set on 55-60 degrees the whole time," Mrs. Hickman said. The bill for part of February until the utilities were cut off again before the end of March was $45.48. "And the house was unoccupied."

Mrs. Hickman is asking concerned mothers in the whole Tidewater who are willing to join in the march to call her at 497-3032.

Miss Garvey

They'll remember the date

August 31 will be a very meaningful wedding day for Miss Vivian Bess Garvey and Robert Madison Hartman.

the bridegroom's brother, will be best man.

A classmate of Miss Garvey, Lee Hendrix, will be organist.

Following the wedding, the bride will live with the bridegroom's parents in Roanoke.

It happens to be the birthday of them both.

In addition the bridegroom will be inducted in the Army on Sept. 1.

Another coincidence is that both graduated from high school on June 4, she from Indian River High School and he from Deep Creek High School.

Miss Garvey is the granddaughter of Mrs. Belva Hardy, of Applewood Lane, a music teacher at Princess Anne Elementary School who will sing at the wedding.

Mr. Hartman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.F. Hartman of Roanoke, formerly of Chesapeake.

The wedding will take place at 5:30 p.m. at Knotts Island Methodist Church with the Rev. Fred Bonney officiating. A reception will follow in the church social hall.

Miss Garvey will be given in marriage by Leo Morris. Miss Sandra Hill of Norfolk will be maid of honor. Steven Morris and Sondra Morris will be ring-bearer and flower girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Jay Spruill, boy.

Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Radford, boy.

Mrs. Vaughan (Boice Studio)

Mrs. McMillan

Beasley-Vaughan wedding

Miss Esther Kathleen Beasley became the bride of Amory Abner Vaughan, Jr. in a candle-light wedding at 6:30 p.m. Aug. 21 at Virginia Beach United Methodist Church. Rev. Beverly Felt and Dr. Orman Bryant officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Alfred Beasley Jr. of Ridge Road.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory A. Vaughan of Whittier Road.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore wedding gown of ivory silk organza and Alencon lace. The empire bodice was of English net applied with lace and designed with a portrait neckline and long bishop sleeves. The skirt extended into a long circular Watteau train. The veil was a full length mantilla of tulle edged with scalloped lace which was attached to a Camelot cap. She carried the prayer book which both her mother and grandmother carried when they were married.

Miss Florence Casey of

Washington, D.C., the bride's roommate at Hollins College, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Georgie Miles, Miss Peggy Coleman, Miss Katherine Beasley, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Cay Foster, all of Virginia Beach; Miss Nancy Kight and Miss Baird Hunter of Norfolk. Susan Vaughan of Virginia Beach, the bridegroom's sister, and Anne Farrar Armistead of Richmond, the bride's cousin, were flower girls.

Mr. Vaughan was his son's best man. Groomsmen were Michael Hayes, E. L. Ransdell, Bobby Beasley, cousin of the bride, Ned Williams and Guy Foster, all of Virginia Beach, and William Bland of Norfolk.

Following a reception at the home of the bride, the couple left on a wedding trip to Palm Beach, Fla. They will live in Virginia Beach.

The bride is a graduate of the Country Day School for Girls and Hollins College in Roanoke.

The bridegroom graduated from Cox High School and is attending Roanoke College.

Bridges-McMillan wedding

Miss Dorothy Louise Bridges became the bride of Claude David McMillan III in a candle-light ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 22 at the First Lutheran Church of Norfolk with Rev. Marshall F. Mauney officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lee Bridges of General Lee Drive.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude David McMillan, Jr. of Norfolk.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ecru gown of silk peau de sole overlaid with silk tulle, heavily accented with retrimmed Alencon lace. The attached pleated chapel length train of silk peau de sole was unworn. A princess type open top crown edged with seed pearls was covered with floral designed lace outlined with seed pearls and crystals with silk illusion sweeping behind her.

The bride's sister, Mrs. John Alan Nagotte of Hyattsville, Md., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Laura Virginia Nance of Panama City, Fla., sister of the bridegroom; Miss Sheryl Anne Jones of Virginia Beach, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Kathleen Brinkley of Virginia Beach. Miss Bonnie Lee Bridges of Virginia Beach, the bride's sister, was junior bridesmaid. Miss Sherri Lynn Hodges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Hodges of Norfolk, was flower girl.

Mr. McMillan was his son's best man. Groomsmen were James Clay McMillan of Norfolk, brother of the bridegroom, and Samuel Norman Groves and William Earl Moore, both of Norfolk.

Following a reception at the Chief Petty Officer's Club, Naval Operations Base in Norfolk, the couple left on a wedding trip to Freeport, Grand Bahamas. They will live in Roanoke Rapids, N.C. Mr. McMillan is a member of the faculty of Squire Elementary School in Gaston, N.C.

Cook out while there's sun

Sun-fun-recipes done! How about that -- Sunational! Early to bed with plenty of ideas for a patio party, a back-yard barbecue or a distant, tote-all picnic.

The hearty-appetite folks need not quibble about nibble foods, for we've cooked up just the meaty dishes that fit outdoor hunger.

Better put these recipes in your permanent file, for the succulent "Pasties" will be just as welcome on nippy days when outdoor living loses charm.

PICNIC PASTIES

- 1 envelope instant chicken broth mix
- 1 cup water
- 1/3 cup Taylor N.Y. State Rhine Wine
- 3 whole chicken breasts (about 2 1/2 lbs.)
- 1 stalk celery with leaves, cut up
- 1 small onion, sliced
- 1/2 cup minced raw carrot
- 1/2 cup minced celery
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 4 tbs. flour
- 2 pkgs. pie crust mix

Dissolve broth mix in water; add wine. Add chicken breasts, celery stalk and sliced onion. Cover; simmer until chicken is tender. Remove chicken; strain broth. Dice chicken fine. Cook minced vegetables in butter until tender; do not brown. Stir in flour. Add hot broth; cook and stir until mixture is very thick. Add salt if necessary. Prepare pie crust mix as directed on package. Roll out about 1/4 at a time, cut into 4-inch circles. Place spoonful of chicken mixture on each circle; fold over; crimp edges with tines of fork. If desired, brush tops with milk. Cut a slit in top of each. Bake at 425 degrees 20 to 25 minutes or until deep golden brown. Cool. Wrap in foil to carry to picnic. Makes about 30 pasties.

Tip: Great for buffet service, too!

HAMBURGER PICNIC PIES

- 3 lbs. lean beef, ground
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- 1 tbs. parsley flakes
- 1 can (3 oz.) bottled sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1/2 cup Taylor N.Y. State Burgundy
- 2 cups soft bread crumbs
- 2 tsp. Worcestershire

- Heavy duty aluminum foil
- Marinade
- 1 medium onion, minced
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 2 tsp. lemon juice
- 1/2 cup Taylor N.Y. State Rose Wine
- 2 tsp. sugar
- 2 tsp. salad herbs
- 3/4 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. pepper

Cut lamb in 1 1/2 inch cubes. Cut onions in sixths, eggplant in 1-inch cubes and green peppers in 1-inch pieces. Thread on skewers in any desired order. Place filled skewers on long strips of aluminum foil about 6 inches wide. Brush liberally with marinade. When ready to cook, remove from foil; save foil. Place on grill over medium hot fire; brown quickly, turning once or twice. Return each kabab to foil and spoon any remaining marinade over them. Seal foil; return kababs to grill. Cook 1/2 hour without turning. Makes 6 servings.

To Make Marinade: Cook minced onion in oil about 3 minutes or until soft, but not brown. Add remaining ingredients; mix well.

A 6-man CARE team in Nigeria is helping war victims rebuild their lives. Food plus farm tools, seeds, construction materials and other aid is provided by contributions to: Nigeria Emergency Fund, CARE, New York 10016.

Oriental Kebabs--to be eaten inside or out.

- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. pepper
- 2 pkgs. pie crust mix

- 1 small eggplant
- 2 green peppers
- 1 box cherry tomatoes

Cook beef and onion in skillet until beef is brown and onion tender. Pour off any fat. Add all remaining ingredients except pie crust mix. Combine thoroughly. Prepare mix as directed on package. Line 11-inch pie pan () with pastry. Fill with meat mixture. Cover with top crust; seal edges; cut slits in center. If desired, brush with tablespoon cold water. Bake at 425 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes or until golden brown. Cool. Wrap in foil to take to picnic. Makes 10 servings. () Or make two 9-inch pies.

Note: A domesticated version of the English Melton Mowbray Pie.

ORIENTAL KEBABS

- 2 lbs. lean boned lamb, from shoulder or leg
- 2 large onions

Fall is busy time for spring

(Editor's note: This is one of a series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Jenkins, extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

Fall should be a busy time in the garden. The plants and bulbs to provide beauty next spring must be planted soon.

A good place to start is with daffodils. Order your bulbs now. They should be planted by mid-September. This will allow time for good root development before cold weather stops growth.

Dwarf types of daffodils are fine for the shrub border. Use them along with crocus to add color and variety early in the spring.

The flower border is the traditional place for daffodils. They provide an abundance of flowers before most perennials start to bloom.

Daffodils may also be naturalized under trees in partial shade. This is an ideal place because the grass grows slowly in such locations, and mowing can be delayed until the daffodil foliage matures and dies. This is necessary to form the flower buds in the bulb for next year's bloom.

The new butter or sunburst daffodils are worth trying. The crown or corona is unique because it is divided or cleft at the outer edge to form six lobes. A yellow, orange or red color-tion starts in the center and extends out in stripes to the ends of the lobes.

Another unusual type to consider is the collar daffodil. Varieties of this type were awarded the gold medal at a Royal Horticultural Society show.

The special feature of the collar daffodil is that the crown is divided into three separate petal like appendages. Some Holland bulb experts claim that this type is similar to the original form of daffodil from which modern varieties were developed.

Don't forget to plant some of the new brilliant colored trumpet and large cup daffodils.

Also include some of the sweet scented poetaz varieties. They add a wonderful fragrance when used in arrangements in the home.

The planting of daffodil bulbs is simple. In good garden soil cover them to a depth equal to about four times their diameter, and in heavy soil about twice their diameter.

The soil must be well drained. To promote vigorous growth, add 5-10-5 fertilizer at the rate of about four pounds per 100 square feet of bed area. Spade this into the top six inches of soil and mix thoroughly.

A mulch of wood chips, sawdust, peat moss, pine needles, or other organic material will conserve soil moisture and help control weeds.

To secure the largest flowers, daffodils should be transplanted every four or five years.

"The happy I am when I'm straight is more beautiful than the happy I seemed to be when I was stoned."

The girl in the picture is named Chris. For over a year, she was on amphetamines, powerful drugs known as "speed." This is how she describes it:

"I think 'speed' is a lot worse than heroin. Kids have got to know about it, because they can fall so easily into taking it through the diet pill hassle, or needing something to help them study. You know, that's crazy. Because the combination of amphetamines and no sleep just blows your memory completely. There are whole sections of my life which I just can't remember. It got to be just 'do a little more, do a little more,' until that was all there was. And the 'crashing'... sometimes the 'crashing' is just really awful!

"For me to stop taking it, I had to feel that people were caring. And they were. I was really lucky. I was very close to two people that were really into amphetamines very deeply, and I loved them a lot. But as far as they were concerned, the only thing that they had was the 'meth,' and that was their life. And they're both dead now."

"Dexies," "bennies," "meth" are all called "speed" these days. And people who know "speed" know "speed" kills!

For more facts about drugs, write for free booklets to: National Institute of Mental Health, Box 1080, Washington, D.C. 20013

Extension Courses Scheduled Throughout City

"Our swiftly changing society has brought us to the fresh realization of an old truth—that education in its best sense does not end with youth. It must continue through all the years of adult life if men and women are to be provided with the increasing knowledge necessary to the practice of current skills and to the search for wisdom. Today continuing education has become a compelling necessity."

League Champs

Tossing in the first pennies for the American Cancer Society's wishing well at Miller's in Princess Anne Plaza are Virginia Beach unit Chairman Bruce G. Murphy and Miller's manager Dick Cohick. Crusade special events chairman Bob Whitley helps to fill the pool, which will remain in the store until the crusade's conclusion Aug. 31. Murphy said the goal for the year is $36,000 and that current donations leave the unit about $1,500 short of that amount.

Capt. W. A. Schroeder, Jr., Naval Air Station Oceana commanding officer presents Thomas B. Gray the Navy's superior civilian service award on Gray's retirement after 28 years of federal service. Gray received the second highest civil service award in honor of his participation in military-civilian projects in Virginia Beach, direction of Oceana's Civilian Personnel Dept., and personal dedication during civil service at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base and the St. Juliens Creek Naval Ammunition Depot as well as Oceana.

State May Bear Some Line Costs

Virginia Beach has been recommended for a federal grant of $854,515 to be applied to the costs of sewer line projects.

The grant would cover 30 per cent of the actual costs but would not be received until the projects are completed -- at least two years from now -- in accordance with all state and federal requirements. Some of the projects already are under way while the others are in planning stages.

To complete requirements for the grant, Virginia Beach must assure the State Water Control Board by Sept. 1 that it will proceed with the listed projects; submit a detailed formal application by Sept. 15, have final plans and specifications ready by April 15, 1971, and have bids awarded on all projects by Sept. 15, 1971.

The 10 neighborhood projects in the application with no specific priority indicated, are:

- (1) Diamond Springs, Gardenwood Park, (2) Eureka Park, (3) Thalia, (4) Seastack, (5) Liner and Laurel Manor, (6) Oceana, (7) Chesapeake Colony, (8) L. & J. Gardens, Diamond Lake Estates, Lewson Forest, (9) Bayville Park, Bradford Terrace, Bradford Acres, and (10) Baylake Pines, Baylake Beach, Chesapeake Beach, Ocean Park.

Community Efforts Reap Recognition

Mrs. Leroy Martin, Davenport Lane, Virginia Beach, received a Fort Story Certificate of Appreciation from Colonel Daniel K. Byrne for her outstanding contribution to the Fort Story Community during the period July 1967 to July 1970.

During this time, Mrs. Martin volunteered considerable time and efforts to Fort Story's Army Community Services Program, the American Red Cross, the Bloodmobile, the Dispensary and the Dental Clinic, and also served, in turn, as President and Secretary of the Non-Commissioned Officers Wives Club. Her citation read in part, "In each of these volunteer projects, Mrs. Martin's untiring efforts and community spirit produced outstanding results. Her devotion to the betterment of the Fort Story Community is highly commendable. She has been an outstanding leader within the distaff element of this command."

Mrs. Martin is the wife of First Sergeant Martin of Headquarters Company, Fort Story. Mrs. Martin has recently taken a position on the staff of Dr. M. A. Saunders, Jr., of Virginia Beach.

Best Addition Nears Completion

Best Products Company Inc., headquartered in Richmond, announced this week that the expansion of its Virginia Beach Showroom will be completed about mid-September.

The addition of a second floor will double the present space and permit expanded service to Tidewater customers. Additional parking will also be available.

Reminded Of Wage Deadlines

Housewives who employ help around the house on a regular basis have two important mailing chores to perform before October 31, according to Charles E. Teets, social security district manager in Norfolk, Virginia.

These are the mid-summer and the early fall quarterly reports of wages and the social security contributions paid on those wages, he said. The payments--due by the end of July (for the months of April, May, and June) and by the end of October (for July, August and September)--cover all household employees who are paid cash wages of $50 or more by one employer in a calendar quarter.

Contributions are based only on cash wages. Cash or tokens given to the worker for car fare does not count.

The worker and the employer each contribute 4.8 percent of the worker's wages to social security. In some cases, the employer may choose to pay the entire 9.6 percent contribution himself. But it is the employer, Teets pointed out, who is responsible under the law for making the reports.

Information about social security for household workers is available from any social security office.

NORFOLK PORTSMOUTH VIRGINIA BEACH

There is an old saying that one bad apple spoils the whole barrel. And it is probably true. The philosophy of this stage could also be applied to pleasure boating. Generally, those nautical citizens we call boatmen are very safety-conscious people who know how to operate their boats safely - and do it. And even those who don't know all the "rules" are perhaps afraid to take chances on the water.

But then there is the bad apple. He is the one who lets out all stops, one who casts all care to the wind. When he gets into his boat he becomes a hot-rod driver. He operates his boat in a reckless or negligent manner endangering anyone who may be in his way. The water is all his. And he is of great concern to everybody.

The Coast Guard and other law enforcement agencies are continually directing their efforts toward getting the bad apple off the water. They are continually trying to stop these illegal and unsafe acts which "spoil boating for everyone." It's not only against the law, it could be dangerous to your health - and his, too.

It is certain that the pleasure boating public would like to put a stop to this danger to themselves and others. And the law enforcement agencies can be helped by the legitimate pleasure boatman. But the first necessity is to understand the meaning of the terms negligent and reckless.

RECKLESS OR NEGLIGENT?

"Negligent Operation means lack of care under the circumstances; the failure to exercise that care which a responsible, careful, and prudent person would exercise under like circumstances; failure to exercise the care that circumstances justly demand (culpably careless; inattentive; indifferent; inattentive to duty).

Reckless operation signifies more than mere negligence and implies an extreme form of negligence. Reckless indicates an absence of all care. The term means a willful disregard for the safety of persons or property which involves intentional conduct but not intentional harm. To constitute reckless misconduct the operator must have known that his act created

State Parks Close After Labor Day

People are packing into Virginia state parks this year more than ever, and the Division of Parks expects a record number of visitors in the remaining month of the summer season. The 1970 attendance was more than 1.5 million at the beginning of August, topping all previous years, the division reported. Seashore State Park at Virginia Beach continues to be the State's most popular park.

State parks are popular with Virginians of all ages and races the division said, and they attract many tourists from other states and Canada.

Various time activities - swimming, horseback riding, and pleasure boating in paddle craft - will come to a close after Labor Day on September 7. Virginia's ten major parks and three recreational areas are open year-round, however, and visitors use the campgrounds, picnic areas, boat launching ramps for fishing boats, and nature trails around the calendar.

Two state parks which are mainly sightseeing attractions at present will remain in operation several weeks after Labor Day. Chippokes Plantation, on the James River in Surry County, will keep its exhibition buildings and formal garden on view in September, and Natural Tunnel in Southwest Virginia's Scott County is scheduled to stay open through October.

Vacation cabins in eight parks are completely reserved during August, but vacancies will exist after Labor Day until the cottages close Sept. 23, the division said. Cabins are rented for a week at a time, and on weekends or daily only when reservations have not already been taken. All reservations are made through September.

variations are made through the division's Richmond office in the Southern States Building. In addition to the recreation facilities which close after Labor Day, evening programs and nature walks conducted by seasonal naturalists will come to a close. However, several nature centers where exhibits are displayed daily during the summer will remain open on weekends. The self-guided nature trails are always available for walking.

Four of the park system's five restaurants will cease operating the second week in September, but the Hungry Mother State Park near Marion continues into the fall. One of the park system's five restaurants will cease operating the second week in September, but the Hungry Mother State Park near Marion continues into the fall.

Three state-owned historical sites will also close after the summer season. They are the George Washington Grist Mill in Fairfax County, Sayler's Creek Battlefield Park near Farmville, and Shot Tower Historical Park in Wythe County. Another attraction, the Southwest Virginia Museum in Stone Gap, is open year-round every day except Mondays.

At Douthett State Park near Clifton Forge, a change is being made this year in the trout fishing schedule. The plan whereby anglers pay a $1 daily fee will close at the end of September instead of October. After then a trout license is required along with the regular fishing license. Rowboats will continue for rent during September.

an unreasonable risk of harm, but he need not have intended actually to cause harm. (i.e., wanton disregard for the rights of others; wanton indifference to the rights of others; rashness; wanton willful misconduct.)

Either reckless or negligent operation is sufficient to constitute an offense. There is no need for both to occur, and they does not have to be an accident.

WHAT'S RECKLESS... or negligent? Some of the actions which may be so characterized are:

-Excessive speed in close proximity to other boats, such as near marinas, in narrow winding channels, or during periods of reduced visibility.

-Overloading of vessels clearly beyond safe loading capacity as evidenced by instability, little freeboard, shipping water from slight wakes of other vessels, etc.

-Operating while under the influence of intoxicants, drugs, etc., and recognizable by erratic operation.

-Certain unsafe water skiing practices such as towing water skiers in the vicinity of other vessels, where the skier feels he may be hit by other boats.

-Operating in the vicinity of dams when such areas are known to be hazardous.
